[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 23, 3 a. m.—Divinity doth hedge a king. Honor and reverence, splendor and stateliness, noble ritual and solemn observance—all these have proclaimed the fact, and gray old Westminster abbey has seen no more impressive ceremonial than yesterday's brilliant pageant.

History has never included a more striking picture in her universal lesson books. Holinshed and Camden have written no more deeply interesting record in all their quaintly worded chronicles.

Remarkable, too, is the fact that this scene of unexampled magnificence has taken place at a time when socialism is supposed to be rampant, when a radical chancellor of the exchequer is breathing fire and fury against the lords and the aristocracy generally, and when all that suggests power, place, supremacy, is condemned as something akin to political crime, and equality for all men is the cry.

Enthusiasm Pledge of Loyalty.

Then what have all the millions of our people been about, cheering their visible crowned head as if they were gone mad with enthusiasm? Why such frenzy and rapture for a king and queen? Why? Because England is loyal to the backbone, and socialism no more than a ripple of discontent on a stagnant pool.

Never was there such proof of the fidelity of the country to the throne and to all the throne signifies as the wonderful picture of our coronation day—the streets thronged with thousands and thousands of spectators content to wait hours to see the royal procession; the mighty roar of cheering that greeted the imperial monarchs as they passed to their crowning and, in the abbey itself, what a scene of splendor—packed with all the noblest in the realm, as well as with distinguished foreigners and honored guests from over seas.

It was a sight never to be forgotten, and one that was hardly promising to the success of the socialist creed. Everything testified to the grandeur and stability of the historic sway of the monarchy which made the empire of Great Britain.

Gorgeous Spectacle in Abbey.

As early as 8 o'clock in the morning the interior of the abbey presented a gorgeous spectacle, masses of brilliant color glowing between the gray-brown Gothic arches and columns, and jewels flashing like points of light in every nook and corner.

The sun refused to shine, which was the one drawback. Every one longed for the blaze of heaven's own radiance on such a notable scene in England's annals, yet the dimness and shadow added impressiveness to the wonderful effect of deep-hued velvets, glittering gold, and purest ermine, sparkling diamond tiaras and crowns, and the many different and equally gorgeous uniforms.

The peeresses made a marvelous picture in their gracefully flowing robes of crimson velvet, their white veils falling over caps of snowy miniver. Most of them were women of exceptional beauty and elegance, and it was hard to decide who among them looked the loveliest as they walked to their places.

Duchesses Famed for Beauty.

Perhaps one may select the Duchess of Portland, the Duchess of Westminster, the Duchess of Marlborough, and the Duchess of Sutherland as four types of perfect grace, who carried their long trains with more than usual ease and attracted universal admiration by their stately bearing.

In the long wait before the king and queen arrived there was a continual buzz of voices like the sound of a monster hive of bees, and one had time to remark one or two curious things. For instance, there was John Burns in a gold coat. He looked fairly comfortable, and yet one could not help wondering at the caprice of fortune that had clothed him in such a garment.

Then there was Mr. Balfour displaying a pair of gold epaulettes. He looked about as tired out as the earl marshal, who evidently was very tired, indeed.

Thrill as King Approaches.

The preliminary music was magnificent, and when the organ thundered out its grand announcement that the king was close at hand, a thrill ran through the heart and it was difficult to keep tears from the eyes.

I personally could not help recalling the morning of King Edward's coronation, when the same splendid scene was enacted. It was but a short time ago, and what a change!

With the first flourish of the trumpets the hum of voices began to abate, and gradually a tense stillness reigned. The sun came out faintly with a brief flash as the Prince of Wales entered and passed up the body of the church, a charming figure of pretty boyish stateliness, a little nervous and pale, but comporting himself with perfect dignity and appearing entirely unembarrassed by his long royal blue velvet train. Very sweet looked fair little Princess Mary. In fact, one of the most charming groups in the whole magnificent scene was formed by the royal children, emblems of future hope for England.

Queen in Stately Dignity.

The entrance of the queen was magnificent. She bore herself with dignity, almost with coldness. She was very pale, and obviously had much ado to keep her stately self-control. Her gorgeous train, borne by six daughters of earls, glowed with burning gold. Diamonds flashed from her neck and arms, and she walked with regal step, looking queenly to the height of queenliness.

The king's entrance, however, was more effective than that of his handsome consort, for there was something pathetic in his demeanor. He looked overweighted by his splendor, and this somewhat touching tiredness seemed to be on him when the crown of England was placed upon his brows and when the thunderous shout, "God save the king!" rang through every corner of the abbey.

"Be strong and play the man," sang the glorious choir, like angels in the distance; "keep the commandments of the Lord, thy God, and walk in His ways." "Be strong and play the man"—we all felt, as we looked at the king, throned in St. Edward's chair, that this was his thought and this his intention.

Duties Undertaken by King.

In a brief and not too eloquent sermon the archbishop of York spoke of sovereignty and of service, and this is what our king accepted with his crowning: He serves the people over whom he is called to rule, and he has begun to serve them well. All the good will prosper under his wise and careful supremacy, and the loyalty of the people is a right instinct and one that will bring them prosperity.

The grandeur and dignity of the coronation of King George and Queen Mary could never be surpassed in any period of history. It is replete with meaning.

It carries special significance; it has occurred at a moment when revolutionary and democratic methods of government threaten disaster to the realm, and it shows on what foundation the people of England rest their hope.

Their security is the throne, and the splendid and solemn observance in Westminster abbey has witnessed, not only the king's oaths to the empire but also the empire's loyalty to the king.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—Field Marshal Lord Kitchener's bediamonded insignia, while he was riding in the procession, became detached from his breast and dropped into his riding boot. He was unaware of this until near the end of the ceremony in the abbey, when he felt it scratching his leg.

HOW THE CROWDS MET THE PAGEANT

QUEEN CALM, RADIANT.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—When the carriages and autos carrying to the abbey the coronation guests appeared a view of the occupants was had through the polished windows.

"Ah! There goes a peeress, I know she is, because her husband wears ermine," exclaimed a woman spectator, obviously an American, to her party of friends. She gasped as if entranced as equipages with bewigged and silk stockinged coachmen and footmen rumbled toward the abbey.

Wind Assails High and Low.

The wind with increasing velocity blew out straight the three Prince of Wales white plumes in the coiffures of every woman guest and made the men clutch foolishly to their Napoleon hats. Shortly before 8 a brief but drenching rain assailed the throngs, who took some satisfaction in seeing that a bishop in his crimson vestments, a general so straight and haughty that he appeared to have been starched, a judge in a mantle and wig and other dignitaries were no more fortunate than "'Arry 'Awkins" of Vauxhall.

Into view came a vehicle like a ponderous gold casket, drawn by six horses, with footmen in gorgeous livery attending it. It was the state carriage of the lord mayor of London. Sir Vesey Strong, who carried the famous crystal scepter, for the stealing of which five men have paid the death penalty at Tyburn in bygone days.

In the calls of inquiry concerning the identity of the occupants of the carriages the name of America's representative was heard repeated with flattering frequency. He rode with Vice Admiral De Jonquieres, his Royal Highness the Albrecht Duke of Wurtemberg, and his Royal Highness Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria.

It was 9:40 when the hosts assembled in parliament square in front of the abbey and in the immediate vicinity caught the first glitter of the white helmets of the Life Guards leading the procession. There was a momentary hush followed by slight cheering, which increased in volume and fervor until it became a sustained diapason charged with enthusiasm.

Half Minute Views of Royalty.

The second squall fell apparently unheeded by the eager assemblage of men and women, who called aloud in their excitement the names of the Grand Duchess of Hesse, the Crown Princess of Sweden, and the Crown Princess of Roumania. Her imperial highness the Princess Higash Fushimi and the Crown Princess of Greece were others whose names attracted most attention on the closely followed program. Half minute views of these highest born royalties seemed to afford the women spectators the liveliest satisfaction. Acclaim for this section of the procession reached its noisiest and most exuberant expression with the appearance of a postilion landau drawn by four black horses and containing the German crown prince and crown princess.

Hats came off and women's handkerchiefs were waved along the entire route in Chautauqua salute. The crown prince, avowedly delighted, leaned close to the window, a smile beaming on his face and his head nodding in constant acknowledgements for the hearty reception.

Proof of English Loyalty.

Expectancy and eagerness which were manifest during the short half hour preceding the approach of the second division furnish eloquent proof of the love in which England's royal family is held by Englishmen. A hundred thousand joined in the cheer which swept from Trafalgar square to the abbey when the carriages were seen. Princess Alexander of Teck was quick to recognize the spontaneity of the welcome and to acknowledge it more vigorously perhaps than some of her more diffident cousins.

It was when the crowds caught sight of the five children of King George and Queen Mary that the enthusiasm was unbounded. The Prince of Wales, garbed as a Knight of the Garter, drew back timidly when confronted by such a fervent demonstration, but Princess Mary came bravely to the rescue of her brother, leaning from one window to the other to let all share in the bounty of her delightfully expressed pleasure.

To children watching the little occupants of the magnificent carriage it was obviously a fairy scene vitalized before their eyes. Perhaps no greater demonstration met the king and queen when they came to view later, but their reception was tempered with something akin to reverential awe.

Queen Radiant and Composed.

The king's face was aglow with joy, to be sure, but somewhat pale and solicitous, whereas the queen was radiant. It was noticeable that she was more composed than her husband. She could be seen clearly through the glass doors of the superbly cumbersome gold coach drawn by eight cream horses of the famous Hanoverian stock. Her head was raised and bowed constantly in cordial recognition of their subjects' tribute.

The king and queen passed through the military lanes, which gave the royal salute, the colors being lowered by each squadron or company and thus drooped until the rear escort had passed the outer flank. Thus attended by tokens of impressive enthusiasm, the king and queen entered the precincts of the abbey.

TAFT'S GREETINGS SENT TO GEORGE.

"On this auspicious occasion I take sincere pleasure in extending to your majesty cordial felicitations in the name of the people of the United States and in my own, and in expressing the cherished hope that under your guiding influence the British dominion may flourish and prosper. I assure your majesty of my best wishes for your personal welfare and that of your majesty's family, and for the continuance of the friendly relations existing between Great Britain and the United States."

AMERICANS GAYLY DECORATE HOUSES

Lady Cooper, Formerly of Evanston, Has Most Elaborate Display.

GOWNS ARE MAGNIFICENT

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—The Americans decorated lavishly for the coronation the houses on Grosvenor square, where many of them reside.

That of Lady Cooper, formerly Miss Mary Smith of Evanston, Ill., was most elaborate. It had a huge white cross with red and white lights for the night display and the initials of King George. The house of Mrs. W. B. Leeds was a close second in the matter of decorations.

Many Guests of Morgan.

J. Pierpont Morgan rented two floors of an apartment building in Piccadilly near Hyde Park corner, where his sister, Mrs. Burns, and his daughters and son were hostesses and host to 150 guests.

The Astors had a beautiful Tudoresque office on the Thames embankment. Its draperies consisted of six American and eight British flags.

Mrs. F. W. Mackey used decorated balconies for the accommodation of her American guests.

Mrs. Anthony Drexel, Mrs. J. P. Smith, Mrs. M. Graham, and Mrs. W. Draper viewed the procession from the Ritz, where they had luncheon parties.

American Women Finely Dressed.

American ladies of title were among the best dressed in the abbey. The Duchess of Roxburghe, formerly Miss May Goelet of New York, wore a magnificent dress of gold and white brocade.

The Countess of Suffolk and Berkshire, formerly Daisy Leiter of Chicago, wore a robe of white satin paneled with old Brussels lace. She had a magnificent kirtle of English embroidery, representing the family crest of the Howards. She wore a broad diamond crown.

Lady Newborough, formerly Miss Grace Carr of Louisville, Ky., wore maize chiffon over a dress of gold lace, with kirtle embroidered with the family arms wrought in gold thread. Lady Newborough's emeralds were the finest in the abbey. An immense stone, the size of a pear, formed her pendant, and on her crown of diamonds were six high points, each topped with a flawless emerald of perfect shape and color. This crown ranked after the Duchess of Westminster's in point of value.

Americans Who Saw Procession.

Among other Americans who viewed the coronation procession from houses or stands were: Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Dewey, J. B. Howell, E. W. Sandford, Mrs. J. A. Churchill, Edgar Saltus, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Tilford, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw and family, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. John Rutherford, Frederick Townsend Martin, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Harahan of Chicago, Lady Cunard, formerly Miss Burke of Chicago, John Wilson, Col. Harrison Powers, William Seward Webb, Dr. and Mrs. Preston Satterwhite, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lanier, Mathew Wilkes, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Bache, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, Col. Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Whitehead, Eugene Gallatin, Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. Haley Fiske, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Amsinck, H. H. Benedict, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Wiborg, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morris of Chicago, Broughton Wood, G. L. Bradley, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Bennett of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Newhouse of Salt Lake City, W. A. Kinney and D. M. Lewis of Honolulu, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Winslow, F. A. Bourne, J. A. Macklbbon, Mr. and Mrs. E. Bancroft, J. H. Fahey, Mr. and Mrs. F. Atherton, Clarke Merry and R. E. Towle of Boston.

TODAY'S PROGRAM FOR CELEBRATION

1:30 a. m.—General vehicular traffic resumed.

9 a. m.—Last carriages to leave homeward route.

Pedestrians will be allowed access to the line of route so long as the conditions warrant, and general traffic will resume after their majesties' return to the palace.

C. P. TAFT PRAISES SPECTACLE.

Says No Other Country Could Crown King with Such Impressiveness as England.

LONDON, June 22.—Charles P. Taft, who had a seat with his wife and daughter beside J. Pierpont Morgan over the south choir in Westminster abbey, from which he had a splendid view of the whole coronation ceremony, was greatly impressed.

"It was one of the greatest pageants of the period," he said. "I never saw anything like it. No other country, in my opinion, could crown a king with such impressiveness as was done here in London.

"To me the idea continually dominant back of the ceremony was the wonder of Westminster abbey, with all its historic recollections, with the men who have made Great Britain famous buried within its walls, with all that is highest and greatest in British achievement.

"Under those circumstances the crowning of the king, with the oath he took and the promises he made, was a function of most extraordinary and impressive character."

PROVINCES JOIN IN REJOICING.

English Villagers Universally Participate in Festivities Attending Coronation of Rulers.

LONDON, June 22.—Not only London and the other large cities of the empire but every village and hamlet in the English provinces participated in the national rejoicing. Wherever a British garrison or warship is stationed, royal salutes were fired at the moment of the crowning at Westminster.

CROWN GEORGE V. AS BRITISH KING IN ANCIENT RITES

ALL WORLD SENDS ENVOYS

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATES ITS LOYALTY

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—The fifth George of England was crowned today. The sacred ceremonial was carried out in Westminster's ancient fane with symbolism and ritual language which carried the minds of the beholders back to the storied days of faith and chivalry, even to the time of those who lived before Alfred.

There are not lacking those who say that today's great ceremony was nothing more than the traditional pageant, a splendid anachronism in this modern world, but few who witnessed it could remain of that mind. Were there nothing more than that, then surely it must have been wept away ere now, to judge by the evidence of one's own eyes, ears, and senses.

The truth seems to be just the opposite. The coronation of George V. appears to have gripped the imagination of the public of the entire British empire even more than did that of his well loved father, when to affection was added deep, human sympathy for the man who, six short weeks before, had looked death in the face.

No Mishap Mars Day.

The stirring events of the day were carried through without hitch or serious accident of any kind. The weather was less favorable than had been hoped for, but even that had its compensating advantages, so that there was practically no need of the services of ambulances. On the other hand, the rain was not sufficient to detract seriously from the splendor of the pageantry.

The attendance of the general public in the streets, while large, did not approach that at King Edward's coronation. This probably was due to fears engendered by the unusually severe police regulations and the barricades erected to protect the line of the procession route, which under the circumstances, therefore, proved needless.

Gloomy prognostications of trouble arising through public resentment of these precautions as an infringement of British liberty proved groundless. Everything was carried out with smoothness and in perfect order, which excited universal admiration.

Rite Heritance of Ages.

No man could have seen and heard today's solemn rite without reverence and emotion. The English coronation rite is the most ancient and the most glorious thing of its kind in the world. George V. sat for his hallowing where English kings before him had been consecrated for more than eight hundred years.

From 6 o'clock, when the doors opened, until after 9 the abbey was a scene of ever-moving pictures which silently and gradually composed themselves into one harmonious setting, only needing the addition of the central figures to complete the scene. Great galleries stretched upwards on each side of the "theater" for the peers and peeresses and commoners of the realm.

On the south side of the chancel, in the choir stalls, was a royal box for members of the English royal family, and on the north side of the chancel the judges' gallery. The central aisle and nave were lined with superimposed galleries, which were occupied by diplomats, royal representatives, and other distinguished persons.

Gold Services Add Splendor.

On the altar stood the abbey's glittering gold service. On a table beneath the royal box was ranged the still more magnificent gold service of St. George's chapel at Windsor, whose burnished richness made the most brilliant color note of all.

On the sides of the galleries hung priceless old Flemish tapestries. Rare, centuries old, Persian rugs lay before the thrones. Above, behind, and around everything stretched the ancient gray stone work of the abbey, the mellowed stained glass of the painted windows blending softly with all.

When nearly 7,000 spectators had taken their seats, there was to be seen as wonderful a picture of sheer color as a painter could dream of. The abbey had lost some touch of its austerity save in the ceiling's misty heights, but there was no loss of beauty. It was light and fairy like, the dark, ruby velvet of the peers and peeresses, the scarlet tunics of the soldiers, and the black velvet court suits giving just sufficient strength to the spotless ermine capes of the judges and peers.

White Robed Choir Enters.

At 9 o'clock the white robed choir entered and stood in the chancel. Then, from the altar, the abbey canons, robed in their long, richly colored copes, took the articles of royal regalia and, preceded by the choir, which now was singing "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," bore them in to the robing room at the west entrance.

At 10 o'clock all stood again as a glittering company of foreign princes walked up the Dean of Westminster replaced the ampulla aisle and took their places in the chancel. Then followed the diplomatic corps, foreign envoys, and minor royalties, and then, in truth, the choir stall became, as it were, a map of the world, stretching from Ethiopia to Japan.

Following these came another assemblage which touched the hearts of the people within and without the abbey as did none other today, not even the king and queen themselves. It was the Prince of Wales with his sister and his brothers, followed by nineteen princes and princess of the British royal family.

All Eyes on Boy Prince.

But all eyes were for the boy prince and his sister and brothers. Grave and serious looked the young prince as he walked with a dignity beyond his years at the head of this royal group dressed in the medieval costume of the garter. He looked every inch a prince, but the modesty and diffidence of the human boy could plainly be seen, adding, not detracting, from the princeliness of his bearing.

His chair occupied a place alone in front of the peers, facing north in the line of the throne on the raised dais and facing east the serried ranks. The peers arose and bowed low as the prince, before taking his seat, turned and bowed to them.

The Princess Mary followed, looking every inch a princess. She was well able to give effect to her long ermine lined blue train which was held up by a lady in attendance. The downcast eyes, slightly bent head, and girlish coiffure alone spoke the child. Behind her came her young sailor brother dressed as naval cadet and the two little princess in Scotch garb.

The Duke of Connaught made a separate arrival. He bowed low to his young grandnephew, the Prince of Wales, who rose and returned the bow.

Queen Comes Into Abbey.

At 10:45 the abbey music ceased. A clash of bells, a roll of drums, and a fanfare of trumpets without were heard and then an expectant hush fell on the great congregation. Then slowly, very slowly, the queen's procession advanced up the aisle.

Heralded by psalm and preceded by the clergy and great officers of her household, the bearers of her regalia and many of the noblest of her husband's subjects, she passed along an obeisant avenue of princes, lords and ambassadors. The bishops of London and Oxford supported her on either side and six daughters of earls bore her train on which were worked emblems of every portion of the British empire.

"Vivat Maria Regina," thrice repeated by the clamant voices of the Westminster schoolboys, broke the silence. It was followed by "Vivat, vivat, vivat," louder still.

To the strains of the anthem, "O, Pray fore Peace," the queen crossed from the north chancel to a seat in the south in front of the royal box and knelt in prayer.

Trumpets Hail King's Coming.

Then silence fell again, to be broken by a second roll of drums and a fanfare of trumpets. The king was coming.

The king was pale but calm, looking neither to the left nor right, as one in a dream.

"Vivat Georgius Rex et Imperator, vivat, vivat, vivat," came a full throated chorus thrice from the Westminster boys. Entering the chancel from the south side the king halted before the queen, who stood behind the faldstool. Husband and wife looked for a moment into each other's eyes and then, after the exchange of a grave bow, the king passed to his own chair beyond the queen's and both knelt in prayer.

The picture in the abbey was now complete. The king and queen in the center of a crescent composed of great ecclesiastical, knightly, and noble dignitaries stood before the congregation which was their realm in microcosm.

Then began the ceremonies which have been handed down for ages.

Magnificent Scene in Abbey.

Perhaps never in history has there been a scene so magnificent as the ancient abbey of Westminster ppresented today.

Apart from the processions, the solemnity and the paraphernalia of state, there was an undercurrent of human interest most appealing.

Queen Mary, although she bore herself with regal stateliness during her crowning, was at first noticeably nervous. While the king was being annointed and crowned, she had her handkerchief at her eyes frequently. The king, when he received the homage of the heir, displayed a father's affection.

The young Prince of Wales evidently was much pleased with himself, for when the younger children passed his chair on entering and made their obeisances he returned their salutes quite in the royalest manner and with apparent delight. The younger princes showed great interest when their sister put on her coronet.

Chaplains First to Enter.

The king's entrance was signalized by the appearance of the chaplains in ordinary, the prebendaries of the abbey in dark crimson copes and the dean. The heraldic and knightly group followed, the pursuivants in medieval array, the officers of the great knightly orders in mantles of purple or blue velvet; the ushers of the scarlet and green rods, heralds in cloth of golf, the blue and gold standard of Ireland, the orange and red of Scotland, the red banner of England, and the flag of the union.

Then came the keeper of the crown jewels, the lord chancellor of Ireland, the archbishop of York, the lord chancellor, and the archbishop of Canterbury.

The Windsor herald ushered in the queen's regalia. Her majesty's crown was carried by the Duke of Devonshire. The Marquess of Waterford bore the scepter with the cross, and the Earl of Durham upheld the ivory rod with the dove.

Entrance of King's Attendance.

The king's own attendants came next, introduced by Richmond herald and two pursuivants with the thirteen bearers of the king's regalia. The bishop of Ripon carried the Bible, the bishop of Winchester the chalice, the bishop of London the patina, the Duke of Northumberland bore St. Edward's crown. The orb was carried by the Duke of Somerset. The Earl of Beauchamp bore the sword of state. The curtana was carried by the Duke of Beaufort. Earl Roberts ("Bobs" still to all England) was intrusted with the second sword, while the other great field marshal of England's modern wars, the Viscount Kitchener of Khartum, held the third sword. The Earl of Loudoun and Lord Grey de Ruthyn appeared with the spurs, the Duke of Argyll with the scepter with the cross, and the Duke of Roxburghe with St. Edward's staff.

In the king's procession also were the standard bearers, holding aloft the flags of the empire. The Marquis of Lanedowne carrried the royal standard. The standard of the union was borne by the Duke of Wellington, the standard of England by Frank S. Dymoke, Esq.; the standard of Scotland by Lieut. Col. Henry Scrymgeour-Wedderburn; the standard of Ireland by The O'Conor Don; the standard of the principality of Wales by Lord Mostyn; the standard of the Empire of India by Lord Curzon of Kedleston; the standard of the Dominion of Canada by the Earl of Aberdeen; the standard of the Commonwealth of Australia by Lord Northcote; the standard of the Dominion of New Zealand by Lord Plunkett, and the standard of the Union of South Africa by the Earl of Selborne.

Queen Stands Before King.

The queen arose as the king approached and remained standing, as did, of course, all others in the abbey, until the king had seated himself by her side on King Edward's chair, the coronation chair. It was made by order of Edward I. and it inclores beneath the seat the famous stone of Scone, the ancient crowing stone of the Scottish kings.

The legend says that it was brought from Ireland in 850 by Kenneth McAlpin of the Irish speaking dynasty. A far older tradition has it that the stone was the one that Jacob used for his pillow when he had the vision of angels ascending and descending between earth and heaven and that it was brought from the east to Tara and thence to Scotland.

The king wore the imperial mantle or pall of crimson. It was the mantle that George IV. attired himself in when he was crowned and the present king selected it in preference to the mantle used by his father, Edward VII. It is a gold braided square mantle which is worn over the other vestments and completes the royal raiment.

The gobling who were the bearers of the king's train were in red and white. The canopy bearers were the Earls of Cadogan, Rosebery, Crewe, and Minto. To the right and left of the king's chair were the bishops of Durham and Bath and Wells with gentlemen at arms. The bishop of Ripon, who bore the Bible; the bishop of Winchester, who carried the chalice, and the bishop of London, who had the patina, took places near the reading desk, while the Earl of Beauchamp, the Duke of Beaufort, Earl Roberts, and Viscount Kitchener stood upon the right of the king.

Cheered by Schoolboys.

The lord chamberlain of the household and the groom of the chambers were placed behind the king's chair. His other immediate attendants were the train bearers, the pages, the Marquis of Hartington, the Earl of Airlie, Viscount Cranborne, Lord Romilly, the Hon. E. G. W. T. Knollys, A. E. Lowther, Esq., W. H. E. Campbell, Esq., and V. A. C Harbord, Esq

When the king first entered he was greeted by the resounding "Vivats" of the Westminster scholars—their ancient privilege. The volume of acclamation swelled instantly to overwhelming force. It quieted presently and the actual service began with Sir Hubert C. H. Parry's fine setting of a portion of the 122d Psalm, "I was glad when they said unto me, We will go into the house of the Lord."

Cries Supplement to Music.

The composition had been so arrranged that the greetings of the Westminster scholars accentuated the music. The greetings, "Vivat Regina Maria!" and "Vivat Rex Georgius!" formed part of the musical scheme, a disciplining of the irresistible impulse of loyal acclamation. And when the final phrases of the psalm "Peace be within thy walls and plenteousness" resounded there came an inspiring burst of "Vivats" that had been properly timed to the score.

According to ancient custom, the ceremony was divided into episodes or periods. The preparation and the reception had passed and now came the recognition for which the great assemblage was waiting tensely.

The king knelt in prayer upon his faldstool and a great silence fell over the assembly. The archbishop of Canterbury turned to the east, and then with the earl marshal, the lord great chamberlain, and the lord high constable proceeded to the other three sides of the theater, south, west, and north, and cried King George's presence to the people. As the archbishop and his company reached each boundary the prelate announced sonorously:

"Sirs, I here present to you King George, the undoubted king of this realm. Wherefore all of you are come this day to do your homage and service, are you willing to do the same?"

King Arises Before Archbishop.

King George arose and stood by his chair as the archbishop cried his presence, turning to the four sides and showing himself to the assembly. After each announcement by the archbishop there was a roaring response of "God save King George!" And over this volume of sound rang the shrill blasts of the silver trumpets and the high voices of the choir.

Almost perfect silence followed. The king seemed perfectly self-possessed. His face was pale and one realized how the solemnity of the ceremony was bearing on him. At no time of light bearing, the king appeared throughout the ceremony unusually serious and thoughtful.

The bishops of Ripon, London, and Winchester placed upon the altar the Bible, the chalice, and the patina. The lords who carried the other portions of the regalia—the Dukes of Northumberland, Somerset, Richmond, Beaufort, and Roxburghe; Earls Beauchamp, Roberts, Loudoun, and Durham; Viscount Kitchener and the Marquis of Waterford delivered in turn to the archbishop their burdens, and the archbishop handed each article to the Dean of Westminster, who laid it on the altar.

King and Queen Kneel.

The king and queen knelt while two bishops, vested in copes and kneeling at a faldstool on the middle of the east side of the theater, sang the litany, to which the responses were made by the choir. Line by line the familiar words of the prayer reached clearly to the farthest boundaries of the nave. There were invocations that seemed of striking appropriateness in the making of a king: "From all blindness of heart; from pride, vainglory, and hypocrisy; from envy, hatred, and malice, and all uncharitableness, good lord, deliver us."

At the conclusion of the litany the archbishop began the communion service with this prayer:

"O, God, who providest for thy people by thy power, and rulest over them in love, grant unto this, thy servant George, our king, the spirit of wisdom and government, that, being devoted unto thee with all his heart, he may so wisely govern this kingdom that in his time thy church and thy people may continue in safety and prosperity; and that, persevering in good works unto the end, he may, through thy mercy, come to thine everlasting kingdom; through Jesus Christ, our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, ever one God, world without end."

Epistle Read by Bishop.

The epistle, read by a bishop, was from I. Peter, ii., 13:

"Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake, whether it be to the king as supreme or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well. For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men; as free, and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God. Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king.

While the king and queen and the assemblage stood the gospel II. Matthew, xxii., 15, was read:

"Then went the Pharisees and took counsel how they might entangle him in his talk. And they sent out unto him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, 'Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth; neither carest thou for any man, for thou regardest not the person of men. Tell us, therefore, what thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cesar or not?' But Jesus perceived their wickedness, and said: 'Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites? Shew me the tribute money.' And they brought unto him a penny. And he saith unto them: 'Render therefore unto Cesar the things which are Cesar's, and unto God the things that are God's.' When they had heard these words they marveled, and left him and went their way."

King Covers His Head.

While all in the abbey remained standing the creed was sung. At its conclusion the Archbishop of York delivered from a pulpit at the northeast corner a short sermon suitable to the great occasion. As soon as the sermon began the king, who had remained uncovered during the singing of the litany and communion service, replaced on his head his cap of crimson velvet turned up with ermine.

The archbishop of York's sermon had as its text:

"I am among you as he that serveth."

"Pray we for our king," he said, "that his strong trust in God may keep him faithful to Gods great trust in him—to be among the people in this home land, among the multitudes of India, among the strong young nations over the seas, the one man raised above private and local interests, to think of all, to care for all, to unite all in one fellowship of common memories, common ideals, common sacrifices. This is indeed a kingly life. Pray we that God may give the king his grace to live it."

Oath Taken by George.

The time had now come for the king to take the oath. He had already, on Feb. 6, 1901, made the declaration prescribed. The archbishop, standing before the king's chair, said:

"Sir, is your majesty willing to take the oath?"

The king in a firm voice answered: "I am willing."

While the archbishop asked the necessary questions King George, holding a book in his hands, made the replies that are required.

THE ARCHBISHOP—Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of this United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the dominions thereto belonging, according to the statutes in parliament agreed on, and the respective laws and customs of the same?

THE KING—I solemnly promise so to do.

THE ARCHBISHOP—Will you to your full power cause law and justice, in mercy, to be executed in all your judgments?

THE KING—I will.

THE ARCHBISHOP—Will you to the utmost of your power maintain the laws of God, the true profession of the gospel, and the Protestant reformed religion established by law? And will you maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the Church of England and the doctrine, worship, discipline, and government thereof as by law established in England? And will you preserve unto the bishops and clergy of England, and to the churches there committed to their charge all such rights and privileges as by law do or shall appertain to them or any of them?

THE KING—All this I promise to do.

Repeats Oath Before Altar.

The king arose from his chair, supported by the bishops of Durham and of Bath and Wells, and assisted by the lord great chamberlain, and went to the altar, the Earl Beauchamp carrying before him the sword of state. He removed his crimson cap, laid his right hand on the great Bible which was carried in the procession and which was tendered to him by the archbishop before the altar and took the oath as he kneeled. This was the form:

"The things which I have here before promised I will perform and keep. So help me God."

He then bent his head reverently and kissed the book, afterward signing with a bold, firm signature the same oath on parchment. Then the king returned to his chair and knelt at his faldstool. The choir sang the "Veni Creator Spiritus," the archbishop leading with:

Come Holy Ghost, our souls inspire,
And lighten with celestial fire.
Thou the anointing spirit art,
Who dost Thy sevenfold gifts impart.

Prayer by Archbishop.

At the conclusion of the "Veni Creator" the archbishop prayed, saying:

"O Lord, Holy Father, who by anointing with old didst of old make and consecrate kings, priests, and prophets, to teach and govern thy people Israel: Bless and sanctify thy chosen servant George, who by our office and ministry is now to be anointed with this oil and consecrated king of this realm: Strengthen him, O Lord, with the Holy Ghost, the Comforter; confirm and establish him with thy free and princely spirit, the spirit of wisdom and government, the spirit of counsel and Ghostly strength, the spirit of knowledge and true godliness, and fill him, O Lord, with the spirit of thy holy fear, now and forever!"

As the deep "Amen" of the choir died away the king prepared for the anointing. The choir raised their voices in Handel's "Zadok the Priest"—"Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anointed Solomon the king." The most impressive episode of the coronation had been reached. There was complete silence throughout the tiers and galleries. The king arose from his devotions and was disrobed of his mantle by the lord great chamberlain. He removed his cap of state and attended by the two bishops went before the altar.

Sits in Edward's Chair.

King Edward's chair—that ancient support of the pious confessor with the scone stone inclosed in it—was carried to the altar and a faldstool placed before it. The king sat down. Over him the Earls of Cadogan, Rosebery, Crewe, and Minto, all knights of the garter, held a rich canopy of cloth of gold.

The Dean of Westminster took from the altar the ampulla and spoon, the former a golden vessel in the shape of a bird with outstretched wings, which held the coronation oil, the latter a spoon of silver heavily gilded. Its ornamentation is said to have been executed in the twelfth century, and the spoon has been used, as far as is known, at the coronation of all English monarchs since that time.

From the ampulla the archbishop poured oil into the spoon. Then he anointed the king.

The Supreme Moment of the Coronation Ceremony: Archbishop of Canterbury Crowning the King.

[Adapted from drawings by eminent English artists at the time of King Edward's coronation, and modified in accordance with changes in detail as noted by THE TRIBUNE'S correspondents by cable.]

All the regal ornaments having been presented to the sovereign, and his majesty having received the historic vestments, the supreme moment of the ceremony, the crowning of the anointed king, arrived. The archbishop, going to the altar, took the crown into his hands, and, replacing it, recited the prayer—"O, Lord, the Crown of the Faithful: Bless we beseech Thee and sanctify this Thy servant George our king." This finished, the primate approached King George's chair, assisted by bishops, while the dean of Westminster, supported by the sub-dean, removed the final emblem of regality from the altar and brought it to the archbishop, who slowly raised it with both hands and placed it upon the king's head. Instantly the abbey was ablaze with light, the peers assumed their coronets, and the kings-of-arms their crowns, a cry of "God Save the King" arose, and the trumpets sounded, while from the distance could be heard the peal of joy-bells and the boom of saluting guns.

and the spoon on the altar. The archbishop blessed the king, who then arose and resumed his chair. The knights of the garter gave back the canopy to the lord great chamberlain.

Dons Robes and Spurs.

The Dean of Westminster came forward and placed upon the king's shoulders the colobium sindonis, a simple lawn garment resembling a surplice, and the supertunica, a loose, coat like vestment of cloth of gold with wide sleeves. It met in front just below the throat and fell straight to the feet, completely enveloping King George.

From the altar the dean brought the golden spurs, which were handed to the lord great chamberlain. He knelt down, touched the king's heels with them and sent them back to the altar. The Earl of Beauchamp gave to the lord great chamberlain the sword of state and received from him a sword in a scabbard of purple velvet which the king was to wear away from the coronation. Lord Beauchamp handed this sword to the archbishop, who laid it on the altar and made this prayer:

"Hear our prayers, O Lord, we beseech thee, and so direct and support thy servant King George, who is now to be girt with this sword, that he may not bear it in vain, but may use it as the minister of God for the terror and punishment of evildoers and for the protection and encouragement of those that do well, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Royal Sword Girt On.

The archbishop lifted the sword from the altar and delivered it into the king's right hand. The Archbishop of York and the Bishops of London and Winchester assisted the Archbishop of Canterbury in this part of the ceremony.

The archbishop said as the king received the sword:

"Receive this kingly sword, brought now from the altar of God and delivered to you by the hands of us, the bishops and servants of God, though unworthy."

The sword was girt about the king as he stood up, and when he sat again the archbishop admonished him to use the sword for justice, to stop iniquity, and to help and defend widows and orphans. The king stood up, ungirt the sword, made his way to the altar, and offered it there. By ancient custom it was redeemed for the price of 100 shillings by a peer of the realm. During the rest of the ceremony it was carried naked before the king by the nobleman who had the privilege of redeeming it.

Next came the investing with the armil and royal robe and the delivery of the orb. The master of the robes handed the armil to the dean, who put it upon the king as the latter stood. It is a richly embroidered stole of cloth of gold three inches wide. The king sat down again and the archbishop placed in his hands the golden orb, which blazed with magnificent jewels. He was admonished to remember, when looking at the orb, that the whole world is subject to the power and empire of Christ. The king returned the orb to the dean, who laid it on the altar.

Actual Crowning of George.

The investiture per annulum et baculum followed. The keeper of the jewel house delivered to the archbishop the ring, which the archbishop placed on the fourth finger of the king's right hand as "the ensign of kingly dignity and of defense of the catholic faith." The Dean of Westminster handed to the archbishop the scepter with the cross and the scepter with the dove, together with the glove which was presented by the lord of the manor of Worksop. The scepter was conferred as the emblem of kingly power, the scepter with the dove as the emblem of equity and mercy.

The supreme moment of the coronation came next, the actual crowning of the new sovereign. Standing before the altar, the Archbishop of Canterbury raised the golden emblem of England's monarchy and made a short prayer that George might be crowned with princely virtues as well as with a crown of gold. The king having seated himself, the archbishops, with the bishops and the dean, brought the crown from the altar. The archbishop reverently placed it on the king's head.

At that instant came the deep booming of the guns in the tower of London. The trumpets blared loudly. The peers placed their coronets on their heads. The assemblage took up the shout "God save the king!" which resounded for minutes.

Prayer for Good Work.

"God crown you," said the archbishop when quiet came again, "with a crown of glory and righteousness, that by the ministry of this, our benediction, having a right faith and manifold fruit of good works, you may obtain the crown of an everlasting kingdom by the gift of him whose kingdom endureth forever."

The choir sang the "Confortare": "Be strong and play the man; keep the commandments of the Lord thy God and walk in his ways."

The Bible was presented to the king, who delivered it back to the archbishop. It was placed on the altar. The archbishop then pronounced the benediction:

"The Lord bless you and keep you, and as he hath made you king over his people, so may he prosper you in this world and make you partaks of his eternal felicity in the world to come.

"The Lord give you a fruitful country and healthful seasons, victorious fleets and armies and a quiet empire; a faithful senate, wise and upright counselors and magistrates, a loyal nobility and a dutiful gentry; a pious and learned clergy; an honest, peaceable, and obedient commonalty."

Enthroned and Given Homage.

The enthronization took place immediately. The archbishops, bishops, and peers ascended the king to the five stepped throne. Technically he was "lifted up into it" by these officers of the kingdom. The bearers of regalia, the clergy, and the great nobles stood about the throne while the archbishop exhorted the king to hold fast forever the seat and state of royal dignity.

The final episode of the coronation of George V. was the homage of the princes and peers. As soon as the archbishop's exhortation was concluded the archbishop himself knelt at the foot of the throne while the rest of the bishops knelt in their places. In order that the ceremony might be shortened the archbishop made homage for his order:

"I, Randall, Archbishop of Canterbury (the other bishops repeating the form of oath after the introduction of their own names and titles simultaneously with the archbishop), will be faithful and true, and faith and truth will bear unto you, our sovereign lord, and your heirs, kings of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the Brittish dominions beyond the seas, defenders of the faith and Emperors of India. And I will do and truly acknowledge the service of the lands which I claim to hold of you as in right of the church, so help me God."

Prince Honors His Father.

The archbishop arose and kissed the king's right cheek. Then the young Prince of Wales, taking off his coronet, knelt down at his father's knees, the rest of the princes of the blood royal kneeling in their places, and pronounced the words of homage for this company. They were:

"I do become your liege man of life and limb and of earthly worship; and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die against all manner of folks, so help me God."

The princes in turn kissed the king's left cheek and touched the crown on his head. The peers of the realm, in the order of their rank, removed their coronets and did homage, the dukes first by themselves, then the marquesses, the earls, the viscounts, and the barons, the first of each order kneeling before King George, and the others of his order who were near the king kneeling in their places. They kissed the king on the left cheek and touched the crown.

The homage anthem, composed by Sir Frederick Bridge, was "Rejoice in the Lord, O Ye Righteous." As it ended there was a tremendous ruffle of drums, a fanfare from the trumpets, and a great shout from the assemblage:

God save King George!
Long live King George!
May the king live forever!

Consecration of Queen Mary.

The king now became a spectator himself. The moment had come for the consecration of Queen Mary. Wearing her velvet and ermine, a jeweled circlet and velvet cap, she had remained seated on the south side of the altar. Now she arose, supported by two bishops, her ladies in waiting, and the peeresses whom she had chosen as her attendants, and whose duty it was to carry over her the canopy of gold. The Duchesses of Hamilton, Portland, Sutherland, and Montrose, envied, O, how keenly, by the other noblewomen there today, performed this function.

At the altar the Archbishop of York prayed for God's blessing upon Queen Mary, and asked that she be made an example of virtue and piety. The queen arose and went before the altar for the anointing. She knelt at her faldstool between the steps and King Edward's chair. As the duchesses held over her the canopy of gold the archbishop anointed the crown of her head, placed the queen's ring upon the fourth finger of her right hand, and then set the crown upon her head.

At this moment all the peeresses simultaneously raised their coronets to their heads. The archbishop gave the queen her scepter and, the ivory rod with the dove, and prayed that Mary of England might adorn the high dignity she had obtained. As the queen returned to take her place upon her throne she bowed reverently before King George, who inclined his head. Without further ceremony she was conducted to her throne and assisted to the seat.

Royal Pair Before Altar.

The deep toned organ sent forth the notes of Edward Elgar's "O Hearken Thou," the communion psalm. The choir sang the offertory. In the meanwhile the king and queen delivered their scepters to the lords who had previously borne them, descended from their thrones, attended by bishops and nobles, and knelt at the steps of the altar, removing their crowns.

The king then offered for the communion use bread and wine which had been brought out of St. Edward's chapel. This was received by the archbishop, placed upon the altar and covered with linen cloth. A prayer followed and then the king, still kneeling, made oblation of an altar cloth and a wedge of gold of a pound weight. The archbishop received these and placed them upon the altar. The queen then offered an altar cloth and "a mark weight of gold."

The communion celebration having been made in prescribed form, the king and queen, having both partaken of the bread and wine, again put on their crowns and returned to their thrones. They knelt while the archbishop prayed for "the whole state of Christ's church militant here on earth." He prayed that under George V. the country might be quietly and godlily governed, that the wicked be punished, the virtutous maintained, and religion and virtue protected.

Benediction on Great Crowd.

The archbishop raised his hands over the great assemblage and pronounced the benediction, repeating "The peace of God which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord. And the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost be amongst you and remain with you always."

The Te Deum now boomed out. Sir C. Hubert H. Parry composed the music for the majestic words of divine praise. With its singing the coronation service came to an end. The king, attended and accompanied as before, the swords being carried in front of him, and carrying the rod and the scepter in his hands, went into the area eastward of the theater and passed through the door on the south side of the altar into St. Edward's chapel.

As the king's attendants went by the altar the dean of Westminster delivered to them one by one the regalia each had carried into the abbey in the king's procession. Simultaneously the queen, accompanied by her ladies, descended from her throne and entered the chapel by the door on the north side of the altar, bearing her scepter in her right hand and her ivory rod in her left.

Scepter Placed on Altar.

In the chapel the king gave his scepter to the dean of Westminster, who laid it upon the altar. The golden spurs and St. Edward's staff were placed with the scepter. The king was relieved of the cumbersome robes of ceremony and arrayed in purple velvet. The archbishop placed in his left hand the golden orb.

From the earliest hours of the morning the streets over which the royal party was to pass were lined deep with crowds. The front rows were made up of those who had remained there throughout the night. Even at dawn some had found the vigil too trying and either retired or required the attention of the ambulances.

Both routes of the procession were filled long before the troops reached their places. The early arrival of cavalry, accompanied by bands, afforded almost as interesting a show as the procession itself, and then came royal carriages and coaches taking robed and uniformed men and daintily dressed women to the abbey for the ceremony.

Procession with Royal Coach.

At 10:30 o'clock a royal salute announced the departure of the king and queen from the palace, and the most gorgeous of the processions, the one in which, naturally, the greatest interest lay, made its way through the troop lined streets, a wave of cheering spread from one end of the route to the other. The sun made an attempt to break through the clouds, and partly succeeded, so that the people were able to watch the progress of the king without discomfort.

A wonderful display of uniforms preceded the royal coach. After the guard of honor around the carriages of their majesties and suites came the king's Indian orderlies mounted, in silken robes covered with decorations, the volunteer, regular, and naval aids de camp to field marshals and generals, yeomen of the guard, equerries and honorary Indian aid de camp in variety of uniforms, picturesque and brilliant.

The arrival of their majesties at the abbey was the signal for a shout of greeting, which was continued until they were lost to view, and then repeated as Kitchener or some other hero was recognized.

Return to the Palace.

The reappearance of the king and queen in the streets after the ceremony furnished occasion for a renewal of the demonstrations manifested over two miles of the three mile procession. This took them for their first view of bedizened and outrageously bedecked old London. Although that description is not known to be the opinion accorded by the king and queen to the garish decorations, turkey red is the color splashed most liberally into the background of this most amazingly varied color scheme.

Under lights reflected from these, the king and queen basked on their return to Buckingham palace. It doubtless is justly pointed out that the human element was dominant on the return journey, but London wits says if the clashing colors on cheap foundations of wood, oiled paper, and twill did not make more noise than a million throats, it is due to the grayness of the day which mercifully obscured some things.

A dinner party at Buckingham palace closed the sovereigns' eventful day. It was a quiet affair compared with the state banquets earlier in the week. The guests were the members of foreign royal families who are actually staying at Buckingham palace, including the nearer relatives of the king and queen.

WHEELS STOP AT SUNSET.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 23, 3 a. m.—The combined blaze of millions of electric globes and gas flares tonight threw a reflection on the sky above London that was visible for a long distance. It gave outside watchers a faint idea of the dazzling glare that illuminated the streets where hundreds of thousands of coronation celebrants tramped to and fro winding up the strenuous day.

From Hyde Park corner, the Bank of England, the main thoroughfares, especially the processional routes, blazed with light. Wheel traffic was stopped about 7 and the roadways were given up to the people, who ceaselessly passed east and west in two steady streams.

Movement Extremely Slow.

The movement early in the evening was extremely slow, especially in the brightest spots, but the people seemed possessed of imperturbable patience and were determined to see everything. Rain fell lightly a good part of the evening, but the crowd was not thinned out until nearly midnight, and it then rapidly melted.

The signal was given from the Crystal palace at 10 o'clock to light up the bonfires in Great Britain from Land's End to John O'Groat's.

Asquith's Son Acts as Official.

Prime Minister Asquith's 9 year old son Anthony acted as the official. He started the fires by telephoning from Downing street to the palace, whereupon an enormous magnesium star was sent up.

Immediately the star arose the watchers on beacons in the neighboring heights fired fuel piled high, and soon the flares thereof were soon on other heights. These were ignited, and so on until more than 2,000 fires blazed from Britain's hilltops.

GREAT GAINS BY NATION.

LONDON, June 23, 3 a. m.—Frederic Harrison, the noted jurist and writer, who saw the coronation of Queen Victoria in 1838, considers that no period in English history affords an example of such enormous changes and portentous growth as the three generations since Victoria's accession. Yesterday's spectacle was a visible representation of the over-seas dominions.

He was struck by the proof that the monarchy is personally more popular than it was at Victoria's accession, and that the bitterness of class antagonism is less evident, while to the man in the street the unity of the king's dominions is of real and potent interest.

HAMMOND LAUDS GOOD PLANS.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—John Hays Hammond, the special American ambassador, said:

"There is nothing like it in history for magnificence. What impressed me most was the systematization. There was no delay and no discomfort. Everything went like clockwork. I did not carry my card, as Lord Sandhurst, the civil attaché assigned to me, said it was unnecessary. Therefore I did not know my seat. Mr. Sing of the foreign office said when I told him this:

"'Don't worry. They won't let you get too close to the throne. Go as far as you can until they stop you.'

"I followed his advice and found my seat about fifteen feet from the throne. Mrs. Hammond also was advantageously accommodated."

BUS AND CAR TRAFFIC LIGHT.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—Omnibus and tram car officials are the most disappointed persons in London. They had made elaborate and thorough preparations in anticipation of abnormal traffic to London. Their forethought was in vain from the viewpoint of profit bearing. The people were frightened by the warnings in newspapers. Thousands, of course, traveled by bus and tram, but there were not nearly enough to fill the frequent trains, many of which were practically empty.

SPLENDOR SHINES IN QUEEN'S DRESS

Coronation Robe More Beautiful than That Worn in Any Previous Fete.

ALL MADE IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, June 22.—Queen Mary's coronation gown, as well as those worn by all the women of the royal household, outshone anything which has been seen in previous celebrations of this kind in England. Much of this splendor was due to the work of the queen herself, as she personally chose every item.

In this work the queen received the aid of the Duchess of Devonshire, mistress of the robes, who was responsible for the safe arrival of the royal garments and their care until time for their use.

It was her majesty's wish that everything worn should be of British manufacture, and much of the material has been specially woven for the occasion.

National Emblems in Dress.

Her majesty's dress is not only beautiful in general effect but splendidly achieves the special object of introducing a number of national and imperial emblems into the design without any sacrifice of grace or elegance.

There are two separate parts—the dress proper and the robe which completes it. The dress is of the princess type (with skirt and bodice in one piece), and the skirt has a moderately long train of its own. But over the skirt train trails the magnificent robe, which, depending from the shoulders, stretches away for eighteen feet.

Her majesty has a tall, commanding figure, but even so, there will be well over four yards of trail when the robe is in wear.

The effect of having a moderately long and amply wide self-train to the dress is that the dress and robe trains cannot become separated as the wearer walks, but blend harmoniously together, the rich fabric of the gown showing on either side of the equally rich but totally different material of the robe, and being effectually held in position by the superior weight of the latter.

Deep Ivory Duchesse Satin.

The dress is of deep ivory duchesse satin, made in England. The weavers of the fabric are Messrs. Warner of Braintree, and the design and making of the dress were intrusted to Messrs. Reville and Rossiter of Hanover square, but the embroidery was done by the ladies of the Princess Louise Needlework school in Sloane street.

This embroidery is truly wonderful work, and shows up all the more effectually because of the simplicity of the style of gown on which it is placed.

The pattern introduces the English rose, the Scottish thistle, the Irish shamrock, the star of India, the lotus lily of India, and English oak leaves and acorns. All these emblems are worked in finest gold thread, and in order to produce the desired effects of light and shade eight or ten different threads have been used.

The lower edge or border of the design, almost corresponding with the edge of the skirt, is of oak leaves and acorns. Above this is a band of gold embroidery cunningly worked so as to simulate water. This is intended to represent "Seas of Empire," on which float lotus lilies.

The water band and its oak leaf edging extend completely round the skirt. Springing from the upper edge are stems of roses and thistles rising towards and culminating in a magnificent Tudor rose at the center of the corsage. Widely separated at their bases, the stems bend gracefully inward, and at intervals blooms are thrown out.

Star of India Used.

The star of India and the shamrock are so skillfully introduced into the design as not to appear in any way incongruous or to mar the general effect of growing plants. The frontal design is reproduced on the back of the skirt.

The bodice is cut low and is edged with gold shamrocks. The sleeves are short—reaching barely to the wearer's elbows—and have "v" shaped openings on their outer sides. The two sections of each sleeve are caught together by huge thistles worked in the finest of gold thread.

The low cut of the bodice gives ample room for the introduction of a tucker of most exquisite lace, which is inset in two layers. The outer one is of delicate gold thread, hand woven into a splendid lace, while the inner one is of real Innishmacsaint. A white edge of the latter shows above the gold lace and gives a delightfully soft and charming finish.

Filmy hand made lace of fine gold thread, exactly similar to that on the bodice, is used for trimming the sleeves, which are bordered with tiny oak leaves.

The material of the robe, or larger train, is silk velvet, and the utmost care has been taken to secure the true "royal" shade of purple.

The embroidery is in gold thread, as in the case of the dress, and the idea of the introductions of national emblems has been adhered to.

Robe Six Yards in Length.

Fully extended, the robe measures six yards by a yard and a half, so that there is upon the ground a spread of something between fifty and sixty square feet of rich background on which the designers and embroiderers were able to work.

The rose, shamrock, and thistle are cleverly blended on this superb train, the ornamentations being somewhat sparse on the depending section of the robe, but gradually becoming closer and more harmonized from the ground level outwards, culminating in a most elaborate and effective design, with a crown above the queen's monogram for a centerpiece.

The connected design occupies about six lineal feet of the train. With such artistic skill has the pure gold thread been worked into the velvet that the "M" and the crown appear to be superimposed upon a delicate framework of shamrock leaves.

This exquisite central figure of the design is inclosed by roses and thistles, the leaves and blooms of which are all wrought in the gold thread, except the tips of the thistle blooms, into which fine silk thread has been introduced, giving a most realistic representation of the delicate purple tinge to be found on the fully opened natural bloom.

Oak Leaves in Gold.

The edge of the embroidery comprises rose medallions connected by chains of oak leaves and acorns. The whole border is outlined on its inner face by representations of tender oak sprays just bursting into bud, and on its outer face by a plain narrow band of gold lace. The effect of all this elaborate gold work on the rich purple ground is superb.

The robe is lined throughout its whole length with ermine, and for every white skin used to form the lining there is the tiny black tail of the animal. To cover so large an area many hundreds of skins were required, and care has been taken to select only the best.

The ermine lining is much wider than the robe, and this arrangement allows a deep turning to form an effective outer edge of the velvet.

The cape, which is of regulation shape and depth (about eighteen inches from the shoulders) is also of ermine.

The "robe" is fastened to the dress at the shoulders by strong hooks, but its weight is so great as to make natural trailing by the wearer a difficult if not impossible feat, and at the coronation at least three pairs of trainbearers will carry it by looped ribbons or other carriers passed beneath it.

Incidents and Features of Coronation.

LONDON, June 22.—Queen Mary's twenty foot train was carried by six young noblewomen instead of by eight small pages, as Queen Alexandra's was. They were dressed more somberly than the other participants, so that the queen's appearance would be emphasized. Lady Mary Dawson, daughter of the Countess of Darbey, Lady Mabell Ogilvy, daughter of the Countess of Airlie; Lady Victoria Carrington, daughter of Countess Carrington; Lady Eileen Butler, daughter of the Countess of Lanesborough; Lady Eileen Knox, daughter of the Countess of Ranpurly, and Lady Dorothy Browne, daughter of the Countess of Kenmare, were the young women chosen by Queen Mary.

The king and queen were married July 6, 1893, their betrothal being announced soon after the death of the king's brother, the Duke of Clarence, to whom Mary was affianced. She was the Princess Victoria Mary of Teck, and is the first queen of England to be born on English soil since the reign of Henry VIII.

J. Pierpont Morgan caused much more stir as he entered the abbey than did the only other unofficial Americans present, the family of Charles P. Taft, brother of the president. Mr. Morgan was so awed by his environment that when a number of his acquaintances spoke to him he did not hear them, and remained silently staring at the spectacle. Both men wore swords and knee breeches.

The king's regalia was carried by the highest nobles of the kingdom, attended by their pages. The Bible was borne by the bishop of Ripon, the chalice by the bishop of Winchester, the paten by the bishop of London, steward's crown by the bishop of Northumberland, the orb by the Duke of Somerset, the scepter by the Duke of Richmond, the sword of state by Earl Beauchamp, the second sword by Earl Roberts, the third sword by Viscount Kitchener, the golden spurs by the Earl of Loudoun and Lord Grey de Ruthyn, the scepter with cross by the Duke of Argyll, and St. Edward's staff by the Duke of Roxburghe. The Duchess of Roxburghe, being an American, did not participate.

Court etiquette denied the queen mother, Alexandra, the privilege of seeing her son crowned. She spent the day at Sandringham, waiting the details of the ceremony which made him the sixth of the Hanoverian dynasty of English kings.

The queen's bouquet was of pink carnations, presented to her by the Gardeners' company, one of the ancient guilds of the city of London. The flowers were of the species known as Lady Hermione, a purely English variety.

The crown placed on King George's head is of solid gold, studded with precious stones of inestimable value, including 3,000 diamonds, 300 pearls, and hundreds of rubies, emeralds, and sapphires. The queen's crown contains the famous Koh-i-Noor diamond with its legend of bringing good luck.

The Duchesses of Portland, Sutherland, Hamilton, and Montrose, all young and handsome, carried the canopy over Queen Mary. Her most intimate attendant was the Duchess of Devonshire, mistress of the robes.

The carpet upon which the king walked measured 700 square yards and was of soft, rich blue in color. Woven in it were festoons of bay leaves of a lighter shade encircling the insignia and mottoes of the Order of the Garter, the Tudor rose, the thistle, the shamrock, and the lotus.

The Countess of Craven, one of the American peeresses, wore the most costly coronet. Her mother, Mrs. Bradley-Martin, paid $250,000 for it at the crowning of King Edward.

The increased cost of living in England was indicated in the prices paid for seats in the procession stands. Places that sold on King Edward's day for from $5 to $40, brought from $10 to $125 yesterday.

MEMORABLE SCENE AT PALACE: SOLDIERS JOIN IN CHEERING.

Military Men on Guard at Buckingham Forget Duty to Hail Newly Crowned King and Queen.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—The scene at Buckingham palace when the sovereigns appeared on the balcony was a memorable one. The king appeared first, wearing his crown and robes. He then handed out the queen, who also wore her crown and coronation robes.

The effect was electrical. A large part of the crowd had begun to move away, thinking it was all over, but hearing the cheers, turned in a tumultuous rush and a roar of acclamation arose. This was taken up by the throngs along the Mall, from which the balcony is visible for a great distance.

The excitement was communicated to the troops and resulted in an unusual incident. British soldiers on guard duty are not supposed to demonstrate their feelings, but to stand motionless. In this case the soldiers were either from over the seas or else they forgot their discipline or judged that the occasion warranted a breach and they joined in the cheering and waved their rifles. The officers stood out for a while, but soon caught the contagion, waved their swords vigorously and added their hurrahs. The scene was unparalleled by any recent ceremony and the sovereigns bowed low again and again.

PEERS, PEERESSES DASH FOR LUNCH

Roast Beef of Old England Served in St. Stephen's Hall After Coronation.

AMERICANS TO THE FORE.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—At the conclusion of the services in the abbey, peers and peeresses and members of parliament and their wives rushed out and went to St. Stephen's hall in search of lunch. The peers, unceremoniously, carried their robes in bundles on their arms and their coronets in their hands. The peeresses removed their coronets.

The scene at the luncheon was a brilliant one. The gowns of the women of many hued silks and their superb jewels, the men's uniforms, court dress, and silken robes of office, together with the peers' velvet, had a wonderful effect in the hall, where the dull stone floor and walls offset everything. Around the walls on platforms, old fashioned white dressed carvers cut huge barons of beef, which had been especially cooked on spits. This, with salads, strawberries and cream, satisfied the aristocratic hunger.

Morgan's Niece Hostess.

Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, niece of J. Pierpont Morgan, wore a blue brocade gown with diamante lace and dog collar, a tiara of diamonds, feathers and a court veil. She gave a luncheon to a party of members of parliament. Her husband is the colonial secretary.

Mrs. Waldorf Astor, formerly Mrs. Nannie Langhorne Shaw, had a private table in the members' room. She wore a dress of white, trimmed with silver and diamonds.

Mrs. Hugh Spender Clay, formerly Pauline Astor, who was also in white with diamonds, was among a large and jolly party.

Lady Acheson, formerly Mildred Carter, daughter of the American minister to the Balkan states, wore a white lace dress under her robes. She did not give a luncheon at her house.

Americans everywhere seemed to be even more enthusiastic than the Britishers and more impressed by the pageant.

In Gold and White Brocade.

Mrs. Almeric Paget, formerly Pauline Whitney of New York, gave a luncheon to a party in the house of commons restaurant. She wore a gown and train of gold and white brocade with bands of gold embroidery.

The Countess of Craven, formerly Miss Cornelia Martin of New York, wore white over silver tissue. She was one of those who went home after the ceremony. Lady Innes-Ker, formerly Miss Breese of New York, and Mrs. Batjan did likewise.

At 7 o'clock in the morning, the house of common breakfast rooms were crowded with the wives of members of parliament in elaborate evening gowns and wearing diamond tiaras, feathers and court veils. Six hundred breakfasts were served.

CROWD SHOWS GOOD TEMPER.

Even the Grimy Street Sweepers in Whitechapel Cheer the Stately Equipages on Way to Coronation.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—The temper of all the crowds in the course of today's celebration was admirable, even among the tired residents of Whitechapel.

The mirth was increased by the readiness of the distinguished persons in the carriages to take the acclaim to themselves and to bow in complacent acknowledgment.

There was no objection to this sort of thing, but when a motor containing a pompous general with his family chanced to take the wrong route, a watchful official swept down upon the motor and instantly made the indignant and protesting soldier right-about face.

ROYAL DRIVE VICTORIA'S IDEA

Progress Through London Begun at Diamond Jubilee.

POOR GET VIEW OF RULERS.

Great Demonstration for George and Mary Expected.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

King George, in making a royal progress through London today for the purpose of showing himself and his consort to those of his lieges who were unable to obtain a glimpse of him on his way to and from Westminister abbey yesterday, is following the example set by his father, Edward VII. and first inaugurated by his grandmother, Queen Victoria, on the occasion of her diamond jubilee.

She was far advanced in years, being nearly 80, and frail and infirm. But it occurred to her that it was unfair that all those subjects of hers who lived in that portion of London that lies in Surrey, on the southern side of the Thames, should have no glimpse of their ruler, and the principal feature of that drive was not her progress up the Strand and through the city, but after she had crossed London bridge and was returning through Southwark and via Westminster bridge back to the palace.

Welcome Was Enthusiastic.

It was her own initiative, and so enthusiastic was the welcome she received from her subjects in these, the poorer quarters of the metropolis, that her son and grandson have adopted this progress through London as a feature of their coronations.

It may safely be taken for granted that King George and Queen Mary will receive quite as great a demonstration in Southwark as his parents and as his grandmother; and the enthusiasm with which he has of late been received by the masses whenever he has had occasion to show himself in public has had the effect of causing the disappearance of that species of constraint, seriousness, and reserve which formerly distinguished him.

This absence of graciousness in public was due in part to the naval discipline in which he had been trained, and also to a belief that the slanders relating to his alleged morganatic marriage had affected the good will of the people toward him. The crowds, on their side, were chilled by his seeming indifference.

Now Pleased at Plaudits.

Now, however, an understanding seems to have been effected between the sovereign and his people, especially since his popular appeal for fair play, when he brought the matter of his alleged secret marriage into open court last winter as an ordinary citizen and cleared himself. On the first occasion when he showed himself after that the crowd gave him a demonstration, as if to atone for having previously misjudged him.

George accepted the professed good will and today he manifests no longer any coldness, but a cordial and gracious pleasure in the acclamations of the crowd. Indeed, he shows an unfeigned gratification in being at close quarters with his subjects, especially those in the humbler walks of life, and the old time look of indifference has been replaced by a smile that is particularly winning and attractive, and which recalls that of his grandmother, Queen Victoria.

The latter's face was terribly austere and severe in repose, an impression of ill humor being created by the droop of the corners of the mouth. But her whole face lighted up when she smiled, and it has always been a subject of regret to those who knew her best that none of her pictures shows her in the act of smiling or of laughing.

Face Attractive When Smiling.

King George's face, like that of his grandmother, is not at its best in repose. Indeed, it gives rise to misconceptions concerning his character, and it is only when he smiles, as he often does now, that his whole appearance lights up, and that his face becomes attractive. He may be counted upon to smile, and to return with unwonted geniality the acclamations of the crowds through which he will pass today, and they in their turn will be all the more sympathetic in their manifestations of loyal affection and regard, because they feel that they owe him a sort of reparation for their former suspicions and misconceptions concerning him.

King George and Queen Mary will be received today at the entrance of the city, where Temple Bar formerly stood, by the principal city dignitaries, headed by the lord mayor of London, the city remembrancer, the city marshal, the recorder, etc.

To Be Met by Lord Mayor.

Even the sovereign, in theory, is bound to obtain and receive the lord mayor's permission before he can enter and pass through the city of London, and it is for this purpose that the lord mayor will meet him at the entrance and will proffer to him not only the keys of gates that no longer exist but the ancient sword of state, dating from the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and which is the emblem of the sovereignty of the lord mayor within the city limits. He will offer the sword to the king in token of fealty and of the fact that he temporarily surrenders his sovereignty to the monarch. The king will lightly touch it, and will then return it to the lord mayor.

The lord mayor will be arrayed for the occasion not in his customary gold-laced robes of state but in the robes of an earl of the realm. He is entitled to wear these robes and to rank as an earl only during the presence of his sovereign within the precincts of the city.

Fortunately the present mayor is an excellent horseman, and has a secure seat in the saddle. There have been chief magistrates of the city of London who have not possessed the accomplishment of equestrianism, and whose misfortunes in the saddle have sadly interfered with their dignity on such occasions as these.

CROWNING WAKES UP PAPERS.

London Press Prints Many Pictures of Coronation for the First Time in History.

LONDON, June 23, 3 a. m.—Enterprise unprecedented in the history of the British press marks today's issues of the London morning papers, which, with only one or two exceptions, are veritable illustrated papers. Most of the London dailies heretofore have made only tentative attempts toward illustrating the day's events.

Today almost all of them appear with numerous page and half page pictures of all the incidents connected with the coronation, excellently produced from photographs or original drawings by special artists. In numerous cases the illustrations occupy greater space than the printing.

The Daily News prints an interesting character sketch of King George by its editor, who describes him as eminetly a sailor and a man of the middle class who loves to be among his people.

The king's comradeship with the common people, says the editor, is not an elaborate pretense to gain an end, but springs from a genuine fellow feeling and a desire to win their good will, although he is conscious that he lacks his father's road to their hearts.

CHICAGO BRITONS GIVE BALL.

Coronation Reception by Sons and Daughters of St. George.

IN FIRST REGIMENT ARMORY.

Souvenir Medallions of the King and Queen Distributed.

The coronation of King George V. and Queen Mary of England was celebrated by more than 4,000 English people last night at First Regiment armory. The celebration was a coronation reception and ball given under the auspices of the Sons and Daughters of St. George.

Invitations to the ball had been sent out to the consuls of all nations represented in Chicago, and most of them attended. Mayor Harrison and Gov. Deneen also were invited. The Mayor attended, but the governor sent a telegram stating that he was forced to remain in Springfield on account of the work incident to the extra session of the legislature.

King's Cable Message Shown.

The hall was decorated with the flags of the various nations represented, but British and American flags were the most numerous.

Following the grand march, which was led by J. S. Townsend, grand president of the Sons of St. George, and Mrs. Annie G. Prince, supreme president of the Daughters of St. George, stereopticon views were exhibited. Among them was a slide showing a cablegram received during the day from King George V. in answer to one sent to him by the committee in charge of the Chicago celebration. The cablegram conveyed his majesty's "appreciation of the kind feelings expressed."

Souvenirs of Event Distributed.

The first view thrown on the screen was one of the American flag. Then came a view of King George V., and then one of Theodore Roosevelt. It was hard to tell which drew the loudest applause. Views of places in London also were exhibited.

Souvenirs of the event in the form of medallions bearing the images of King George V. and Queen Mary, which were imported from England, were distributed.

U. S. PASTOR GUEST OF KING.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 22.—Dr. John H. Jowett, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, New York, formerly of the Carr's Lane Congregational church, Birmingham, was the guest of the king at the coronation ceremonies and had a seat in the south choir. Speaking of the spectacle he said:

"Apart from the scene itself the wonderful grandeur of the ceremony impressed me immensely with a sense of the solid greatness that the assembly represented. There were evident the intense loyalty of the representatives from every part of the empire and the profound loyalty of men who had forgotten party differences, and the great interest of the members of foreign royal families. The German kronprinz sat opposite to me and impressed me as being most vitally alive to the significance of the occasion.

"The most touching incident of the ceremony I considered was the paying of homage by the Prince of Wales to his father. It revealed the human feeling between the father and son which is indicative of the relation of the English people to their sovereign."

ANTI-DENEEN MEN TACK REFERENDUM ON WATERWAY BILL

Amendment Offered by Former Speaker Shurtleff Adopted After Midnight by House.

VOTE 71 FOR AND 53 AGAINST

Outsiders Argue Before Committee of the Whole on Merits of the Project.

BITTER FIGHT BY BOTH SIDES

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., June 23, 1:30 a. m.—[Special.]—Opponents of Gov. Deneen's waterway plan scored a temporary victory in the house when, by a vote of 71 to 53, they succeeded in tacking to the senate bill the referendum amendment proposed by former Speaker Shurtleff.

It was 12:45 o'clock when, after a strenuous, exciting day, the roll call on this proposition was ordered. There was a shout of glee when the last name was called and the anti-waterway men realized that they had won.

Prior to the adoption of this amendment the house had voted the Pervier amendment, which was designed to convert the waterway bill into a conservation proposition, and there was much dejection in the camp of the antis. The referendum gives them a new lease of life, as no bonds can be issued under the bill until they have been approved at an election to be held a year from next November.

They regard this as practically killing the bill, and they were highly elated in consequence of the vote.

Following the adoption of the referendum the house proceeded to adopt a long list of amendments designed to correct the bill. It also killed several minor amendments and then ordered the measure to third reading.

Placed on Second Reading.

The administration forces won a decisive victory yesterday morning when former Speaker Edward D. Shurtleff, while boasting of his utter defiance and opposition to the Deneen waterway bill, "suggested" that the Deneen bill as it passed the senate be placed in the order of second reading for immediate consideration by the house.

This movement by the McHenry county representative was surprising to everybody, particularly as the Smekjal committee, ten minutes before, had refused to send out the Deneen waterway bill with a favorable report by a vote of 10 to 9, the 10 being recorded on the side of the anti-Deneen element.

Shurtleff Starts the Activity.

Mr. Shurtleff, the moment Chairman Smekjal reported in the senate bill with the recommendation that it do not pass, was on his feet with the "suggestion." He said he stood violently opposed to the bill and would fight it to a finish, but there was no reason why the issue should not be concluded at once. There were muttered objections from the anti-Deneen people, but after considerable time Speaker Adkins ruled that by unanimous consent the "suggestion" from Mr. Shurtleff had prevailed and he ordered the bill placed on the calendar in the order of second reading.

This opened the fireworks immediately. Representative Judah called up the bill and announced to the house that he and his friends were ready to open up hostilities all along the line. Representative Morris of Springfield, at the suggestion of Speaker Adkins, raised the question of the permissibility of outsiders being heard before the house, and after an hour of discussion a resolution offered by Morris was adopted which sent the house into committee of the whole for the purpose of considering the senate bill.

Outsiders Tell Their Views.

With Representative Smejkal in the chair, presiding over the committee of the whole, all of yesterday was put in with discourse from outsiders. The chief talkers were Isham Randolph, representing the engineering end of the Deneen contention; Lyman E. Cooley, talking for the Lorimer engineering plan; Howard H. Gross, representing himself, and Edward T. Cahill, the ubiquitous.

Edwin E. Parry and Bride-to-Be Go Quietly to Crown Point and Are Married.

Edwin E. Parry, who, during the time he was a student at the University of Chicago, was well known as an athlete, preferred a hasty wedding at Crown Point, Ind., to a crowded and formal affair. Friends of the young man, who was one of the most famous football players on the Maroon team a few years ago, learned yesterday that he had married Mrs. Grace Vaughan in the Indiana town Wednesday. A few of the athlete's friends knew of his wedding plans, but the out of town ceremony was a surprise to a larger number. The bridgroom was known as the "Oskaloosa giant" when he entered the university.

Miss Susan L. Sproul approached the witness stand in Judge Newcomer's court yesterday with composure. She sat down calmly. Then she screamed.

Judge Newcomer leaned forward quickly and—smiled.

"It won't hurt you, I assure you," he said to Miss Sproul, "but we'll have it removed."

A court attendant whisked it out of sight. It was a skull which an expert witness had been using in expounding fractures. Miss Sproul testified in a suit of Mrs. Zella L. Beaulait to collect $5,000 life insurance from the Illinois Commercial Men's association.

The Return of Sherlock Holmes is the great feature of the year in American journalism. It means the return of the real Holmes—the calm, stoical, all-seeing, all-hearing, alert, far-visioned, cunning, brilliant, resourceful Holmes—the Holmes whose exploits have rung round the universe.

These are not tales in which Holmes occasionally walks across the printed page. They are not stories of the Holmes who has lost his exquisite sense of analysis and his wizardry of perception. They re-introduce the scientist, the student, the thief-catcher. They present Holmes at the very apex of his marvelous power.

For the next three months The Tribune will publish a complete Sherlock Holmes story with every Sunday issue. The master detective of all time is the central figure in each tangle.

L. O'NEIL BROWNE SLUGS REPORTER

UNCONSCIOUS 40 MINUTES.

Springfield, Ill., June 22.—[Special.]—Representative Lee O'Neil Browne, former minority leader in the house, tonight made an assault upon E. O. Phillips, legislative reporter for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The assault occurred in the room of Speaker Adkins. Mr. Phillips was knocked down with a blow on the right side of the neck near the jugular vein and was made unconscious for forty minutes.

Two house members who are physicians, Whittaker and Martin, and Dr. Penik of Springfield worked with the unconscious correspondent until they brought him to. It was twenty minutes from the time the blow was struck until he showed signs of recovery. The doctors refused to permit him to make any statement.

Abusive Talk Precedes Attack.

George Brunk, who witnessed the assault, said Mr. Phillips and Browne were talking when the latter suddenly became abusive and accused the correspondent of writing matter derogatory to him. He followed this with a tirade of vile invective and struck Mr. Phillips with his open righthand.

Mr. Phillips, who is slight, staggered under the blow and Browne then struck him with his clinched fist, felling him to the floor.

The victim was placed on a couch in the speaker's room, where he remained until he recovered.

The speaker, Lyman J. Cooley, and Representative Lyon were in the room when the attack occurred. They said it was unexpected and unprovoked.

Mr. Phillips had been told Browne had uttered threats against him because of articles which had appeared in THE TRIBUNE, the authorship of which the jackpotter had attributed to the correspondent. He had, however, given little attention to these threats and had refused to regard them seriously.

Browne Resumes Seat in House.

After the assault Browne took his seat in the house, returning to the speaker's room occasionally to ascertain what progress the doctors were making with their patient.

He made no statement regarding the conversation leading up to the attack. Browne is an athlete and powerful. Mr. Phillips for some time has been in ill health.

CONVINCED "JACKPOT" EXISTED

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Two confessedly warm personal friends of Senator William Lorimer—George W. Hinman, editor and publisher of the Chicago Inter Ocean, and former Gov. Richard Yates—testified today before the Lorimer investigating committee.

The testimony of these witnesses, particularly that of Mr. Yates, furnished the committee with a background made up of sordid political maneuvers covering a period of years, the only object of which was the procurement of jobs.

The story told by Mr. Yates was the story of politicians who were not actuated by any concern for the public good, who were swayed by no interest in public principles, but whose only purpose was to make and break political alliances for personal preferment.

Hinman Admits Hines' Loan.

Mr. Hinman's testimony was interesting but not illuminating. He refused at first to answer a question as to whether or not Edward Hines, the Chicago lumberman, who boasted he "put Lorimer over," had loaned him any money, on the ground that it was an invasion of his private affairs.

Pressed by the committee, he subsequently admitted he had borrowed $4,000 from Hines in the last few weeks. When asked in reference to the possible ownership of Inter Ocean bonds and stocks he said he thought Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, whom he denounced as a bitter personal enemy of himself and Senator Lorimer, held $10,000 of stock in this property, but he did not recollect that Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing company, or Edward Hines was the owner of any bonds.

Asked about certain editorials which had appeared in the Inter Ocean, referring to jackpots and corruption in the Illinois legislature, he said they were based on common report and remarks made to him by his correspondents in Springfield. He did not know of any one who had either contributed to or received anything from a "jackpot."

Hinman Gives His "Jackpot" Theory.

Mr. Hinman furnished the committee with his theory of the class of interests which would join in making up a "jackpot," mentioning particularly the liquor interests in Peoria. He asserted emphatically his belief that Senator Lorimer's election was not attended with corruption.

Mr. Yates electrified the committee by denouncing Gov. Deneen as "a liar," although he admitted he had not used the short and ugly word in his conversations with the governor. His trouble with Mr. Deneen, he said, arose over the failure of the latter to support him for the senatorship against Shelby M. Cullom in 1906. He asserted Mr. Deneen had promised this in return for his (Yates') action in withdrawing from the gubernatorial fight in 1904.

The witness did not want to discuss the origin of his troubles with A. J. Hopkins, but it developed it also grew out of the latter's action in not returning favor for favor by aiding his political aspirations.

Mr. Yates said he was the loyal, faithful friend of Lorimer, although he admitted there had been a period of strained relations covering three years.

Yates Strong for Lorimer.

Mr. Yates said he was constantly urging Lorimer to become a candidate for senator in 1908 and early in 1909, but the latter thought it impossible to win until about forty-eight hours before the election, when he told Yates he thought he could be put over. Curiously enough, Yates did not ask him, according to testimony of the witness, how he expected to obtain the toga.

Because of his personal enmity to both Hopkins and Deneen, Mr. Yates did not want either of them sent to the senate. He was active in support of Edward Shurtleff for speaker, which United States Senator Crawford in the speech he made in the senate charged was the first step in the bipartisan alliance designed to make Lorimer senator.

Mr. Yates could only remember two occasions when he was informed of corruption in the legislature. One in connection with the Mueller bill, when Speaker Miller, now dead, asserted he had been offered $200,000, and the second, of which he had been told by a reporter, also dead.

Witness Visibly Embarrassed.

The witness was visibly embarrassed when asked if he had approved the Mueller bill after it had been passed and said he had done so in spite of Mr. Miller's statement to him. If he had the matter to do over again, he would veto the measure.

Solely, he stated, on account of the several hundred thousand men in Illinois who had voted for him he vehemently denied he had had telephone conversation with Edward Hines in the morning of Lorimer's election. It will be recalled that testimony was obtained by the Helm committee to the effect that Mr. Hines had telephoned to some one in Springfield [and it was suggested by one witness Yates was the man] saying President Taft and Senator Aldrich wanted Lorimer elected, to do everything that could be done to bring about this result, and that if necessary he would go to Springfield with all the money required.

A number of witnesses reported to the committee today. They include Edward Hines, Edward Tilden, Albert J. Hopkins, Clarence S. Funk, Edgar A. Bancroft, Cyril Jandus, William O'Brien, Wirt H. Cook, John Broderick, H. H. Kohlsaat, and James Keeley. Former Senator Hopkins will be the first witness tomorrow morning.

Editor Hinman Testifies.

After directing all witnesses to retire, Chairman Dillingham summoned to the stand Mr. Hinman, who said he was editor and publisher of the Chicago Inter Ocean, and has been a friend of Senator Lorimer for many years. He denied that Hines, Tilden, former Senator Hopkins, or Senator Lorimer owned any part of the Inter Ocean. He denied a report in the Chicago Examiner that his paper had received $120,000 in Hines' checks.

"I never have received any money from anybody that I know of as being in the lumber business," he testified.

The witness said neither he nor his paper handled any campaign fund of Senator Lorimer. He first met Hines last November or December. He declared he was not present at Springfield during the session of the legislature at which Lorimer was elected. Attorney Marble for the committee questioned him:

MR. MARBLE—You have said editorially, I am informed—I am sorry not to have read all of your editorials—that you knew there was no corruption in the election of Senator Lorimer. Is that a correct quotation from your editorial?

MR. HINMAN—Well, of course, technically I am responsible for every editorial. In fact, I write only a part of them. I believe anything I wrote on the subject would use the phrase "absolutely convinced." Of legal knowledge I could not say that I knew, because I was not present.

Believes "Jackpot" Existed.

MR. MARBLE—I am informed that some of the editorials in your papers have charged that the "jackpot" was present at the session of the legislature at which Senator Lorimer was elected, or indicated a belief that such was the case. Is that true?

MR. HINMAN—It is my opinion and belief there was a jackpot, and the editorials may have indicated that. Although I cannot recollect any specific editorial which said that, it is easily possible.

MR. MARBLE—Have you any information from the persons who knew of the existence of a "jackpot" on which you base such belief?

MR. HINMAN—Nothing, except the inferences drawn and related to me by hearsay—who might have spoken on the subject—like a correspondent, or something like that.

Mr. Hinman said he had talked with no person who admitted he had contributed to a "jackpot" fund, nor had he talked with any person claiming knowledge of such contribution.

"Jackpots" Common Report.

Farther on in his testimony the witness said:

"No, I have not seen any one who said he knew there was a 'jackpot,' or knew of money being paid this, that, or the other man, or money being paid into a 'jackpot' to be distributed generally among legislators. I have heard these rumors and hearsays. I have heard the common report, as it might be called, which has been current for some time—O, for the last year this whole matter has been up—but I cannot recall a single instance where a man or woman told me of knowledge there was jackpot money there and it was distributed among the legislators."

SENATOR FLETCHER—Do I understand that you said you believed there was a jackpot? Does your belief or your information connect that in any way with the election of Senator Lorimer?

MR. HINMAN—Not in any way, shape, or manner.

Asked as to "Special Interests."

SENATOR KENYON—who are the several interests who contributed to the "jackpot"?

MR. HINMAN—Why, it would be impossible for me to give evidence on that. My belief is based on common report, not information, but remarks made by my correspondent when he would come back regarding this, that, or the other measure.

SENATOR KENYON—What was your correspondent's name?

MR. HINMAN—Charles N. Wheeler. He would give me general information about the conduct of legislation—sometimes he and sometimes another correspondent. One correspondent, who is dead, Mr. Lane, was there before Mr. Wheeler, and I really cannot give that any more definitely. If anybody here—and I take it most of you gentlemen have been through legislative halls off and on—will stop to think for a moment you can realize how impossible it is for me to recall every idle and vagrant remark I have heard on a subject like that.

SENATOR KENYON—You have a pretty firm belief in the existence of this "jackpot"?

MR. HINMAN—When I spoke of there being a "jackpot" in every legislature I meant there had been a corruption fund. I understood there was a corruption fund in every legislature. As to how it would be operated, I never had anybody come up to me and say: "I operate a jackpot, and there was this much paid in by this, that, and the other man, and I divided it up, so and so, and John Smith got so much." If I got that information, I should have published it in my paper, because that is clearly a useful piece of news in the newspaper business.

MR. MARBLE—Are you familiar with the editorial in your paper of May 25, 1911, headed "Let us find out," referring to this investigation and containing the following paragraph: "Of course, some shining social lights may be obscured, and some pillars in Chicago and Peoria be pulled down, if the investigation is as thorough as Senator Martin's resolution prescribes, but what's the odds?" To whom did you refer?

MR. HINMAN—I did not refer to any particular person there whom I could name. I referred to this, that the sources of corruption money in a general legislature are moneyed sources, and that a man who contributes to a fund in a legislature is a man who has a large enterprise, or property to protect, and therefore he is a conspicuous man. That is simply drawn from my observation in New York and Illinois. It is not obscure men getting $2,000 a year who fill up "packpots" or boodle funds.

Why He Referred to Peoria.

SENATOR KENYON—Is there any general collection taken up among the people for "jackpots?"

MR. HINMAN—Not that I have heard of.

SENATOR KERN—Why did you refer to Peoria in your article rather than any other city in Illinois outside of Chicago?

MR. HINMAN—The common report there was that a considerable part of the money has its principal headquarters in Peoria.

SENATOR GAMBLE—What is that interest?

MR. HINMAN—The liquor interest.

MR. MARBLE—The distilleries?

MR. HINMAN—Yes. I did not have any particular distillery in mind, but when you say Peoria, it suggests local option and strong liquor. That is the idea.

MR. MARBLE—In the Inter Ocean of June 3, 1911, there appeared an editorial headed: "Let us have the whole truth," referring to this same investigation. In it appeared this paragraph:

"There is a general public impression that such a comprehensive investigation as is now promised may have curious effects upon the health of a number of more or less prominent personages who have hitherto played the part of prosecutor rather than that of defendant. No surprise will be felt if the state of their health should soon require some prominent persons to travel abroad." Whom did you have in mind when you wrote that?

MR. HINMAN—I did not write that, but I should judge that covers pretty much the same point as I covered in regard to the other editorials.

SENATOR KENYON—Who did write that?

MR. HINMAN—Well, sir; I could not tell you. There are three other men who write there; Mr. Bennett, a Mr. Taylor, and Mr. Hertzberg.

"Moneyed Men" Fighting Lorimer.

SENATOR KENYON—Who were the prominent people you had in mind whose health would necessitate their going abroad?

MR. HINMAN—I did not have the specific men in mind, sir. I said I referred to a group, such as usually puts up the money that is put up or is supposed to be put up for the legislature. They are men of large interests.

SENATOR JONES—What prominent persons who have been prosecutors in this matter did you have in mind?

MR. HINMAN—I can give you the answer to that. I rather dislike to give it, but I can tell you in this way. In this movement that has been started by his opponents—I am giving my interpretation—against Senator Lorimer, in a general way what may be called the moneyed interests of Chicago—the large interests of Chicago, moneyed men—who would be found contributors to a "jackpot," if there was one, have been in opposition to Senator Lorimer.

"Jackpotters" Against Lorimer.

SENATOR KENYON—Those who raised the "jackpot" are the ones who are fighting Senator Lorimer, you say?

MR. HINMAN—Well, most of them are fighting Senator Lorimer, I judge. It is the general tendency of the moneyed interests. That is my observation. The moneyed interests of Chicago, as this movement has gone along, have taken the side against Senator Lorimer.

SENATOR KENYON—The liquor interests are against Senator Lorimer?

MR. HINMAN—Well, Levy Mayer, one of the principal attorneys for the liquor interests, is the attorney for THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Hinman was asked specifically if the railroads, the book trust, the street railways of Chicago, and other interests and public

YATES AND HINMAN ON CORRUPTION IN ILLINOIS.

GEORGE W. HINMAN, Publisher Chicago Inter Ocean.

It is my opinion and belief there was a jackpot. * * * * I understood there was a corruption fund in every legislature. * * * * The moneyed interests of Chicago as this movement has gone along have taken the side against Senator Lorimer. * * * * Under protest I will state that on one occasion I borrowed $4,000 from Mr. Hines on a three or four months' note. * * * * It was somewhere within the last eight or ten weeks.

RICHARD YATES, Former Governor of Illinois.

I have heard general vague insinuations that legislation was expedited or not * * * * One day John Henry Miller (speaker in 1903) came to my office and said he did not know what his duty was but that he had been approached by two men who told him this bill (the Mueller bill), although it was supposed to be in the interests of the public, was a bill of great advantage to certain particular interests, and there was $200,000 in it for him if he would expedite the passage of this Mueller bill * * * * He stated that he had declined to do so * * * * He went on to say: "They are up there now, the majority of the members, with a speaker pro tem. I have not yet told the house what transpired with regard to this $200,000. What shall I do?" * * * * We (including Lorimer) had quite a conference as to what the speaker ought to do. * * * * The house censured Mr. Miller for offending the dignity of the house * * * * and Mr. Miller went home and died not very long afterward. * * * * John J. Lane (now dead) Springfield correspondent for the Inter Ocean, came to me and said he had heard there was a fund raised, contributed to by many corporations, to advance friendly legislation and throttle unfriendly legislation.

and semi-public service corporations had contributed to the jackpot. He said he did not know. Referring again to the higher interests, he said that Alfred Austrian, who represented THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was a member of the firm of which Levy Mayer was the head.

Says Funk Is Bitter Toward Lorimer.

SENATOR FLETCHER—Do you know anything of the attitude of the International Harvester company or its officers?

MR. HINMAN—O, well, as regards the International Harvester company and as regards the attitude of Mr. Funk and those gentlemen, why that is well understood. They are bitterly opposed to Senator Lorimer and have been for years. Mr. Funk and I—well, I practically ceased speaking to Mr. Funk three years ago. I am a considerable friend of Senator Lorimer and I did not like his conversation. He (Mr. Funk) is too malignant an enemy, and we have just simply passed with a nod for a long time. That is a rather difficult thing to testify to, but that is the condition existing.

MR. MARBLE—Is Mr. Funk a stockholder in the Inter Ocean?

MR. HINMAN—No, sir.

SENATOR JONES—You say that Mr. Funk was bitter against Senator Lorimer?

MR. HINMAN—Yes.

Fails to Recall Specific Things.

SENATOR JONES—I wish you would state some things you have heard him say about Senator Lorimer, showing his bitterness.

MR. HINMAN—I could not go back and quote exactly.

SENATOR JONES—You can give the substance of it?

MR. HINMAN—I could not give the substance of it.

SENATOR JONES—When did this bitterness appear against Senator Lorimer on the part of Mr. Funk?

MR. HINMAN—O, some time ago—two or three years ago. I could not locate the date exactly.

SENATOR JONES—Before this senatorial contest?

MR. HINMAN—O, yes, before anything of the kind.

SENATOR JONES—You cannot give us any idea as to what the basis of it was?

MR. HINMAN—No, but I should judge he was a political friend of Gov. Deneen, and therefore he did not think much of Lorimer, and was terribly opposed to him. May I recall one answer that I gave Mr. Marble? You asked me if Mr. Funk was a stockholder in the Inter Ocean. It is possible he has $10,000 face value shares of stock. I do not know, it is possible.

MR. MARBLE—Is he a bondholder of the Inter Ocean?

MR. HINMAN—I could not tell you.

Uncertain as to Bondholders.

MR. MARBLE—To refer to that matter, regarding all of the gentlemen concerning whom I have questioned you—Mr. Hines, Mr. Tilden, Mr. Hopkins, and Mr. Lorimer—are they owners of bonds of the Inter Ocean? Do you know?

MR. HINMAN—I think not. That is a thing almost impossible to tell. You know when we meet—our coupons sometimes—the bonds will turn up from an entirely unexpected place. That is a thing it is almost impossible to give evidence about.

MR. MARBLE—You replied that you had not during the last two years received any considerable sum of money from Mr. Hines or Mr. Tilden or Mr. Lorimer or from any one on Mr. Lorimer's behalf. That covers loans as well as the receipt of money in any sort of way?

MR. HINMAN—Neither Mr. Lorimer nor Mr. Hines or Mr. Tilden to the best of my knowledge and belief has any of the bonds of the Inter Ocean. Now, as I say, bonds turn up in unexpected places. If you have ever conducted a bonded enterprise, when the bonds are due, often you get them from surprising places, entirely different from where they were last. Senator Lorimer has not a share of the stock in the Inter Ocean. I do not believe Mr. Tilden has a share of stock in the Inter Ocean. I never delivered any to Mr. Tilden. Now, if you want me to go over my books and tell you exactly whether in summer or winter or fall I gave a note here or there, taking it up afterwards or otherwise, that is a difficult matter and I would have to go to my books to find out.

Unable to Recall Transactions.

SENATOR KERN—Do you have any recollection of any transaction with any one of these gentlemen whom you just named—Senator Lorimer, Mr. Hines, Mr. Tilden?

MR. HINMAN—O, I can recollect trivial transactions, yes.

SENATOR KERN—Did you give to either of these gentlemen a note for $5,000?

MR. HINMAN—No, not $5,000. I decline to answer further along that line, sir.

SENATOR KERN—Why?

MR. HINMAN—Simply because I will answer everything connected with this inquiry and everything connected with public affairs, personal affairs, but I decline to answer questions concerning every step in the operation of my newspaper.

SENATOR KERN—My question is whether you ever have borrowed $5,000 of either of these three men, or have they indorsed your paper for $5,000?

Witness Answers Under Protest.

THE CHAIRMAN—Do you decline to answer that?

MR. HINMAN—O, yes. On one occasion—I will answer it, but I answer it under protest—I will state that on one occasion I borrowed $4,000 from Mr. Hines on a three or four months' note, something like that. I cannot give you the exact detail of it.

MR. MARBLE—Is that the only transaction of the sort?

MR. HINMAN—That is the only transaction I had with Mr. Hines, yes.

SENATOR JONES—When was that?

MR. HINMAN—It is somewhere within the last eight or ten weeks.

SENATOR JONES—Is the note still out?

MR. HINMAN—Yes, I think it is a four months note, as I recollect it, but I could file an affidavit on that.

SENATOR JONES—Did you have any financial transactions of any kind or character with Mr. Hines, or Senator Lorimer, or Mr. Funk, or Mr. Tilden in connection with the Lorimer election?

MR. HINMAN—No, sir; none whatever of any kind, shape, or manner; none whatever.

Questioned by Attorney Haney.

Mr. Hinman's examination was concluded with the following questioning by Senator Lorimer's counsel:

MR. HANECY—Mr. Hinman, did you or your newspaper or anybody connected with either, or anybody else that you know of, pay or contribute in any way, directly or indirectly, any money or other thing of value to the election of Senator Lorimer to the United States senate, or after his election because of that election, at any time, before or after?

MR. HINMAN—Nothing whatever.

MR. HANECY—Do you know of any fund that was raised, or anybody who raised or claimed to raise a fund or anything of value to contribute to the election of Senator Lorimer, or because he had been elected to the United States senate?

MR. HINMAN—No.

Former Gov. Yates Testifies.

Former Gov. Yates then was called to the stand and his examination was conducted by Mr. Healy, who took him through a rapid fire sketch of his political life in Illinois. He admitted that for thirty years he had been interested in politics in the state.

Mr. Healy then interrogated the witness as to his profession and Mr. Yates replied he was a lawyer. The questions led to the statement that at the present time he is doing legal work for Congressman McKinley's traction system and also is doing some work for Attorney General Stead of Illinois.

Mr. Healy then brought out that the former governor had been associate attorney for the Illinois Central railroad, under a special retainer, this service for that corporation starting eighteen days after he left the governor's chair.

Mr. Yates specified the character of his service as "occasional consultations," but denied it had anything to do with "lobbying or appearing before the legislators." The witness admitted that one of his legal associates was John J. Drennan of the Illinois Central, an old time habitué of Springfield when the legislature is in session.

Recollection Proves Nebulous.

Mr. Yates' recollection of the specific duties he performed for the Illinois Central was nebulous. Here is an extract from his testimony on this line:

MR. HEALY—What did the special retainer of yours have to do with? Was it the suit of the state of Illinois against the railroad company?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

MR. HEALY—Is there any objection on your part to informing the committee what it was?

MR. YATES—No. I do not remember. There were various questions referred to me.

MR. HEALY—It did not cover any specific lines of employment, then.

MR. YATES—I do not know what you mean by that, but as I understand your question I should say "No."

MR. HEALY—Were you retained for the purpose of aiding the interests of the company with reference to a special line of legal work?

MR. YATES—No. Various questions were referred to me for opinion as to whether the company had the right to do this and the right to do that.

Paid Annual Retainer by Road.

MR. HEALY—And you were paid for the service which you rendered from time to time, were you—or were you paid an annual retainer?

MR. YATES—I was paid an annual retainer.

Mr. Yates apparently did not keep his political friendships up to date in the last general assembly, for when Mr. Healy asked him how many members he knew personally, he replied, "O, possibly one-third and possibly one-half.

The examination then reached the "jackpot" stage.

MR. HEALY—During the time you were governor, from 1901 to 1905, you were generally familiar with the legislative conditions which prevailed in Illinois?

MR. YATES—Yes.

MR. HEALY—Did you ever hear of a "jackpot" during any of the sessions of that particular legislature, governor?

MR. YATES—No.

"General Vague Insinuations."

MR. HEALY—Was the matter ever called to your attention in any way by any person?

MR. YATES—The general subject of money being used to influence legislation or to prevent the passage of legislation has been talked about, joked about, and seriously talked about, I suppose, for thirty years, and, of course, I have heard men talk to one another about what would simply be hearsay. Your question was, did I ever hear of it?

Mr. HEALY—Yes.

MR. YATES—Yes. I have heard general, vague insinuations that legislation was expedited or not.

MR. HEALY—Has any one ever spoken to you on that subject who had, or pretended to have, personal knowledge or information with reference to the existence of the so-called "jackpot."

MR. YATES—No, sir.

MR. HEALY—Was your attention ever called at any time during your term as governor to the fact that any legislation was regarded or expedited in any way by the use of money?

Brings Up Case of Mueller Bill.

MR. YATES—That is rather a broad question. Shall have to make a broad answer?

MR. HEALY—Yes, I intended to make it broad.

MR. YATES—In the legislature which convened in January, 1903, a speaker was elected by my friends whose name was Miller. He was called John Henry Miller. Toward the close of the session there was a good deal of excitement about the passage of a bill that was called the Mueller bill, because it was introduced by a state senator by the name of Mueller. I do not care to go into all the history of the Mueller bill, which filled every paper in Illinois for three months. But I want to answer your question as well as I can. This bill had gotten through the senate with almost no debate. It provided, as I recall it—it has been a long time since I have given it any consideration, Mr. Healy.

Speaker Miller Offereed a Bribe.

MR. HEALY—It was a street railway bill, was it not?

MR. YATES—It was a bill providing for the municipal ownership of street railways, and was said to be favored by the great multitude of people and everybody in the city of Chicago. It had passed through the senate. It was pending in the house. One day John Henry Miller, who had served on some political committee for me, and whom I always regarded as my friend, came to my office and stated that he did not know what his duty was, but that he had been approached the night before by two men—this is simply responsive to the attorney's questions. It was a long time ago—in the early days of 1903 or some time in April or May of 1903. He had been approached by two men who had told him this bill, although it was supposed to be in the interests of the public, was a bill of great advantage to certain particular interests, and there was $200,000 in it for him if he would expedite the passage of this Mueller bill. He stated he had declined to do so; that it had aroused his suspicions, and that afternoon, when the bill was sought to be pushed and advanced through the house, he had done what he could to gavel against it. Finally he had declared a motion to adjourn passed, and he had left the chamber. He went on to say: "They are up there now, the majority of the members, with a speaker pro tem. I have not yet told the house what transpired in regard to this $200,000. What shall I do?"

Lorimer in the Conference.

I said "I do not know what you ought to do." I called in the lieutenant governor, W. A. Northcott; the secretary of state, James A. Rose; I think Len Small, state treasurer—or perhaps he was not the state treasurer at that time, but I think he was there. Mr. Lorimer, who was then congressman, was in the statehouse, and I do not know whether anybody asked him to come in or whether he happened to wander in. We had quite a conference as to what the speaker ought to do.

I stated I thought it was the duty of the speaker to make a solemn, written statement of the circumstances to his colleagues, and that was what I would do if I were speaker. Lieut. Gov. Northcott said: "If you say so, Mr. Miller, I will dictate the statement myself." He stepped into the adjoining room, where my stenographer was, and dictated the statement to Miss Alice Draper, the stenographer.

Mr. Miller signed the statement at the approval, I think, of everybody present. Possibly there were two or three others present. I think perhaps there were ten or a dozen men in the room.

Mr. Miller took that statement back to the house and read it at 5 o'clock, stating the reason why he had opposed this municipal ownership bill was because these men had made this statement to him. Thereupon the house appointed an investigating committee. They put Mr. Miller on trial, they censured Mr. Miller for offending the dignity of the house in uncertain terms, and Mr. Miller went home and died not long afterwards. That is about the history of that transaction as I recall it.

Convinced Miller Was Truthful.

SENATOR JONES—You have not any doubt as to the truth of Mr. Miller's statement, have you?

MR. YATES—I have no doubt of its truth; there is no reason why I should doubt it.

SENATOR JONES—And anybody who knew Mr. Miller would not doubt it?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

SENATOR JONES—You were his personal friend?

MR. YATES—You are absolutely right. If this is a hearsay hearing, I will state that the last time that I was in McLeansboro (which was his home and where he lies buried) his widow told me that unquestionably his death was caused by the mortification and humiliation inflicted upon him because the house, instead of seeking to investigate this matter, had proceeded to try him.

SENATOR JONES—I do not think there is any doubt about it.

Legislation Passed and Signed.

SENATOR GAMBLE—What was the result of the legislation? Did it pass?

MR. YATES—The result of the legislation was that Mr. Miller proceeded to give the desired roll calls and the bill was passed.

SENATOR GAMBLE—I was about to ask what the governor did with the bill.

MR. YATES—The governor, after ten days of absolute abuse and vituperation of the most villainous character by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and other papers in the city of Chicago, said: "I sign this bill in spite of what the papers said, because I believe it does not provide the one thing which was objected to." Only one man in the city of Chicago came down and resisted that bill.

SENATOR KENYON—Who was that?

MR. YATES—A square man by the name of John Hamline.

Bribe Offerers Not Named.

MR. HEALY—Did Speaker Miller indicate in this written statement he made the names of the two men who had approached him and made this offer?

MR. YATES—Speaker Miller did not.

MR. HEALY—Did he inform you who those two men were?

MR. YATES—He did not.

MR. HEALY—Did he indicate whether or not those two men were members of the house or senate of that session?

MR. YATES—It turned out, Mr. Healy, that he did not know who they were.

MR. HEALY—They were strangers to him?

MR. YATES—When we advised him to make this statement we supposed, of course, he knew who they were. But I know something about Mr. Miller that a great many other men did not know. I am only too happy, if these words could get back to Illinois, to say it now. Mr. Miller was a man of defective vision in one eye, and he could hear scarcely at all out of one ear, so that he did not understand all that was said to him. He could not see, in the darkness under the stairway, who these men were.

Never Called to Account.

MR. HEALY—So these men were not called to account in any manner before the committee which investigated the matter subsequently?

MR. YATES—They were not, and I am only saying all this in answer to your question as to whether I ever heard of any corruption of that kind in my term.

Mr. Healy then asked Mr. Yates if he ever had heard of any other matter involving corruption or wrongdoing on the part of the Illinois legislature. The former governor could recall only one instance and his informant in this matter is dead. John Lane, Springfield correspondent of the Inter Ocean, was the informant. This is Mr. Yates' story of that incident:

"The man who came to me was John J. Lane of the Inter Ocean. He said he had heard there was a fund raised, contributed to by many corporations, to advance friendly legislation and to throttle unfriendly legislation. He said he had heard it had been going on for a great many years."

Threatened Special Message.

MR. HEALY—And is that the only information you have with reference to the existence of a corruption fund in the legislature?

MR. YATES—Yes, sir. I want to say, further than this, that I did not allow the matter to rest there. I said: "You are a good friend of mine, and I am a good friend of yours; but it so happens, right or wrong, that you are talking to one in authority, and I want to know what you know." He said: "I don't know anything, except that one man has told me this story." He said: "You are not thinking that you are going to do anything with it, are you?" I said: "Yes." He said: "What?" I said: "I am going to send a special message in to the general assembly, and I am going to ask them to subpoena everybody in both houses." He said: "You will have to make good. You will have to have a witness." I said: "I will have you for a witness." He said: "Not in a thousand years." I said: "Why?" He said: "Because I know absolutely nothing; and if I should go on the stand and give the name of the man who told me this he would go on the stand and swear I was guilty of perjury and I would be, in all probabilities, arrested and incarcerated by the legislature."

MR. HEALY—And did that end the incident?

MR. YATES—Yes, sir.

Matter Allowed to Drop.

MR. HEALY—You sent no message to the legislature?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you send a message to the legislature on this $200,000 matter?

MR. YATES—No, sir; I incorporated all I had to say in the message which I signed.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you ever follow up that $200,000 matter?

MR. YATES—Any further?

SENATOR KENYON—Yes.

MR. YATES—No.

SENATOR KENYON—It was rather a shocking matter, was it not?

MR. YATES—It was.

SENATOR KENYON—Why did you not follow it up?

MR. YATES—For the simple reason that when I talked with Mr. Miller about it—who was the only man that claimed to have any information whatever on the subject—he said he had no idea in the world who these men were; that he could not identify them; that he did not hear all that they said; that he did not see them clearly. We had many conferences about it. It was an absolute stone wall. We could not get beyond it.

Knew of No Recent "Jackpot."

Mr. Yates denied he had any knowledge or information about any "jackpot" in the last session of the legislature, or that he knew anybody who had such information.

Mr. Healy then took the witness afield on state politics and his associations with Lorimer, Deneen, et al. He testified he was friendly with Lorimer and the Lorimerites when he was elected governor in 1901, and that that political friendship continued for a number of years. He admitted it was "a political difference, quite a political difference," when Lorimer did not support him for renomination, but said the estrangement wore out by degrees through the course of about three years.

Mr. Healy asked witness who got the nomination when he was a candidate to succeed himself, and Mr. Yates snapped out, "Charles S. Deneen was nominated in my stead and by my votes." He repeated later, "We made him governor—my friends and I." This was the time of his political estrangement with Lorimer.

Lorimer and Yates Make Up.

Lorimer and Yates got together again as the year 1908 approached.

"When," said Mr. Yates, 'Congressman Lorimer did me the honor to tender me once again his support and friendship as a candidate for governor and I accepted."

This support and friendship did not get Mr. Yates the nomination.

Mr. Yates then told his story of the convention, in which his followers flocked to Deneen and nominated him. He said:

"My friends and I, if you will pardon the expression (I withdraw the I) had the power to nominate in the convention either Mr. Lowden or Mr. Deneen. We decided we would support Mr. Deneen."

SENATOR JONES—Right in that connection, were there any political promises in consideration for that support from one side to the other?

MR. YATES—No promises beforehand. Gov. Deneen gave me an assurance, when I told him that I was going to support him. That assurance was that he would support me for United States senator. That was no part of a bargain or trade; that was a subsequent statement on his part which he did not keep, resulting in the termination of the affiliation that you referred to a while ago.

Affiliation Proves Short Lived.

MR. HEALY—It was short-lived, then.

MR. YATES—It lasted about eighteen months.

MR. HEALY—Where did you make that arrangement with Gov. Deneen?

MR. YATES—In this connection I want to say simply this: You gentlemen have not invited a man to come down here, a thousand miles, I presume, to state whether he was at the other end of a telephone conversation. If you would like to have a history of our fights out in Illinois for the last ten years I can furnish it, but I take it for granted you would not care to go into all the details, and we are fast drifting into that.

SENATOR GAMBLE—It occurred to me that some of this detail was not necessary.

MR. HEALY—I am exposing the political conditions there, so that the committee will have a bird's-eye view of the situation there and will understand references which subsequent witnesses will perhaps make.

Yates Charges Political Treachery.

SENATOR GAMBLE—Suppose you direct his attention, as far as possible, to the conditions existing in the Illinois legislature of 1909.

MR. HEALY—I am asking Mr. Yates these questions because I know he is familiar with the situation there.

MR. YATES—I can say right here the conditions existing in the Illinois legislature in 1909 were the result in no small part of various political treacheries and failures to keep faith pro and con, back and forth, and I was the victim of one or two of them myself.

SENATOR JONES—I think we had better trace them right up as the counsel was doing.

SENATOR KENYON—By "failure to keep faith," do you mean failure to keep pledges, promises?

MR. YATES—I mean, for example, that Mr. Deneen did not give me the aid and comfort I thought I was entitled to, and my friends thought I was entitled to, and the result was we did not feel kindly toward Mr. Deneen. The result was that four years after I had gone out we went out and made a fight for the nomination in Illinois. We fought the world, the flesh, and the devil, including Mr. Deneen's men, the Yates men who had been given to him, and the Chicago press. When it was over there were scarcely enough votes to count. Mr. Deneen had 211,000; I had 201,000. It was three days before we could find out the result—showing that all has not been harmony in Illinois in the last year or two.

Yates' Deal with Deneen.

MR. HEALY—Governor, when was it that you had this arrangement with Gov. Deneen with reference to your candidacy for the United States senate?

MR. YATES—O, I could not fix the day and hour.

MR. HEALY—Where was the arrangement made?

MR. YATES—There were repeated conversations on the subject.

MR. HEALY—Between yourself and whom else?

MR. YATES—Mr. Deneen.

MR. HEALY—Anybody else?

MR. YATES—I do not recall that anybody else was present.

MR. HEALY—What was the specific or definite arrangement that was made in that respect?

MR. YATES—O, Mr. Deneen said he would call in twenty men and I could call in twenty men, and I told him I did not care to do anything of the kind—I would take his word for it.

Uncertain About the Forty Men.

MR. HEALY—For what purpose were those forty men to be called in?

MR. YATES—I do not know.

MR. HEALY—In what connection was that suggestion made?

MR. YATES—To uphold, I suppose, or to make me have the feeling that his offer of support was in good faith; I do not know.

MR. HEALY—Will you tell the committee, please, what Gov. Deneen said to you when that assurance was given?

MR. YATES—No, sir; I cannot recall the exact words

MR. HEALY—Substantially, what did he say?

MR. YATES—"I intend to bring about your election as United States senator against Senator Cullom," or words to that effect. I cannot recall what the words were.

MR. HEALY—Had you told him, prior to that time, that you desired to be a candidate for that position?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

MR. HEALY—You had not discussed it with him or his friends in any way?

MR. YATES—His friends and my friends had discussed a great many things that I do not know anything about.

MR. HEALY—When, with reference to the gubernatorial convention, was this arrangement made?

MR. YATES—I want to say that deadlock convention continued for four weeks.

MR. HEALY—I understand.

MR. YATES—During that entire time the friends of Congressman Lowden and my friends got a little farther apart day by day, and the friends of Mr. Deneen and my friends got closer and closer together. There were a great many conversations. I do not know what occurred.

MR. HEALY—Did you have that arrangement with Gov. Deneen prior to the time he was nominated?

MR. YATS—No, sir; I think not. I think it was afterwards.

Arrangement Made After Nomination.

MR. HEALY—The arrangement, then, was made after he was nominated and prior to his election as governor?

MR. YATES—I do not recall, Mr. Healy, exactly when it was made. He may have said something on the night I told him I intended to nominate him.

MR. HEALY—Have you any recollection about that?

MR. YATES—I think he did, but I am not sure.

SENATOR KENYON—I want to be clear about these forty men. Were they to determine the senatorship?

MR. YATES—No. I understood they were to be sort of witnesses. I did not care for any witnesses.

SENATOR KENYON—Was loss to Gov. Deneen's agreement to make you senator?

MR. YATES—Yes.

SENATOR KENYON—Were they to have anything to say about this senatorship?

MR. YATES—I did not understand he was going to submit it generally. I did not understand that proposition at all.

Deneen and the Senatorship.

SENATOR KENYON—Did Gov. Deneen claim to have the senatorship so that he could deliver it to you?

MR. YATES—He did not?

SENATOR FLETCHER—Did he specify what year he expected to support you?

MR. YATES—Yes, sir.

SENATOR FLETCHER—What year was it?

MR. YATES—It was on the expiration of Senator Cullom's term.

SENATOR FLETCHER—Not as against Senator Hopkins?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

MR. HEALY—And the assurance which Gov. Deneen gave you in that respect was the political consideration which moved between you and him with reference to the support which you gave him in the convention?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

MR. HEALY—That did not enter into the matter in any way?

MR. YATES—I did not understand so.

Did Not Sell Governorship.

MR. HEALY—This offer of support on his part, then, was voluntary and with no condition of any sort attached to it—is that correct?

MR. YATES—No, I think not. I think his captains had been talking this thing to my friends for the whole four weeks of the convention, but it had not reached me. I did not sell him the governorship of Illinois to be elected United States senator, if that is what you mean.

MR. HEALY—And you did not buy the United States senatorship?

MR. YATES—No, I did not buy the United States senatorship.

MR. HEALY—And you did not trade the one situation for the other?

MR. YATES—I did not.

Mr. Healy then began to question Mr. Yates about his presence in Springfield in the early part of 1909. The witness testified that up to Feb. 15 he had taken no part in the senatorial contest, but that in ordinary every day conversation the matter was frequently discussed. He denied that he had attended any conferences.

Admits Talk with Lorimer.

The witness admitted, however, he discussed the matter with Senator Lorimer in October of 1908. He could not recall what the conversation was. Mr. Healy asked him if it was not of sufficient importance to impress itself on his memory, and he replied:

"No, I think I said I would be gratified if the outcome could be the election of Mr. Lorimer as senator. I think he said he thought it was impossible, or, at least, that he had not given it any consideration. I think that must have happened, Mr. Healy, every time that I saw Mr. Lorimer. I know I made that remark to him a number of times."

MR. HEALY—When was that conference or conversation?

MR. YATES—I am not sure about the date. I said to Mr. Lorimer: "I see that you have had a talk with Gov. Deneen." He said: "Yes," and I referred to a call or a meeting that Senator Lorimer had with Mr. Deneen. I asked him if they talked about the senatorship. He said: "Yes." I said: "Well, did he offer it to you?" He said: "No." I said: "Did you offer it to him?" He said: "No." I think that was the extent of the conversation, except that I said: "I am going away. If you make Mr. Deneen United States senator you will have to do it without my able assistance," or words to that effect.

Writes Lorimer Calling Deneen 'Liar.'

MR. HEALY—Between Feb. 15 and April 8, 1909, had you communicated, by letter or otherwise, with anybody in reference to the senatorial situation?

MR. YATES—Yes, sir, I wrote a letter to Mr. Lorimer. I said: "I see by the papers you and your friends have definitely determined to support Gov. Deneen for United States senator. That support is in all of the latest papers that I have received." I think I said: "You and your friends may have it in your power to do this, but after you have done it and it is all settled I want you to do me the favor to call Mr. Deneen aside and tell him that you have one friend who says that he is a liar still and I am the man."

SENATOR KENYON—Did you prefer to tell that in a letter than to tell it to the man's face?

MR. YATES—O, no; I have told him to his face.

SENATOR KENYON—You have?

MR. HEALY—Upon what occasion?

Reproached Deneen in Own Office.

MR. YATES—O, I do not know. Once or twice.

MR. HEALY—Where?

MR. YATES—I suppose it was in his office, when I found fault with the way in which he had supported me for United States senator.

MR. HEALY—You mean his office as governor?

MR. YATES—Yes, sir.

MR. HEALY—And do you want the committee to understand you went into the governor's office and there told him that, in your judgment, he was a liar still?

MR. YATES—I do not think I used the word "liar." I do not think I used the "short and ugly" word.

MR. HEALY—What was the occasion of that conversation and that remark on your part?

MR. YATES—The occasion was that I found fault with the character of his support of me for United States senator and told him I thought he had deceived me and had not told me the truth. That was all there was to it.

Deneen "Not Much Excited."

MR. HEALY—Will you tell us when the first time was that you made that remark to Gov. Deneen?

MR. YATES—No, sir, I cannot tell you. I think on two or three different occasions I told Gov. Deneen I considered he had not told me the truth, and that I did not like it, and so on, etc. I cannot recall the exact words.

SENATOR JONES—What response did the governor make?

MR. YATES—I do not recall. He did not get much excited.

MR. HEALY—On either of those occasions did you use the "short and ugly" word?

MR. YATES—I think not, but I do not think there was any misunderstanding between us in regard to it.

MR. HEALY—Upon your return to Springfield did you become actively interested or engaged in that contest?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

Actively Interested in Election.

MR. HEALY—Did you confer with Mr. Lorimer or any other of the men who were at Springfield and who were engaged in the matter?

MR. YATES—No, sir. I did not have any conference. I did not confer. I was in the St. Nicholas hotel, and I would have encountered Mr. Lorimer's friends and Senator Hopkins' friends in the elevator and in the office repeatedly, every few minutes.

MR. HEALY—Did you ever become actively interested or engaged in the matter?

MR. YATES—About forty-eight hours before it was known there was a possibility of Senator Lorimer's election—that is, before it was generally known.

MR. HEALY—Who gave you the information, or with whom did you talk about the matter at that time?

MR. YATES—I think it was Mr. Lorimer.

MR. HEALY—What was said?

MR. YATES—I think I said that some of Mr. Lorimer's friends told me that there was a chance or opportunity for him to be elected; that I was very glad to know it, and that I should like to assist in any way within my power.

Discussed Situation with Lorimer.

MR. HEALY—Was anything else said at that time by you or Mr. Lorimer?

MR. YATES—I think he said he thought it might be possible, but I do not want to fix the time. I do not know just when this occurred.

MR. HEALY—Your best recollection is that it was within a few days before the senatorial election?

MR. YATES—O, yes. Yes; my recollection is that in this last talk that I ever held with Senator Lorimer on this subject he did say he thought it was possible. I should say this was about forty-eight hours before.

MR. HEALY—Prior to this conversation which you say occurred about forty-eight hours before the senatorial election you had met Senator Lorimer from time to time in the corridors of the St. Nicholas hotel?

MR. YATES—Yes, sir. Mainly at the hotel. I do not think I ever met him anywhere except at the hotel and at the statehouse.

MR. HEALY—Had you attended any of the legislative sessions?

MR. YATES—Yes.

MR. HEALY—And was this first conversation which you had with him, forty-eight hours before May 26, the first intimation or definite knowledge you had that Mr. Lorimer would be a candidate before the Illinois legislature?

MR. YATES—Yes; to the best of my recollection.

MR. HEALY—And that was the first time you began to regard him seriously as a candidate for that position?

MR. YATES—Yes. Prior to that time he had told me, as often as I had suggested it, that he thought it was not possible.

MR. HEALY—Did Senator Lorimer request you on that occasion to see any member or members of the legislature, or to do any special or definite work to aid his fight?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

Talked with Lorimer Again.

Mr. Yates said it was probable he had talked with Senator Lorimer again after this first conversation, but he had no recollection of what passed between them. He remembered talking with Len Small and Speaker Shurtleff "every two or three hours" Representative Chiperfield, Representative Shanahan, Representatives Wilson and Lyons, State Senator McCormick, and a good many others. He denied that he reported to any one in Springfield or Chicago or any other place the senatorial situation at Springfield.

MR. HEALY—You did not attend any of the conferences or caucuses which were held in that St. Nicholas hotel during the ten or fifteen days preceding the senatorial election. Did you go to Senator Lorimer's room, if he had a room at that hotel?

MR. YATES—I do not think I was in his room after he became a candidate.

Was in Lee O'Neil Browne's Room.

MR. HEALY—Did you go to Mr. Browne's room—the room of Lee O'Neil Browne?

MR. YATES—I was in Mr. Browne's room once. Mr. Browne at that time had a room adjoining my room. We went up in the elevator one night together and he asked me to come in and have a cigar. I think that was it. And we sat there and chatted and smoked a little while, and then I left and went on to my room, which was an adjoining room without any door in between. We did not discuss the senatorial matter at that time or any other time.

MR. HEALY—During the latter part of May, 1909, had you conferred with Mr. Drennan of the Illinois Central in reference to the senatorial election

MR. YATES—I think not. I would not swear positively, but I think not.

MR. HEALY—Were you representing in any way the Illinois Central at that time?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

MR. HEALY—Did you have a telephone conversation on the morning of Mr. Lorimer's election with anybody in Chicago?

MR. YATES—Possibly. I would not swear to that.

MR. HEALY—Do you know Mr. Edward Hines?

MR. YATES—Yes, sir.

Denies Telephone Conversation.

MR. HEALY—Did you have a telephone conversation with Mr. Hines on the morning of May 26, 1909, from Springfield to Chicago?

MR. YATES—I did not. I did not know Mr. Hines at that time. I had never seen him.

MR. HEALY—Do you recollect having a telephone conversation with any other person on that day in reference to the senatorial situation?

MR. YATES—I am quite sure I did not; but I could tell by looking at my telephone memorandum bills handed in by the Central Union Telephone company. I do not want to swear that I did not, but I am quite sure I did not.

SENATOR FLETCHER—Governor, I will ask you, as a result of your experience, in cases of deadlock, like that, has it ever occurred that members belonging to one party have finally cast their ballots for the candidate from another party.

MR. YATES—Yes, sir.

Fletcher Takes a Hand.

SENATOR FLETCHER—Was there anything in that situation which suggested improper influence, bad motives, bath faith, improper methods by reason of the fact that the Democrats, some fifty of them, finally voted for Senator Lorimer?

MR. YATES—No, sir.

SENATOR KENYON—You were interested in the Shurtleff speakership election, were you not?

MR. YATES—Yes.

SENATOR KENYON—Mr. Shurtleff was a close personal friend of yours, I assume?

MR. YATES—Yes.

YATES REVEALS SORDID SECRETS

He Tells Lorimer Committee of Jockeying for Illinois Offices

HEARD OF CORRUPTION.

MR. YATES—Yes.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you have anything to do with the arrangements looking to the election of Mr. Shurtleff as speaker?

MR. YATES—No.

Touches on Bipartisanship.

SENATOR KENYON—Did about the same number of Democrats vote for Shurtleff for speaker as voted for Mr. Lorimer for senator?

MR. YATES—Not so many, I think.

SENATOR KENYON—Were they substantially the same Democrats?

MR. YATES—I think there must have been very nearly fifty Democrats who voted for Speaker Shurtleff.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you take part in that—in the general political work leading up to that consummation?

MR. YATES—Yes, a little bit; not much.

Lorimer and Small Interested.

SENATOR KENYON—Did Mr. Lorimer take part in that?

MR. YATES—I think so. We were not in conference about it.

SENATOR KENYON—Did Mr. Small take part in that?

MR. YATES—Yes, I think we all did.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you take part, acting as a body in the election of the speaker?

MR. YATES—No. There was no conference where we checked up, or anything like that.

SENATOR KENYON—Oh, not where you checked up, but conferences where you talked it over?

MR. YATES—I think not.

SENATOR KENYON—But you were all working to the common purpose, were you not, to elect Shurtleff speaker?

MR. YATES—I cannot say anything about Mr. Lorimer, I do not recall.

May Have Consulted Lorimer.

SENATOR KENYON—You talked with him about it, did you not?

MR. YATES—I may have done so.

SENATOR KENYON—Where were you on the evening of the election of Speaker Shurtleff?

MR. YATES—I do not know.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you not, on that evening of the election of Mr. Shurtleff say: "The success of Shurtleff makes Lorimer senator?"

MR. YATES—I do not think so.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you have such an idea in your mind?

MR. YATES—No, I do not recall it.

SENATOR KENYON—As you look back at it now might it be entirely possible you said that?

MR. YATES—Yes.

SENATOR KENYON—The political conditions were such that the election of Shurtleff might have made the election of Lorimer possible.

MR. YATES—I might have said that. I do not know what the conditions were because I had hoped all the time it might result in the election of Lorimer.

Uncertain About Prediction.

SENATOR KENYON—Will you say that you did not state it?

MR. YATES—No, I will not say I did not state it.

SENATOR KENYON—And did you not talk to people concerning the election of Lorimer?

MR. YATES—I said to a good many persons that I hoped it would result in his election. But I did not work to that end and I did not believe that, because Mr. Lorimer had told me he thought it was impossible.

SENATOR KENYON—But the election of Mr. Lorimer was being discussed at the time of Mr. Shurtleff's election in that legislature.

MR. YATES—Only by me, so far as I know.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you say to a man named Phillips, a reporter for the Record-Herald, the night of the election of Speaker Shurtleff that it made the election of Mr. Lorimer certain, or made Lorimer senator, or substantially that.

MR. YATES—I do not know, senator. I know Mr. Phillips. We call him "Ted" Phillips. He is now a reporter for THE TRIBUNE. He is an honest man—a square boy, so far as I know. And if he says I said that I would say that I said it. But I have absolutely no recollection of having said it.

Shurtleff and Lorimer's Election.

SENATOR KENYON—And when Speaker Shurtleff was elected you thought it made that possible?

MR. YATES—I did not say so.

SENATOR KENYON—That was the first step?

MR. YATES—I did not say so. I did not know whether it was or not.

SENATOR KENYON—Looking back now, as a politician and with the experience you have had, it was a very important step, was it not?

MR. YATES—I had no plan of campaign. I had talked to Mr. Lorimer about this matter, but he said he thought it would not be possible, so I took no steps and I did not try to elect Speaker Shurtleff for the purpose of electing Mr. Lorimer as senator.

SENATOR KERN—What Democrat of respectability, or of prominence, or member of the legislature expressed a desire to you to have Lorimer elected?

MR. YATES—I don't know. I cannot give you any names.

Pressed by Senator Kern along this line, Mr. Yates added: "Well, I guess you and I are put up about the same way in regard to party principles; we go to the ditch."

"We have both been there, anyway," replied Mr. Kern, who was a recent Democratic candidate for vice president.

Ill Feeling Toward Lorimer.

SENATOR KENYON—After you were defeated for governor in the convention, you were quite bitter at Senator Lorimer?

MR. YATES—Not bitter, I do not think.

SENATOR KENYON—No; not bitter, perhaps, but you attributed your defeat to him.

MR. YATES—I could not say that.

SENATOR KENYON—You had made a number of appointments at the request of Mr. Lorimer, had you not?

MR. YATES—Some.

SENATOR KENYON—You dismissed some of those employés, immediately, did you not, after that convention?

MR. YATES—I think, but I am not sure.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you dismiss one from the floor of the convention immediately afterwards?

MR. YATES—If you could mention the name I probably could tell you.

SENATOR KENYON—Bidwill.

Ousted Bidwill at Convention.

MR. YATES—Joseph E. Bidwill; I asked his resignation at the convention.

SENATOR KENYON—You appointed him at the request of Senator Lorimer, did you not?

MR. YATES—I think so. No, I did not appoint him at the request of Senator Lorimer. I think I appointed him at the request of John M. Smyth and the Chicago organization, whatever they were.

MR. KENYON—The Chicago organization?

MR. YATES—The Chicago Republican organization. In that particular case I do not think Mr. Lorimer asked his appointment.

SENATOR KENYON—You had appointed the board of park commissioners for the west side in Chicago, had you?

MR. YATES—I had.

MR. YATES—I did not.

SENATOR KENYON—Did he have nothing to do with it?

MR. YATES—Practically nothing to do with it.

One Park Employe Discharged.

SENATOR KENYON—Did you dismiss or discharge any of them after that convention?

MR. YATES—One man, Mr. Cook.

SENATOR KENYON—Was that in a spirit of revenge?

MR. YATES—I do not recall when that happened. It was some little time after.

MR. HANECY—Gov. Deneen's friends represented to you and your friends, or represented to your friends, that your gracious act in joining his friends to nominate him and his friends on the state ticket would result in your nomination or your election for United States senator at the next vacancy which would be the end of Senator Cullom's term, did they not?

MR. YATES—Yes.

MR. HANECY—And that was told to you, was it not?

MR. YATES—Yes.

Pledge by Deneen's Friends.

MR. HANECY—And it was told to you by Gov. Deneen himself, was it not? He told you that because of your gracious act in nominating him, or asking your friends to, and that he and all of his friends would support you enthusiastically for United States senator at the end of Senator Cullom's term of office?

MR. YATES—Yes, I do not recall that Gov. Deneen ever said that before the nomination, but his friends did, on every conceivable occasion.

MR. HANECY—All through?

MR. YATES—All through, every day of the six weeks or five weeks.

MR. HANECY—And you understood that Gov. Deneen was, on his own volition, your supporter for United States senator, when Senator Cullom's term expired?

MR. YATES—I understood that from after that time he told me. I did not take anybody's word but his.

GLAVIS CAUGHT IN CHICAGO; WILL BE TAKEN TO CAPITAL.

Man Accused by "Tribune" as Embezzler Held at Harrison Street on Fugitive Warrant.

George O. Glavis, accused of stealing certain books, documents, and papers, the property of THE TRIBUNE, is held at the Harrison street police station on a fugitive warrant sworn out yesterday in Municipal Judge Maxwell's court by Detective Sergeant Werthheimer, at the request of the authorities at Washington, D. C.

A warrant charging Glavis with embezzlement was sworn out in Washington on Wednesday by James Keeley, general manager of THE TRIBUNE, after Glavis had refused to account for books and records of a business which Glavis said he had purchased with $650 given to him by THE TRIBUNE for the purpose. The books, according to Glavis, contained evidence of the payment of money to a certain senator and other officials of the government in connection with business relations before federal departments.

Glavis refused to make a statement to a reporter for THE TRIBUNE in his cell last evening.

"Whatever statement I have to make in regard to this charge will be made through the Chicago Inter Ocean," he said.

It is expected that the necessary extradition procedure will be finished today and Glavis started to the capital this evening.

DENEEN CALLED FOR INQUIRY.

Governor Gets Summons in Lorimer Case and Says He Is Willing to Appear.

Springfield, Ill., June 22.—A summons has been received by Gov. Deneen from the United States senate Lorimer inquiry committee.

The governor last Friday received a letter from Chairman Dillingham asking the governor to appear last Tuesday. Later word was received that he would not be wanted on that date.

The governor said today he did not know when he would be wanted by the committee, but expressed his willingness to appear at any time.

Fitzgerald Must Stand Trial.

A motion to quash an indictment against George W. Fitzgerald, former sorting teller for the subtreasury in Chicago, was overruled by Judge Landis in the United States District court yesterday afternoon. Fitzgerald must now appear before the court this afternoon and plead.

[From a photograph taken for THE TRIBUNE.]

East Chicago reports an unusual hot weather freak—an al fresco session of court. Justice of the Peace B. M. Cheney is the radical jurist. When the mercury began to mount in the East Chicago thermometers yesterday, the judge ordered an adjournment to a vacant lot across the street from the courtroom.

Court officers, witnesses, spectators, and parties concerned carried chairs, tables, and books to the commons where the trial of Charles Pitzeler, accused of misconduct, was resumed. Pitzeler was acquitted.

During the afternoon many East Chicagoans passing the court commons stopped for entertainment. Never before had the court enjoyed such an audience. Negligee attire, of course, went with the roofless tribunal.

BAR HEAD LASHES LORIMER

WIPE OUT STAIN, HE SAYS.

Tolman Report on Practice Adopted at Champaign Meeting.

Champaign, Ill., June 22.—[Special.]—"This state demands that this stain be removed from its fair name; the memory of such men of Illinois as Lincoln and Douglas and the long line of statesmen it has produced cries out for shame."

With these ringing words today William R. Curran of Pekin, president of the State Bar association, wound up a red hot excoriation of the methods that ruled in the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate.

Declaring that this was no question of partisan politics but a matter of higher importance, the veteran barrister declared his right to express an opinion of the legislative scandal in his annual address at the thirty-fifth annual meeting of the association, which opened at the University of Illinois. No one raised a voice in defense of the junior senator or the men who elected him.

"If state senators and representatives," he said, "standing in the place of the people of a great state for the purpose of electing a representative from that state to sit in the senate of the United States, fall from their high estate as statesmen and through a bipartisan agreement, or otherwise, elect by bribery any man as senator, whether he be the personal representative of private interest or not, whether he has guilty knowledge or not, they have struck a vital blow at the very foundation of representative government.

Treason to the State.

"Such an act is treason to the state and treason to the nation. The state may suffer such a wrong and continue a state, but it cannot long survive as a state if such wrongs go unrebuked and the wrongdoers permanently remain unpunished."

When Charles J. Connor of Chicago, chairman of the committee on new members, reported today he announced that 300 new members had been secured. This made the association the largest in the United States, with about 2,000 members.

John C. Richberg of Chicago reported for the committee on uniform state laws.

Debate Tolman Report.

Second only in interest to the denunciation of the Lorimer scandal was the debate over amendments to the law of pleading and practice. This was precipitated when Maj. Edgar B. Tolman of Chicago read the report of the committee on law reform, which approved with minor changes the conference bill in the legislature. This measure was brought up in the legislature to oppose the Gilbert bill, both perishing.

Unexpected opposition to having the association commit itself arose until Maj. Tolman, E. C. Kramer, and N. W. MacChesney of Chicago saved the day and the report was approved with only one voice in the negative. For the first time the state association by its delegates is formally committed to the conference bill, which practically puts the procedure up to the Supreme court.

The slate for officers of the association is:

For president—Horace Kent Tenney, Chicago.

For secretary-treasurer—John F. Voight, Mattoon.

INSANITY GROWS IN CHICAGO?

Judge Owens Says Paresis Increases 6 Per Cent Yearly.

ALIENISTS ON STATEMENT.

Doctors Assert Cases in Court Form No Basis for Conclusions.

County Judge John E. Owens said yesterday that insanity in Chicago is increasing at the rate of 6 per cent each year.

In the judgment of the court officials, the principal cause of the cases of insanity brought before the court is paresis. This opinion is based upon observation of the 1,230 cases which have appeared before this particular tribunal in the first six months of the current year, ending yesterday, and closing the first six months of Judge Owens' term of office as county judge.

Alienists, before whom these figures were laid yesterday evening, were inclined to doubt the authenticity of the figures as proof. They did not attempt to deny the figures themselves, but did deny that any conclusion drawn from the number of persons arraigned before Judge Owens was representative of the amount of actual insanity prevalent in Chicago.

Dr. Brown Disputes Statement.

It was stated by Dr. Sanger Brown that the facilities of Chicago are not such that a proper count can be made of those who were sane or insane. He denied the ability of the ordinary jury to pass upon a man's sanity without facilities for a long period of observation.

"We have no place," he said, "where the sanity of an individual may be tested before he is committed to an asylum. We have no way of determining whether the patient in question is insane or merely laboring under some temporary mental delusion. Chicago needs some observation ward such as they have in New York and other large cities to care for these unfortunates."

Says Figures Are High.

"I have not the figures at hand," said Dr. George W. Webster, "but it seems to me that the statement that insanity in Chicago is increasing at the rate of 6 per cent a year is a little bit high. If paresis can reasonably be assigned as the dominant cause of this increase, the blame should not be laid upon the system of treating the insane, but upon the sociological conditions which cause paresis.

"I do not believe that the hot weather has anything to do with it. Heat does not cause insanity, although it may bring it on. It is like the spark in the powder magazine. The spark cannot explode, although it may cause an explosion."

Fifty Cases Considered.

"It is a distressing fact that insanity is on the increase," said Judge Owens yesterday after he had heard a docket of fifty cases, "and it is still more regretfable that in the majority of these cases the cause seems to be paresis."

ROAD LOSES ASHES OF DEAD

Widow Finds Self in Pittsburg Minus Relics of Husband.

CHAUFFEUR ALSO "IN BAD."

Telegram Straightens Out Muddle of Changed Grips.

Through the mistake of a railroad company, Mrs. Mary E. White, 936 Fletcher street, found herself in Pittsburg, Pa., last night with a complete outfit of automobile mechanics' tools in the place of a brass urn containing the ashes of her husband, George S. White, who died a month ago.

At about the same time a chauffeur in New York was sorrowfully declining a job because in place of his necessary tools he was equipped only with a suitcase containing a number of articles of feminine apparel and a brass crematory urn.

Mechanic Loses Job.

"I'm sorry," the mechanic told Frank Cheske, an agent of the National Trades association, as they stood together in front of 120 Liberty street. "I'd like to have the job, but I can't do nothin' without the tools."

"Where are your tools?" inquired Cheske.

The mechanic dived down in a suitcase and produced some lacy shirtwaists, some black gowns, a tooth brush, a yellow pin cushion, and a brass crematory urn.

"Here they are," he said with some feeling. "The railroad company got us mixed up and I drew this baggage in Pittsburg. I've got somebody's ashes here and I'd like mighty well to return them."

Cheske offered to take care of the urn for him and notified the Pennsylvania railroad office of his acquisition.

Tangle Is Untangled.

The railroad company telegraphed Pittsburg, and in reply received the following message:

"Return suitcase at once. Am sending in its place man's suitcase with clothes and tools in on train No. 16. Lady very anxious."

The clothes and the crematory urn were started back, and by noon today Mrs. White presumably again will be in possession of her husband's ashes.

THREE ART WORKS GO TO LAKE FRONT

CHERRY MINE FOUNTAIN.

Work of Lorado Taft as $50,000 Memorial to Benjamin Franklin Ferguson.

Immortality is to be given the martyrs of the Cherry mine disaster. A sculptured fountain—the first public recognition in Chicago of the everyday heroism of labor—is to be erected on the north side of the Art institute.

It will be a part of the immense expenditure for beauty planned from the million dollar fund left to Chicago by Benjamin Franklin Ferguson. Another fountain in memory of the donor is to be placed on the south side of the institute.

In addition it is probable that a 250 foot gallery, designed in the manner of the Ponte Vecchio and hung with art masterpieces will be erected as a magnificent bridge across the Illinois Central tracks on the east side of the institute. The announcement was made by Director William R. French of the Art institute last night.

The gallery is to cost about $150,000. Already the plans are in the hands of Charles B. Coolidge, an architect of the firm of Shepley, Rutan & Coolidge of Chicago, New York, and Boston. It is to be built on the plan of the world famous gallery which extends across the river Arno in Florence, as an extension of the Uffizzi Art institute. The bridge across the Arno has for many years been known as the Ponte Vecchio, and along its walls are gathered some of the greatest masterpieces of art in the world.

I. C. Sanctions Bridge.

Director French of the Art institute said last night that although no part of the fund has yet been set aside for the work, the construction of the bridge has been completely sanctioned by Illinois Central officials. It is to be about 250 feet in length and 50 in width.

One of the two fountains contemplated is near completion. The contract was let to Lorado Taft. Its cost has been estimated at $50,000. It will be known as the "Great Lake fountain." Mr. Taft has been working on it for three years.

The contract for the erection of the Cherry memorial statue has not been awarded. It will probably go to an American sculptor, Mr. French says. The money used for this will come from the Ferguson endowment.

Donor Favors Practicality.

While the directors of the Art institute are the trustees of the Ferguson memorial fund the largest donation ever made to the institution, they are not hampered in their use of the income otherwise than by an injunction in the will, which states that it is the wish of the donor that the art works purchased be of a useful nature, as much as possible.

That is the reason why the directors of the Art institute have ordered a fountain of Lorado Taft, and another fountain to be built on the west side in memory of the Cherry heroes.

DOG BITES CHILD PROTECTOR.

John Zingel Saves Children from Attack and Is Wounded by Canine Affected with Rabies.

John Zingel, 1828 Fremont street, was bitten by a dog suffering from rabies yesterday after he succeeded in preventing the animal from biting a small boy and girl.

The dog was snapping at the children when Zingel noticed it at North avenue and Orchard street. He rushed to the rescue, kicking the dog away, but the animal turned upon him and bit him in the right arm.

Nine children and two other men were bitten by dogs yesterday, according to police reports.

Girl Found Dead in Chair.

Miss Emma Warner, 3921 Langley avenue, was found dead yesterday afternoon sitting in a chair in her home by Mrs. Henry Westberg of the same address. Death was due to heart trouble.

AUNT DELIA TORREY.

Aunt Delia Torrey will not object if a timidly obtrusive public looks briefly at her perfect happiness and passes on the better for having seen it. Always it is given to American women who bake pies for boys, sons, nephews, or grandsons to dream day dreams. There are many ways in which these come true and many in which they fail.

Aunt Delia Torrey in the White House, reading the telegrams of congratulation from all countries of the world to "Nephew Will," found all hers true. The mildly obtrusive public tiptoes by, observing a perfect happiness.

A DEMOCRACY AND A CORONATION.

A democracy fed its eyes with pageantry and its emotions with sentiment yesterday; its real leaders paid homage to its titular leader; its ancient pomp and circumstance flashed resplendently for a moment against the sober background of modernism; the days of Edward the Confessor were revived for a moment in the days of Lloyd-George. To the British it was a coronation—a solemn recognition of their history, an affirmation of their national being; to other observers a masque.

This democracy of Great Britain and the dominions over the seas, now engaged in social revolutions and governmental changes of astounding character, satiated itself temporarily with antiquities.

When the father of the present king was crowned at Westminster the reforms and revolutions in imperial and local government were but showing themselves as promises to the Liberals and threats to the Conservatives. The king crowned yesterday may live to observe their working out.

A mathematically imaginative Welshman, with common sympathies and common sense, David Lloyd-George, the chancellor, backed by the astute Asquith and supported by the Liberal-Labor-Nationalist combination, has carried first a skeptical, then antagonistic, and now acceptive nation to surprising lengths in recognition of state responsibility.

His success in forcing through the social program to which the Liberal party pledged itself may be called amazing. His budget of 1909 with its land tax reforms put the house of lords in its present perilous position and made the political emancipation of Ireland a practical certainty. From the initial success Lloyd-George has carried his party and even the opposition along to industrial, economic, and social reforms, to old age pensions, to a tremendous scheme of national insurance, including insurance against nonemployment, care of the sick and aged. England's social conditions were desperate. The legislative success of the Liberal party in dealing with them, success either secured or assured, has been amazing.

Politically the nation is freeing itself from the unsympathetic and hopelessly Tory house of lords as a means to several ends, of which one is the establishment of home rule in Ireland. The triple alliance of Liberals, Laborites, and Nationalists has been maintained by the honesty and tact of Asquith, whom Redmond and the Irish trust to obtain the emancipation of Ireland and whom the trade unions trust for fair recognition of labor interests in legislation.

The home rule bill stands behind the veto bill as its principal reason, so acknowledged, and the Osborne bill is a warrant of the government's good faith to labor, reestablishing the trade unions with recognized political rights which the courts practically had denied them by restricting their use of funds for political purposes.

This is the democracy—almost "socialistic" in the easy phraseology of our own republic—which crowned King George yesterday, pleasing itself with ancient emotions and antique sentiments. Outside of Great Britain the empire of which he is titular head is assuming perceptibly the aspect of a great federation. Sentiment is a part of the tie that binds it together, a tie to be strengthened by economic policies, but nevertheless a tie of sentiment to which the ceremonies of the coronation gave a physical aspect.

THE WATERWAY ISSUE.

Special privilege and crooked politics are in the open fighting viciously to beat conservation in Illinois at today's meeting of the legislature. They hope by means of a victory today and the election of a complacent governor a year from now to reestablish themselves in those profitable paths from which they have been so rudely driven.

Masters of the art of telling half truths and deliberate falsehoods, they are attempting to deceive the uninformed legislator and to furnish an excuse for the wrongful vote of a timid ally.

Consistency has no charms for them. They persistently repudiate today the very arguments which in the past they have used to defeat honest legislation. They have propounded a set of deceptive legal questions to the attorney general and lay stress on his conveniently worded replies. They pass over the history of corruption of two decades and take the measure before the legislature as though it were of recent origin.

The fact is that from the passage of the sanitary district act in 1889 there has been an uninterrupted struggle between those who sought to derive wealth by cunning from vast public enterprise and those who sought to protect the public interest.

Political platforms year after year reiterated the public demands. Unscrupulous politicians as frequently defeated them. Since the public interest could only be advanced by affirmative legislation, it has been the policy of the despoiler to paralyze the legislature while he unhampered and extended his control over the strategic positions.

Four years ago the grasp of private interest upon water power rights was weak. Action by the state would have been easier than now, but the control of the spoilsman upon the legislature was paralyzing. The conservation bills of that period were sidetracked by the adoption of a resolution for a constitutional amendment which it was thought would be rejected by the people. After the huge popular vote carrying the constitutional amendment, conservation was again postponed by a trumped-up conflict between conflicting engineering plans.

This year the former arguments are dropped and the main argument is that private interests in the meantime secured have rendered state conservation impossible.

Success to the forces of reaction at this time can only bring harm to all parties. The issue must come up more acutely and more bitterly year after year, until public control over the Desplaines and Illinois rivers is finally established. Those rivers furnish drainage to half the population of the state. Not only the great metropolitan population of Chicago depends upon it but so do the counties draining into the Fox and Kankakee rivers. As the population of this vast region becomes more dense, both in Chicago and without, work must be continually carried on to prevent pollution of our streams. Private ownership in the water courses can only result in continued embarrassment to the work demanded by sanitation.

Every considerable water course is a natural highway for commerce. The extent to which it may be so depends upon its natural size and the extent of its improvement; and the extent of its improvement, in turn, should be determined by the needs of transportation. With the growth of our country the needs of transportation are bound to increase, and if they are blocked by the existence of antagonistic private rights the entire public must suffer therefor.

It is patent that the power development possibilities of this stream must be developed to the utmost and that no harnessable power be wasted. Such a mode of development could only be secured by state control. Private corporations have not and cannot get authority to control the entire stream from end to end, nor can they, with an eye single to profit, ever make as beneficial a dispositon of the water course as the state, which alone will consider sanitation, navigation, and power development in the same project.

The public mind is made up upon this subject. Hitherto, in the absence of public excitement, the conservation movement has been led by men with the single purpose of public spirit. If the public mind is to be irritated by further disappointments the cause of conservation will be seized upon by the time server and the demagogue.

If, borne into power on a wave of popular indignation, these men will not hesitate to adopt a course of confiscation, the constitutional rights of property owners cannot prevent the loss in stock values which comes to companies that are in violent conflict with the public authorities.

Failure to pass a conservation bill at this session means delay of a great public improvement. It means loss of money to the public treasury. It means a raid upon the corporations popularly held accountable. It means political upheaval.

It is far better that now, while it is possible, the legislature should pass an act which will permit the reimbursement to riparian owners of their fair investments, which will put the state in immediate possession of the enormous assets it has accated, and which will open the way for a beginning of river commerce.

THE WOOL BILL.

If the house bill revising the duties on wool and woolens had gone to the senate finance committee without instructions, it would have been buried there. Naturally the Democratic senators voted for the resolution directing the committee to report back the bill on or before July 10. Of the Republicans who voted with them some may favor the measure. Others are hostile to reciprocity, which they mistakenly assert will harm the farmers. They have been hinting that if the duties on Canadian farm products were removed they would join with the Democrats in a general reduction of the duties on manufactured goods. Whether they would do it when it came to a roll call is not so certain.

The threat conveyed in their action Wednesday should not have any effect on the reciprocity bill—should not cost it one vote. That measure has the right of way. It will retain it even if it should not have been finally disposed of by the time the wool bill shall have been reported back to the senate. When it is out of the way the senate can, if it pleases, take up the wool bill. President Taft has said that the tariff board was ordered last April to submit a report on Schedule K by December. That is a good reason why the finance committee should not be allowed to spend time on futile hearings in which the manufacturers would sing their old song. It is also a reason for putting off final action on the bill until full information shall be had.

LAFE YOUNG'S POLL.

Col. Lafe Young has been polling the Republican and independent papers of Iowa on the Canadian reciprocity agreement. The Iowa editor disputed the good faith of THE TRIBUNE'S poll. This paper, more polite or with greater confidence in editorial honesty, will not accuse him of faking. It will not take him to task for challenging the accuracy of a statement this paper never made. It might be ungracious to do that after he has shown how strong the reciprocity sentiment is among the limited number of strictly Republican papers whose views he has ascertained.

What his laborious poll shows is that 148 Republican and independent papers have told him that they are against reciprocity, while only 143 are for it. The more comprehensive TRIBUNE poll showed a slightly larger number against it. It showed also a much larger number for reciprocity. Manifestly many of its friends were among the 245 who, as Col. Young says, "failed to answer." Having stated their views to THE TRIBUNE, a paper in which they have confidence, they did not think it worth while to answer Col. Young, even at the risk of being cut off his exchange list.

Canadian reciprocity is favored by a majority of the Republican editors and voters of Iowa. But if the esteemed editor of the Des Moines Capital can get any comfort out of his diminutive poll he is welcome to it. If it consoles him in any degree for his failure to get elected to the senate—a failure which may have soured a little his naturally sweet disposition—it would be a shame to rob him of that consolation.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1911: By the Brentwood Company.]

KING GEORGE has notified the Marquis of Breadalbane, as the keeper of his privy seal of Scotland, to be in official attendance at Edinburgh when the court takes up its residence in Holyrood palace next month.

Lord Breadalbane has many titles besides his marquisate, including one earldom in the united kingdom, two Scotch earldoms, three viscounties, half a dozen baronies, and a baronetcy. His Scotch earldoms are unique in the British peerage. For Charles II. caused them to be made out to Sir John Campbell of Glenorchy, with remainder to whichever son he chose, which, failing, to any of his heirs whatsoever. So that as long as the world lasts the earldoms of Breadalbane and Holland are certain to survive.

I may add this first Earl of Breadalbane availed himself of this right, and, barring his eldest son, who was an imbecile, from the succession, nominated his second son.

The story of how King Charles came to bestow these honors upon Sir John Campbell is most peculiar. For Sir John purchased at a relatively small cost all the liabilities of the sixth Earl of Caithness, and then dunned that unfortunate man until he made over to him a reversion, not only of his estates but also of his earldom and other hereditary titles.

When this Lord Caithness died in 1672 Sir John Campbell proceeded by virtue of this act of reversion and with the sanction of the authorities to invade Caithness at the head of a band of armed retainers and clansmen, to enforce his rights.

The historic event is commemorated in the well known song, "The Campbells are coming!" He then made a demand upon King Charles, to whose restoration he had largely contributed, for a patent confirming him in the titles of seventh Earl of Caithness and of Lord Sinclair of Berriedale.

Four years later the courts and the house of lords, to whom George Sinclair, cousin of the sixth Earl of Caithness, had presented his claims, decided in the petitioner's favor, and Charles II., convinced of his error, induced the former Sir John Campbell to abandon the earldom of Caithness to George Sinclair, and bestowed upon him instead the earldoms of Breadalbane and Holland, with the curious remainder which I have mentioned above.

The earldom of Holland has no relation whatsoever to the Netherlands, but was created in favor of Sir John Campbell by reason of his marriage to Mary Rich, daughter of Lord Holland, with whom he received a large dowry.

It is said Sir John was so fearful of not being able to get away with his bride's dowry that he brought a perfect army of Campbell clansmen, armed to the teeth, with him to London for the marriage, immediately after which he set out for Scotland, carrying his bride behind him on horseback, while her dot of £30,000 was carried in leather bags.

The father of the present Marquis of Breadalbane, that is to say, the sixth earl, was not allowed to succeed to the family honors and estates, which extend over thousands of acres, without a severe struggle. For a claimant appeared in the person of a certain Charles William Campbell, who urged that William John Campbell, the father of the sixth earl, was illegitimate.

It seems the sixth earl's grandfather, Capt. James Campbell of the Fencibles, eloped with the wife of a country doctor of the name of Christopher Ludlow, with whom he lived thenceforth as man and wife in Scotland and elsewhere, and whom he wedded ecclesiastically as soon as Dr. Ludlow died.

The couple had three children, an elder son and two younger sons, twins, who died in infancy. The questions raised were as to whether Dr. Ludlow was still alive at the time of the birth of this eldest son; secondly, whether his death would have had the effect of at once legalizing the union of his wife and of Capt. James Campbell, as a Scotch common law marriage; and thirdly, whether the subsequent ecclesiastical marriage would have the effect of legalizing in the eyes of Scottish law the birth of the boy, if born during the lifetime of Dr. Ludlow.

After long deliberation and much discussion the committee of privileges of the house of lords, by a small majority, decided in favor of the legitimacy of the sixth Lord Breadalbane's father, largely owing to the impossibility of obtaining any definite information respecting the precise date of Dr. Ludlow's death; and the consequence was that the crown, on the recommendation of the committee of privileges, confirmed the sixth Lord Breadalbane in his honors and estates.

The present Lord Breadalbane is no stranger to America, which he frequently has visited with his marchioness, and also spent some time in the Rockies in pursuit of big game.

He is a stately personage, who enjoyed the high favor of Queen Victoria, whom he served in turn as treasurer and as lord steward of the royal household, and who presented him with the Order of the Garter. He has acted as special ambassador on several occasions, which have won for him many high foreign orders. But the decoration which he values above all others is the medal which he received years ago for saving the life of one of his servants at the imminent risk of his own.

Lady Breadalbane is a sister of the present Duke of Montrose, is a wonderful rifle shot, and excels every other woman in Scotland in the art of deer stalking. She is at her best at her Scottish home in Taymouth castle, which occupies the exact center of the heart of Scotland, and where she can run her motor in one unbroken line for more than a hundred miles from the castle without once leaving her husband's estates.

I have mentioned above the curious provisions of inheritance of Lord Breadalbane's two Scottish earldoms. Oddly enough, a similar provision had been made almost a hundred years before their creation in connection with the baronetcy bestowed upon his ancestor, Sir John Campbell, popularly known as "Black Duncan," the founder of the great fortunes of the family, and celebrated as a traveler and arboriculturist.

It is the only baronetcy that, according to the provisions of its patent, is heritable in the female line as well as in the male line.

Lord and Lady Breadalbane have no children, and the heir to the marquis' earldoms (although not to his marquisate), to his great estates, and to the chieftainship of the Breadalbane Campbells, and to that wonderful service of gold plate, valued at $1,000,000, which the marquis was wont to send to the Perth railroad station for use by Queen Victoria when she breakfasted or dined at the station restaurant on her trips between Balmoral and Windsor, is his brother, the Hon. Ivan Campbell, one of King George's gentlemen at arms.

Members of the Orthodox rite likewise may attend religious services and gatherings of other denominations without let or hindrance. The only thing that remains strictly forbidden and which entails punishment is the proselytising of children of the Orthodox rite by other rites.

Faith in heart and faith in tongue;—
Gone the things that meaning gave

Now a Cockney paladin
Winds a penny horn of tin.

Jostle "Yanks" with camping stools;—

"THE FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE."

COMPLAINS OF A GARAGE.

Chicago, June 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—There is a garage in the rear of a business street, but the garage entrance faces the rear of residence property. The owner uses vacant property in the neighborhood for repairing machines. As you know, these people are noisy and in every way detrimental to the neighborhood. Every tenant and owner around objects to them. We have a petition with twenty or more names signed to it and presented it to our alderman. He informs us that nothing can be done. Something must be done in this case to protect our interests. Will you advise what steps can be taken to have this nuisance removed? MR. J. B.

Unless a garage is situated in a residence block no frontage consent is necessary. In the circumstances you describe there is probably no way in which the garage can be disturbed, unless it is a public nuisance or a menace to health, in which case the police or health department should be notified.

CAUSE OF "L" TRAIN DELAYS.

Chicago, June 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I have your note inclosing letter with reference to the complaint of one of our patrons on the Garfield park line living in Oak Park. The running of trains past stations in Oak Park is occasioned by delays making trains late at the Chicago Great Western railroad crossing. When our trains are delayed by being blocked at this crossing it becomes necessary to run past certain of the stations in order to get back on time, otherwise the gap between trains would become greater and greater as the train approached the city, with the accumulation of passengers at each station east of Fifty-second avenue. In order that station stops will not exceed a specified time loading passengers, and to properly distribute the passengers, we operate trains every three minutes. If this interval east of Fifty-second avenue is not preserved the entire schedule is interfered with, due to the large number of passengers loading at each station in the thickly settled portion of the city. This is the reason why trains when delayed by the railroad crossings are run past certain stations in the more sparsely populated district.

We only make this movement when absolutely necessary, as we appreciate the inconvenience to our patrons. In order to improve this and other conditions, we intend to construct two additional tracks from Fifty-second avenue to the village of Forest Park, and hope to have them completed this fall, providing no obstacle intervenes. B. J. BUDD,
President Metropolitan West Side Elevated Railway company.

MESS HAS BEEN CLEANED.

Chicago, June 18.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Behind a building at 1052 West Sixty-third street there is no less than one and one-half loads of garbage and about two loads of filth that was taken out of the basement. It has been standing there for a little over two months. The board of health has been notified, but nothing has been done. When it rains the tenants have to keep their windows down. F. E. WARD.

The superintendent of the Thirty-first ward reports that this has been cleaned. The rubbish was not in the alley, but on their own premises.
F. W. SOLON,

DENIES CONDITIONS ARE BAD.

Chicago, June 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Replying to the complaint made by E. F. Creevy as to condition of the alley between Sixty-ninth and Seventieth street, Union and Lowe avenues, the superintendent of the Thirty-second ward reports that this alley is cleaned regularly twice a week, on Mondays and Thursdays, and is in good condition. F. W. SOLON,
Acting Superintendent of Streets.

GOOD TO THE STATE LINE.

In answering John Fedosky Sr. the other day The Friend of the People erred in telling him about the 5 cent zone on the street car service of the south side. The mistake was in thinking he had boarded a Hammond car with a transfer from Sixty-third street. Instead, he came from a Sixty-seventh street car belonging to what was the Calumet and South Chicago line. He was therefore entitled to ride to the state line, about One Hundred and Sixth street. Had he come from a City railway car on Sixty-third street his transfer would only have been good to Seventy-ninth street, as explained the other day.

COMPLAINS OF MAIL DELIVERY AND COLLECTION.

Chicago, June 19.—[To the Friend of the People.]—We noticed Postmaster Campbell's defense in regard to deliveries of mail, in one of your recent issues. One thing is certain. Not all localities of equal importance and of equal distance from the center of the city are treated alike.

We are located near the intersection of Seventy-third street, Wentworth avenue, and Vincennes road. It is the business center for a territory running from four to six blocks either way.

We only get two deliveries a day now, one about 8 a. m., the other at 3 p. m., which is a hardship, but is not near so bad as the mail pick up we get. The last mail at this busy corner is picked up at 8:15 p. m., whereas you can go into some of the residence districts five or six blocks either way and they have pick ups after 10 p. m.

The writer is about the city all day, and when he gets back in the evening has to figure his jobs and get out his quotations to his customers, and only in rare cases is able to get his mail out by 8:15 p. m., and then has to carry his letters from four to six blocks to find a box where they will be picked up the same night and reach his customers in the morning.

The time on this particular box used to be 9:30 p. m. This was changed to 8:15 without any mention being made on the box that such a change had been made, and we mailed letters there at 9 p. m. before being aware of the change. It was of the utmost importance to us that some of these letters should have been in the hands of our customers the following morning, as they contained proofs for which we were holding presses; but instead of that were not received until late in the afternoon, thereby causing us a monetary loss on account of having to let our machines stand idle waiting to hear from customers to go ahead.

On Sundays we do not seem to get any pick up at all. About two weeks ago the writer mailed a letter at 1 p. m. on Sunday, intended for the neighborhood of Archer avenue and Loomis street, which did not come to hand until 5 p. m. on Monday. Considering the above facts we feel that we do not get a square deal. J. N. WATRY.
President Keystone Printing company.

STONE WILL BE REARRANGED.

Chicago, June 19.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I would like to call your attention to an injustice which is being imposed upon the people living near Sixty-sixth street on Marshfield avenue (streets to the west also). Several weeks ago a contractor saw fit to unload and leave about forty yards of crushed stone on both sides of the street, which completely blocks the sewer, thus making it not only a menace to the public, but it also has our lawns destroyed. Through the good graces of your paper we trust something can be done to have this removed or remedied. SUBSCRIBER.

Marshfield avenue is to be paved by the American Asphalt Paving company, and stone and granite dumped on the street are needed in this work. However, I have instructed the ward superintendent to notify the contractor to see that inlets to catch basins are not obstructed so that there will be proper drainage in the event of rain. F. W. SOLON,

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

NO SPLIT, HE SAYS, AMONG PROGRESSIVES.

New York, June 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Had those voters who are easily misled done some hard thinking they would have paid little or no attention to the canard "that there is a wide split in the ranks of the progressives in the senate." Not all of the progressive senators may approve of all of the principles and reforms advocated by the National Progressive Republican league. But they all without a shadow of doubt approve of some of the principles and reforms of that league. According to Washington reports there are millions of voters throughout the length and breadth of this land who cannot see any progress in "representative government."

Had these self-same voters paid less attention to silly reports and paid more attention to authentic reports they would have learned by this time of the phenomenal progress as to "representative government" in more than half of the states of our common country.

The Washington humorists also try to make the people believe that there is no protest against the renomination of the present incumbent of the White House. Senator Jonathan Bourne Jr. suggested to the newspaper editors and representatives to propound these two questions to the first hundred Republicans they meet: First, Who will be the nominee of the next Republican national convention? Second, Who will be president? Then on the assumption that no convention will ever nominate a man that the delegates in the convention believe will inevitably be defeated, see what conclusions they come to as to who will not be the Republican nominee.

The senator from Oregon is an able statesman and one of the most adroit and practical politicians in the country. He knows what he is talking about. The progressives will doggedly stick to one thing, to make propaganda for the progressive principles. Reactionaries in both political parties, please take notice. BELA TOKAJI,
President National Progressive Republican League of the State of New York.

THE AURORA MEDICAL REPORT.

Galesburg, Ill., June 19.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The present contest in the Chicago Medical society over the election of president for the coming year has given rise to many misstatements regarding the report of the committee on medical education of the Illinois State Medical society at Aurora. In order to clear the situation a little permit the following statement of facts:

1. The report of the committee on medical education was not written to influence the impending election in the Chicago Medical society. The writer of the report did not know until the Aurora meeting that that society was to have a midsummer election.

2. "That the report was written by Dr. M. L. Harris of Chicago." It was not. Dr. Harris knew nothing of the contents of the report.

3. "That the report was merely the personal opinion of Dr. Percy." This again is a misstatement of fact. Drs. Edwin W. Ryerson of Chicago and E. Mammen of Bloomington were the other active members of the committee. The report was written only on the basis of what the whole committee agreed upon previous to its writing.

4. "That Dr. Percy insulted the profession of Cook county in the report." The report is to be published just as it was read at Aurora. But a word will be changed. This when printed will be a sufficient answer to this ungeneerous charge.

The report told of the actual conditions of medical education in Chicago. What it contained on this point cannot be refuted. Indeed no attempt has been made either by the Chicago Medical society or by the Illinois state board of health to deny the facts presented in the Aurora report. This would seem to justify one of the recommendations of the Aurora report, viz.: that the "downstate members of the medical profession, together with the very large number of physicians in Cook county who are heartily disgusted with present day methods of a large part of the brand of medical education which exists in Chicago, get together and clean up a system that permits not only the degradation of the medical profession but the existence unhindered of disease and death among the people.

THINK BEFORE YOU VOTE.

Champaign, Ill., June 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Nothing does me any more good than to see your fight on Lorimer. So far he hasn't voted once for the people's interests; always against them. I didn't prize my vote once at all; I just went to the polls and voted a straight Republican ticket. Now I consider the candidates on the ticket. I would like to know how Congressman McKinley from this district, a Lorimer man, could represent the people's interest. His interests and the people's interests conflict, and naturally they look after their own. It is time the people looked into the way they voted. A SUBSCRIBER.

WOMAN'S INDEPENDENCE AND DIVORCE.

Chicago, June 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Referring to the article in this morning's paper signed by J. E. Waters on the divorce question, this is the first article containing any sense that I have seen on the subject for some time. People with the "holier than thou" attitude preach against divorce, but these are usually the ones that are not personally interested in the subject and therefore have no conception of how two people who have loved one another can become so antagonized that the ends of the world are not far enough apart for them. Why two people who find they are not compatible or for other serious reasons find life unendurable together should be forced to live together for the rest of their lives is more than I can see. The chief reason there are so many more divorces than twenty years ago is that women are now able to take care of themselves and it is not necessary to put up with cruelty, infidelity, etc., "for the sake of the children." She can now earn a large enough salary to bring up a family in an intelligent and Christianlike manner.

SPOOK SENT NOTES OF LOVE; NOT SEE

Defense Will Blame Spirit as Author of Letters to Mildred Bridges.

STATE NEARS THE END.

Last of Prosecution's Testimony Against "Prophet" Expected Late This Afternoon.

With the assumption that the same "spirit" who wrote the "Book of Truth," addressed the love note found at the door of Mildred Bridges' room in the house of Evelyn Arthur See, the attorneys for the defense hope to clear their client of suspicion.

It will be declared by his lawyers that See, whose own personality was at any time likely to be superseded by that of the "spirit," had nothing to do with the love note. The note follows:

Dear Mildred: I hope you will sleep well tonight. This is a hard bed, but I had to leave you some word tonight after the many notes I found everywhere. We are winning a great deal. I love you.

EVELYN.

The notes referred to in the "Dear Mildred" epistle are suppose to be those which Mona Rees and Mildred left for their "teacher" one night when they were compelled to be absent. The attempt to prove that the answer was written by the "spirit" rather than the man, See, is prophetic of the line of defense. It will be contended that many other documents in the handwriting of See are really the work of the same "spirit," who has been mentioned so often in the testimony of Mildred Bridges.

Testimony Reaches Critical Point.

At a critical point in yesterday's testimony State's Attorney Burnham asked the girl if she thought See was an ordinary mortal or a divinity and if she imagined physical or spiritual hands had written the note.

"I don't know," she answered. "The physical and the spiritual See are persons of entirely distinct embodiment."

It was but one example of the cryptic replies with which she forestalled the state. All day she sat on the witness stand, retaining her extraordinary composure, answering harmless questions quickly and in a straightforward manner and dangerous questions with a vagueness and solemnity which made Mr. Burnham clench his teeth and added not one trace of tangible evidence against the defendant.

See, as he sat listening to the girl's testimony, resembled in no way a spirit. His coat was pulled half from his shoulders; his forehead was wet with human perspiration; his long, gray hair hung, rumpled, above his wilted collar. He was apparently tired. His overhanging eyebrows frowned wearily; the light suit that he has worn all through the trial seemed dingy and mussed.

Mildred Also Looks Weary.

Mildred Bridges showed the same weariness. Her answers came slower than on Wednesday. Often she paused to think, and one hand, clutching a handkerchief, passed frequently through the space between her throat and her linen collar.

She watched her every moment. In his eyes was expressed an indefinable interest; it might have been love, anxiety, or wonder. He appeared to feel some affection for the child who for three days of merciless examination has remained loyal to him. When she seemed perplexed his forehead wrinkled in sympathy; when the questions of the prosecution made her turn appealingly to Judge Honoré, he waited with threatening eyes fixed upon the offending attorney.

Whatever the life of Mildred Bridges and Mona Rees may have been in the "Absolute temple," it has not destroyed their allegiance to See, and whatever selfish consideration may be in the man's heart, he is not indifferent to the sufferings of the woman he has designated as "the flower of his life."

It was a day of doubtful progress for the state. At every turn the prosecuting attorney was met by the meaningless mysticism of the "Absolute Life." In reply to direct, logical questions he received worthless "truisms"; in answer to questions which seemed unescapable, he was given cryptic evasions which answered without explaining. Mildred Bridges, 17 years old, played with law. She was as elusive as a moth miller. For three hours Assistant State's Attorney Burnham fought with her; then his examination ended and See's attorneys were given an opportunity.

Works Change in Girl.

Instantly the whole attitude of the girl changed. In the place of uncertainty came conviction; in the place of forgetfulness, remembrance; in the place of contradiction, logic. Her dark eyes brightened; her mobile young face lit with interest. She was no longer tired. To the questions of Attorneys Cantwell and James Callahan she replied with eager readiness. She was willing to speak so long as there was no danger of her revelations reflecting upon her "dear one," Evelyn Arthur See.

She was willing to blacken the reputation of father; to denounce him as a man of low understanding and brutal indifference. Except for objections she might have said more in his disfavor. At every mention of See's name her lips parted and she testified in fervent praise. The father, who had attempted to separate her from him, was worthy only of calumny.

In her belief, she testified at the beginning of the session, See was the "spirit of truth." His letters, mentioning "motherhood" and "wifehood," referred to things which were not concrete, but symbols of the "perfect form of truth."

Yet he did not write the "Book of Truth."

"Did the body of the defendant write on that paper?" Mr. Burnham asked the girl, referring to the "Book of Truth."

Bodily See Didn't Write.

"No," was her immediate answer. "He was prompted by the 'spirit.'"

"Who was the 'spirit'?" The prosecuting attorney's tone was sarcastic.

"The spirit of good." Mildred did not hesitate a second.

Several times she contradicted the statements which she made Wednesday, but on every occasion she evaded an accusation with some unrevealing bit of the occult from the "Absolute Life." Her belief in the "Absolute Life" as a divine revelation was again and again made evident, and her faith in See as a "God-man" she made no attempt to deny.

"Is your knowledge of See's faith now complete?" Mr. Burnham asked her.

"No."

"Why not?"

"Because I lack the power to answer even your questions in the way I should like to, and because of some of my actions."

"Then more study of the 'Absolute Life' will enlighten you more as to the manner in which my questions should be answered?"

"It will not enlighten me, but it will so show me the truth that I can reply without saying things which I do not mean."

The attorneys for the state and the defense had hot words at frequent intervals over admission of evidence. The usual conditions of court proceedings were strangely reversed. Mildred, as an unwilling court witness, really received her cross examination first and her direct examination second. The state will have another chance today to secure from her some statement similar to those extracted by the police when the "temple" was raided.

The purpose of the state plainly was not so much to bring out the relations between See and his girl devotees, as to prove minor points of no actual connection with See's guilt or innocence.

Some of these points were:

That Mildred's father made her home life unpleasant.

That See had sympathized with the alleged ill treatment of Clara Jenny, the girl who testified that she saw See and Mildred in night costume in a bedroom of the flat.

That Mildred's father was interested in the "Absolute Life," and that he willingly gave his daughter into See's hands.

Ready to Admit Points.

To these things the witness was plainly ready to answer in the affirmative, but was usually stopped by Judge Honore. See's sympathy with the Jenny girl was proved by a letter directed to her foster father, and the interest of Stephen H. Bridges in the "Absolute Life" by his daughter's testimony.

The matter of Mildred's relations with See was put to her squarely by James Callahan, attorney for the defense, in the defense's examination.

"Was your life pure before you met Mr. See?" the attorney asked her.

"Yes, sir."

"Is it equally pure now?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you ever done anything to rob it of its purity?"

"No, sir." The answers were fast and emphatic. A few moments later the girl swore that in addressing See as "husband" and signing herself as "wife," she had no idea of the construction which the world puts on the words.

"It is merely a form," she said, "that I had of addressing Mr. See. It referred to the unity of the absolute life."

War of Porches on Douglas Boulevard.

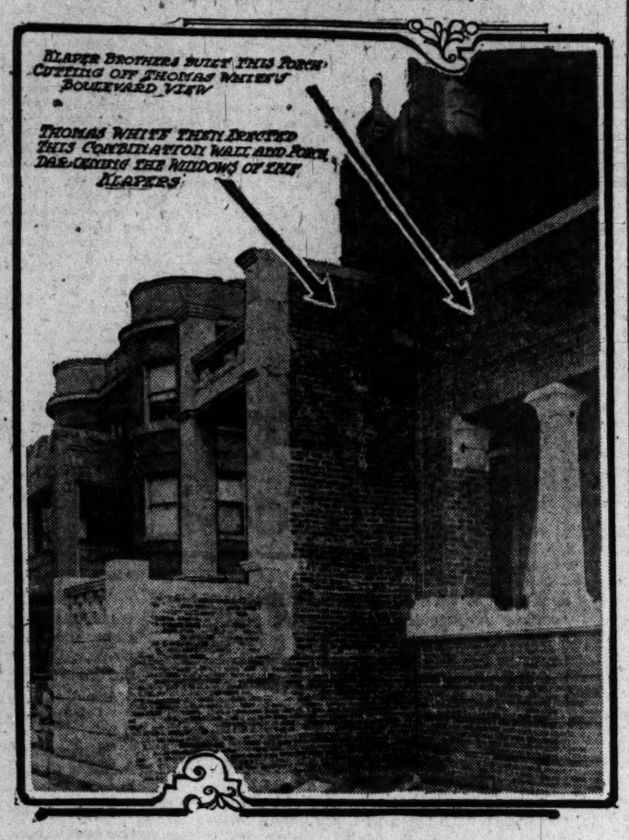
[From a photograph taken for THE TRIBUNE.]



Thomas White, 3255 Douglas boulevard, built his massive front porch after the Klapers, next door, so extended their house that he could no longer see to the south. The porch that White built is colonial in type and of Gibraltar-like construction and it blocked up the Klaper windows.

Said Hyman Klaper yesterday: "Just wait till White sees a wall that we are going to build. It's going to be twelve inches thick and of tile and it will not only be farther toward the sidewalk from White's miserable porch, but higher, too."

Pardoned Police Inspector Will Devote Life to Freeing Worthy Ones.

HAS SEVERAL PROTEGES.

Man Who Sent Many to Prison Hopes to Aid Some in Obtaining Liberty.

Edward McCann, former inspector of police, recently pardoned from the penitentiary by Gov. Deneen, will devote the balance of his life to rescuing from prison cells men whom he believes to be innocent of the crimes for which they are serving time.

The former police inspector will begin his new work with even more enthusiasm than he began his career of sending men to prison cells twenty years ago. This information comes from his brother, Capt. James McCann of the police department.

It is not the man with money and influential friends whom Edward McCann wishes to restore to freedom. It is the fellow without friends and without funds to get a proper rehearing of his case in whom the former inspector is interested.

More than 30,000 persons signed the petition for a pardon for McCann. At the head of the list was ex-President Roosevelt, and his signature was followed by those of ministers, bankers, and men and women from all walks of life who knew of the inspector's work in rescuing the women of the west side levee district. He realizes that others, not so well known as he was, cannot enlist the sympathies of so many prominent persons.

Brother Tells of Plans.

"Ed knows that it's not easy to get out of the penitentiary, even if one is innocent," said Capt. McCann last night. "That's a case in which possession is nine points of the law, and there doesn't seem to be much hope for the man after the turnkey's key has grated in the door behind him.

"My brother had plenty of opportunity to investigate a number of cases while he was at Joliet. His experience as a police officer aided him in determining the truth in these cases. He was terribly affected by the stories he listened to and he told me that he was going to devote his whole life to helping out convicts he thought deserving.

"He spoke of a negro boy down there. The boy had been sent up for assault. He was ignorant and had no friends to interest themselves in his case and I guess they just sent him up on general principles.

"Ed talked to this boy. He went over every circumstance of the case. He was absolutely convinced from the boy's story that he was innocent. Since he came out he's been seeing some friends about getting the boy released. I don't know how well he'll succeed, but you can bet he'll keep on trying until he does do something.

Religious Man Friendless.

"Then there was another case of a deeply religious fellow. He's teaching a Bible class in the prison now. I don't remember the circumstances of the case, but I think he was sent up for murder. There were many things which the jury could not consider as evidence but which would justify his getting a pardon, or least a parole.

"For instance, I think this man was moved to his deed by religious zeal and Ed feels that these things ought to be placed before the board of pardons. But there's another case of no money and no friends. The prisoner can't get a lawyer to draw up his papers and Ed will be able to help him.

"Ed's down in Texas now. He won't be back until the first of the month. I wish you could have a talk with him. You'd see how important it is that some one should take an interest in these cases."

Girl Overwrought Has Mental Lapse.

MISS MARGARET CASE

The strain which telephone switchboard operators undergo during summer months was blamed yesterday for the total lapse of memory of a 16 year old girl for over two hours. She was found wandering about in front of a State street store unable to identify herself.

The girl is Miss Margaret Case of 1737 Lunt avenue. Yesterday she started for work at the Chicago Telephone company offices. She had complained that her eyes were swollen and her head felt heavy. After leaving an elevated train at Madison street and Fifth avenue her memory suddenly failed her. She does not remember what happened during the two hours she wandered about the streets.

When a policeman found her she was crying and sobbing. He took her to the detective bureau. For a time she was unable to answer questions as to her identity, but finally recalled having once ridden on a motorcycle owned by Father McLoughlin of St. Jerome's church. From that incident her memory gradually returned.

RODE IN A GRAY AUTO.

Perpetrators of Last Outrage Went to Manhole in Car and Were Seen by Witnesses.

While 3,000 policemen, including plain clothes men and detectives from headquarters, were on the lookout last night for the wreckers of Commonwealth Edison company conduits, the sixth explosion inside of two weeks occurred at East Ninety-fifth street and Woodlawn avenue.

As there is no building within a half mile of the scene of the explosion, the only damage done was the tearing up of the street and the breaking of electric light cables.

About half an hour before the explosion an automobile containing three men was seen to stop in front of the manhole. The person who saw the automobile and its occupants told the Grand Crossing police that he thought some repairs were being made to the car. He described the auto as a gray machine, and he also gave the police a description of the three men.

Ride About in Automobile.

Owing to the frequency of explosions in the manholes of the Commonwealth Edison company, Chief McWeeny issued instructions on Wednesday to the department to watch out for the men who were doing the work. Yesterday the chief learned that the wreckers were using an automobile and this information was given to every man on duty last night.

"Watch all manholes of the Commonwealth Edison company," was the order read at every station at roll call in the evening.

The explosion in Grand Crossing occurred at 9:30 o'clock. The patrolman who travels the post had visited the spot earlier in the evening. Soon after he had gone the gray automobile drove up and the bomb was placed on the top of the manhole.

Hear Explosion Three Miles.

The explosion was heard at the Grand Crossing police station and for a distance of three miles. Policemen soon reached the scene and were told of the gray automobile and the three men who occupied it.

Previous explosions were at Forty-second street and Wabash avenue, 2854 Poplar avenue, West Twenty-seventh and Quarry streets, West Sixteenth and Paulina streets, and Harmon court and Wabash avenue. The latter explosion occurred at 2:45 o'clock Wednesday morning and caused a loss of $5,000 to C. P. Kimball & Co. by the breaking of window glass in their establishment.

The Commonwealth Edison company denies that there is any trouble between the company and its employes. The company, it is said, has worked under an open shop system, and many nonunion men are employed.

Falling Wheel Kills Man.

A heavy flywheel which was being unloaded from a car yesterday fell upon and crushed Thomas Fitzgerald, 1448 Union street, a freight handler employed by the Grand Trunk railway company. Fitzgerald was taken to Mercy hospital, but died before reaching there.

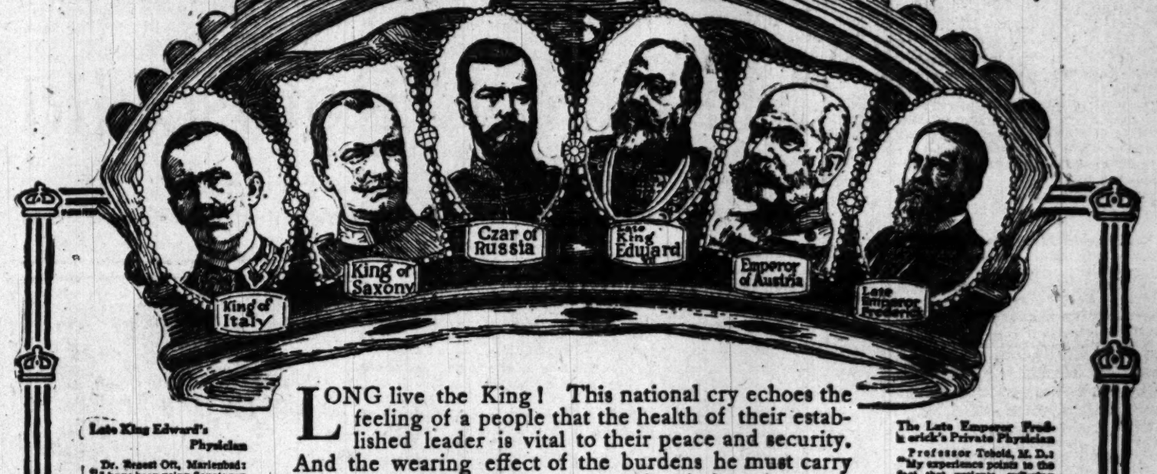
SANATOGEN
CROWNED KING OF TONICS



LONG live the King! This national cry echoes the feeling of a people that the health of their established leader is vital to their peace and security. And the wearing effect of the burdens he must carry gives the utmost importance to the choice of a medical adviser who shall safeguard the ruler's health.

The King's physician is always an eminent scientist of the highest integrity. The weight of his responsibilities gives weight to his opinion.

In writing the hearty endorsements of Sanatogen which are printed on this page, the physicians to six of Europe's famous monarchs are testifying to their personal scientific conviction—after personal scientific trial.

They have come face to face with that great modern puzzle—what to do for distracted nerves and debilitated bodies—and have found the answer in Sanatogen.

Their tributes, and the earth-wide tributes of scientists and laymen—have crowned Sanatogen as King of Tonics.

Late King Edward's Physician
Dr. Ernest Ott, Marienbad: "I have been using Sanatogen for a number of years in my practice with excellent results, especially in the case of elderly people when it was desirable to build up the strength, to stimulate the bodily functions, and to improve the circulation of the blood."

Emperor of Austria's Private Physician
Surgeon General Dr. Kerzl, of Vienna: "I have been using Sanatogen with splendid results and recommend it continually and everywhere because I am thoroughly convinced that it is an excellent food-tonic."

The King of Saxony's Private Physician

The Late Emperor Frederick's Private Physician
Professor Tobold, M. D.: "My experience points to the fact that patients suffering from nervous exhaustion and who present the troublesome symptoms of neurasthenia, by using Sanatogen, gain comparatively short time regain strength and vitality."

The Czar of Russia's Private Physician
Dr. Fursmain: "My daughter, who was very nervous and anaemic, has been greatly benefitted by the prolonged use of Sanatogen. Her appetite improved, her weight increased, and the color of her skin became healthier."

The King of Italy's Physician
Dr. G. Quidoni: "I have used Sanatogen with marked benefit in the case of weakly children, and in convalescence after long illnesses. I consider Sanatogen a most excellent tonic food."

WHAT SANATOGEN MEANS TO YOUR HEALTH

Your worries, your overwork, result in weariness, weakened nerves, impaired appetite and digestion, just as a King's worries or overwork bring these results to him.

When the physicians to royalty, and 15,000 other physicians up and down the world, enthusiastically commend Sanatogen—what does this mean to you?

It means that you may use Sanatogen with full confidence that it will rejuvenate your nervous system, give new energy to your appetite and digestion, new vigor to your health of mind and body.

It means that Sanatogen is not a drug that borrows relief, but a concentrated scientific food that constructively gives strength and vitality.

Sanatogen works in perfect harmony with nature—a union of the body's two vital elements, pure albumen and organic phosphorous, that actually nourishes cell and tissue as only Sanatogen can nourish them.

Hundreds of thousands of men and women are grateful to Sanatogen for timely and priceless help—help supplied not with the deceptive quickness of a stimulant but with the steady force of a food that revitalizes, reconstructs and rehabilitates the system—the pure scientific food tonic that acts directly where action is needed.

Write for a free copy of "Our Nerves of To-morrow"

We ask you earnestly to get acquainted with Sanatogen. Investigate our claims first, if you like, and we are only too glad to have you do so. Ask your doctor about it, and in any case write at once for our book, "Our Nerves of To-morrow," the work of a physician-author, written in an absorbingly interesting style, beautifully illustrated and containing facts and information of vital interest to you. This book also contains evidence of the value of Sanatogen which is as remarkable as it is conclusive.

Sanatogen is sold in three sizes: $1.00, $1.90, $3.60

MAYOR PUTS END TO BEACH ORGIES

DELAY PERMANENT BODY.

Committees Prepare for Big Meeting Next Week; to Name Officers.

The North Shore Improvement and Protective associations, through their committee of eighteen, last night voted to send the mayor a letter of thanks for ordering the bathing beaches closed at 9:30 o'clock. According to north shore residents the mayor's order has been carried out for the last two nights.

Only a handful of members of the various civic organizations on the north shore attended last night's meeting in the North Shore Congregational church, at which the permanent organization of the united civic societies was to have been effected.

Main Move Monday Night.

The committee on permanent organization was there with its report, and it was voted to present the report to a meeting representative of the thirty civic and church bodies of the north shore next Monday night. The nominating committee of the association will meet tonight to name an executive committee.

The Rev. H. B. Gwyn of St. Simon's Episcopal church presided at the meeting. The nominating committee appointed consists of the Rev. James S. Ainslie, the Rev. J. O. Randall, the Rev. Henry Hepburn, the Rev. Ingram E. Bill, F. M. Linderman, Joseph G. Tyssowski, H. I. Cleveland, and E. Norman Clasen.

Get Promises from Mayor.

"These meetings which we have held on the north shore have been indignation gatherings, due to the assaults on women and not because of the attitude of the city administration," said the Rev. Randall last night. "We are especially pleased with Mayor Harrison's attitude. He gave us two square cornered promises in regard to regulating the beaches and the saloons, and I have not the slightest doubt that he will keep them religiously."

EXPECT FIFTEEN INDICTMENTS FOR LUMBER DEALERS TODAY.

Rumor at Federal Building to Effect That "Big Men" of Trust Will Not Figure in Bills.

Fifteen indictments against lumbermen as individuals and others directed at lumber associations are expected to be returned in the United States District court presided over by Judge Landis this morning.

Several of the lumber associations which are expected to be subjects of indictment have as members, it is said, the "big men" of the lumber industry. But the indictments running against individuals are said to touch only men who are comparatively little known to the public.

The members of the grand jury were ordered to report at the federal building at 9 o'clock this morning to hear the bills read and to sign them.

Clark McKercher, assistant attorney general; Elwood G. Godman, special assistant and Oliver E. Pagin, the government's indictment expert, made final revision of the bills yesterday.

WILL CHECK INFANT DEATH RATE BY TRAINING MOTHERS.

United Charities and School Authorities to Maintain Relief Center During Hot Months—Hear Salary Plea.

The infant mortality rate in Chicago during the summer months will be reduced if a plan in which the United Charities and the Chicago board of education is interested is successful. The school management committee of the school board yesterday approved a project to conduct a training school for mothers at the Armour school. Young children suffering from noncontagious diseases will be taken care of during July and August and mothers will be instructed in their proper care.

The committee heard arguments for an increase in salaries which were offered by a delegation of teachers. An increase of from $2,100 to $2,600 for high school teachers was asked. The petition was referred to the finance committee with the recommendation that it be granted.

SEVEN HUNDRED ON STRIKE.

Jurisdictional Row Among Rival Steamfitters' Unions Ties Up Work on Ten Buildings.

More than 700 men were called out on strike and work on ten buildings was tied up yesterday as a result of a jurisdictional dispute between plumbers and steamfitters. Business agents representing the bricklayers, carpenters, lathers, and building laborers drove around the west and north sides of the city ordering strikes on all buildings where steamfitting contracts are let to contractors who employ United States association steamfitters. The unions involved have sided with the International association steamfitters.

"DESTROY THEM," SAYS WILL

GIVES ESTATE OF $1,000,000.

Also Directs That Funeral Service and Flowers Be Omitted.

The will of the late Sylvester T. Smith, former president of the Denver, Northwestern and Pacific Railway company, orders the destruction of all pictures of himself and family.

It disposes of an estate valued at upwards of $1,000,000, and strikingly illustrates Mr. Smith's lifelong policy of secrecy and silence in regard to all private and official business.

Instinct Shown in Clause.

"It is my further wish and direction that all funeral services, flowers, and other mourning decorations be entirely omitted and that all pictures of myself and family be destroyed, since they are of no interest to any one but myself and since, in any event, I desire that the same shall never become the subject of any difference or controversy as to the ownership or possession thereof between any of my relations or other persons."

$10,000 Given to Nurse.

Miss Edith Nelson, a nurse, who attended Mr. Smith for some time during his last illness, is bequeathed $10,000, while $1,000 is given to Miss Christine Blomberg, who for many years acted as housekeeper and cook.

Five nieces, who are made chief beneficiaries in the will are: Miss Alberta Smith, 3031 South Park avenue; Miss Charline Smith, Lawrence, Kas.; Mrs. Louise Farrell, Kansas City; Mrs. Ida Griffiths, Lawrence, Kas., and Mrs. Zillah Wilcox, Muscotah, Kas.

A. C. Ridgeway, assistant general manager C., R. I. & P. Ry.
Dr. G. W. Cook, dentist, Kenwood hotel.
W. F. Jones, traffic manager D., N. W. & P.
John L. Woods, general agent Steel Spring company.
Mrs. Freddie Devereaux O'Reilly, New Orleans, La.

In accordance with his wishes the relatives and beneficiaries of the will have refused to make any statements for publication.

MAYOR REPELS NIGHT WORKERS

Refuses to Allow Chief of Police to Enforce Anti-Noise Ordinance Against Peddlers.

Mayor Harrison refused yesterday to rescind his order to Chief of Police McWeeny directing him to suspend the enforcement of the anti-noise ordinance forbiding the hawking of wares.

"Is there not some way that the rescinding of this order can be brought about without our going into the courts?" asked a representative of the night workers who called upon him at his office.

"No, there isn't," answered the mayor, "but I don't see what good a writ of mandamus will do. It could not be obtained before council action is taken on the matter. It is probable that the council will act in the next two weeks."

During the interview Mayor Harrison designated Congressman A. J. Sabath, a visitor in his office, as "the friend of the peddlers" who had supported the request that enforcement of the ordinance be suspended.

DISMISS 32 AT KANKAKEE

Male and Female Nurses Charged with Cruelty, Theft, Drinking

SLEUTHS ENTER AS INSANE.

Gain Admission to Asylum and Report Finding to Administration Board.

Charged with cruel treatment of patients as well as theft of their belongings, thirty-two nurses, the majority of them women, were discharged from the state insane asylum at Kankakee yesterday.

The evidence on which the dismissals were based was secured by private detectives of both sexes who pretended insanity in order to mingle unsuspected among the patients of the institution.

The employment of Pinkerton detectives came about through inquiries and charges made by the relatives of patients. Visitors complained that they did not understand why so many of the inmates showed swollen faces and black eyes. Others complained that gifts which they had sent to patients failed to reach them.

While the squad of detectives looked into the situation within the buildings, others shadowed the nurses on their visits to the city of Kankakee. In a number of cases male nurses were discovered visiting saloons.

The present inquiry is the first since the investigating committee of the state legislature uncovered abuses three years ago. It follows on the heels of an investigation of the Illinois State Training School for Girls at Geneva.

We Guarantee

that six pairs of Holeproof Hose will wear without rips, holes or any necessity of darning for six full months from the day you buy them, or we'll give you new hose free. The dealer will give you a signed-in-ink guarantee to this effect when you purchase.

Holeproof Hosiery Co. Milwaukee, Wis.

Why We Use Three-Ply Yarn

We use a yarn in Holeproof Hosiery that costs an average of 70 cents per pound.

The cotton from which it is made comes from the Sea Islands and from Egypt.

There are no better yarns to be had. They are 3-ply, soft and fine.

We could buy common 2-ply yarn for almost half what we pay for 3, but the 3-ply is stronger. The hose can thus be made thin and sheer for summer wear.

Nobody wants hosiery any lighter than we can weave with this soft 3-ply yarn.

Nobody demands a more stylish hosiery, for "Holeproof" is the very utmost in style.

$55,000 a Year for Inspection

We have had 38 years of experience. For the past 12 years we have been able to make a hosiery so good that we could guarantee six pairs six months.

We spend $55,000 a year merely to see that each pair we send out is perfection. You never buy "Holeproof" and find a defect in them. We could be less careful if we sold our hose without our name on them.

Outlasts the Guarantee

"Holeproof" are so soft, stylish and comfortable that they are today the most popular hose in the world.

95% of our output has always outlasted the guarantee.

Yet "Holeproof" costs no more than scores of heavy and coarse imitations.

No amateur brand can be half as good.

FAMOUS Holeproof Hosiery FOR MEN WOMEN AND CHILDREN

HEAT KILLS FOUR; EIGHT OVERCOME

SOME QUEER ACCIDENTS.

Restaurant Ceiling Collapses and Man Seeking Comfort Alarms Women.

Four persons died in the heat that marked the opening of summer yesterday. Eight prostrations were reported to the police, two of the victims falling long distances as a result and sustaining injuries that may prove fatal.

The thermometer registered 93.2 degrees at the maximum and the excessive humidity made the day seem unusually oppressive. The weather bureau's official forecast for today is continued warm and fair, but showers are given as a possibility for tomorrow.

There had been little relief from the heat an hour after midnight and in many of the congested districts of the city hundreds of men, women, and children slept out of doors as a means of partial relief.

THE DEAD.

Brown, J. C., 18 months old, 1617 Fulton street; died at County hospital of gastritis, superinduced by the heat.

Lucas, Mrs. C. A., 58 years old, 2047 Ogden avenue; found dead in bed of heart disease, superinduced by the heat.

Washburne, G. C., 55 years old, address not ascertained; overcome in store at 220 West North avenue; died before ambulance arrived.

The Prostrations.

BARNES, MRS. EVA, 40 years old, 1522 North Clark street; overcome on the roof of her home while hanging clothes, falling twenty-five feet to ground; skull fractured.

COCHOT, NICK, 21 years old, 1841 Ballou street; prostrated at 998 Milwaukee avenue.

Restaurant Ceiling Falls.

Shortly after noon the heat caused the corrugated metal ceiling of Knab's restaurant at 185 West Randolph street to expand and loosen from its fastenings, falling on the tables and counters. The chandeliers were carried with the ceiling in the descent.

Before the weighty metal fell its creaking and noisy warping alarmed about fifty lunch ers, who hurried to the street, just escaping injury. A few were cut and bruised, six were some of the employés, but none seriously. Guests of the Nicolet hotel above the restaurant were badly frightened. Supposing that an explosion had occurred, one guest turned in a fire alarm.

Women Fear Cool Man.

Patrick Holten, 1610 Chicago avenue, Evanston, becoming exhausted by the heat during the afternoon, lay down on the Evanston beach close to the water so that cooling waves might splash on him.

Near Holten's refuge five Evanston women, readers and embroiderers, also sought relief from oppressive indoors. They espied Holten. One woman was sure that he was a drowned corpse washed ashore. The panic spread. U. Rubin, a second hand dealer, 1644 Maple avenue, found the women almost hysterical.

Rubin ran swiftly to Evanston police headquarters, where Policemen Pausch and Rutland were assigned to the "drowning." When they began prodding Holten and attempting resuscitation Holten suddenly sat up.

"What right have you to disturb me," he asked.

Mayor Harrison continued to suffer from the heat. His rooms are said to be the hottest in the city and county building.

Stamp Trade Association Adjourns.

The annual convention of the American Stamp Trade association was closed with a banquet at the Hotel La Salle last night. The day was given over to a discussion of products and sales, the consensus of the speakers being that the stamp trade needs "revolutionizing." M. L. Willard of Chicago was elected president.

Originator of Hawkeye Club.

MRS. JOHN SIDNEY MCCLELAND

Iowa's thousands residing in Chicago owe the idea which resulted in the formation of the Hawkeye Fellowship club to a woman. It was Mrs. John Sidney McCleland who surprised a little dinner party of four ex-Iowans with the suggestion that they organize.

Whereupon the club which is to have its first annual picnic in Jackson park on Saturday was organized. And now Mrs. McCleland is installed at the headquarters of the club in the Auditorium hotel. She receives all Hawkeye visitors and is said to have a remarkable knowledge of the state and its people.

The Iowans claim that theirs is the only real state organization existing in Chicago, because they are the only one to maintain regular headquarters and meet once a week for luncheon and once a month for dinner.

HUSBAND IN JAIL; BRIDE MAD

RAVES SHE IS TO BLAME.

Her Condition Due to Arrest and Suicide of Helpmate.

Boston, Mass., June 22.—[Special.]—Beautiful, accomplished, and only 24 years of age, Mrs. Dell Lovenia Neel Spaete, playwright and author, is a raving lunatic in a sanitarium near Boston on account of the financial misdeeds of Oscar F. Spaete, her husband, which drove him to suicide last night in a jail cell in Detroit, Mich.

Spaete, who was brought to ruin through mad attempts to secure a fortune by frenzied finance methods, drank carbolic acid in his cell, it was revealed today, rather than face the consequences of his acts and because he feared he would lose his young bride, whom he married at Leicester last October.

Writes Protesting His Love.

After he had left her he wrote to her upbraiding himself for the evil course into which he had fallen and protesting in extravagant terms his love. But the strain was too much and her brain gave way and she was taken to a sanitarium in Dorchester, a part of Boston.

At the sanitarium the young wife was seized with the delusion that she was responsible for her husband's misdeeds. All day long she paces up and down her room crying piteously that the police are going to arrest her.

Her Recovery Is Doubtful.

The physicians say that it is doubtful if she ever recovers.

Mrs. Spaete is the daughter of an old and aristocratic southern family. She has traveled all over the world, speaks French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese fluently. Besides being a talented writer, Mrs. Spaete is a painter and a violinist. One of her plays, entitled "The Man and the Deal," will be produced in New York shortly.

SLUGGER CAUGHT ON INDIANA FARM

NEW INDICTMENT TODAY.

"Moss" Enright Will Be Formally Charged with Killing Gunman in Hotel.

A. M. Schoenlaub, a labor slugger and one of several witnesses who disappeared at the time the police began to get definite information concerning the murder of Vincent Altman, labor gunman, was arrested yesterday in Lafayette, Ind. He will be brought back to Chicago today, having waived extradition.

"We know what Schoenlaub knows," said Inspector Hunt last night, "and we want to talk to him. He is one of the men who ran away when he knew he was wanted, and that in itself is one reason why we want to question him. Besides, he was present when Altman was shot."

Was Working on a Farm.

The fugitive witness was working on the farm of L. C. Clark, twelve miles from Lafayette, when Capt. John Kluth and Detective L. C. Kluth of the Lafayette force arrested him.

The grand jury which has been investigating the labor murders and other crimes growing out of the wars of the unions will adjourn this afternoon or tomorrow morning. An indictment which was voted earlier in the week will be returned charging "Moss" Enright with the murder of Vincent Altman.

No Indictment at Present.

No indictment will be returned in connection with the killing of "Dutch" Gentleman. The police have not concluded their investigation into this case, which will be taken up by the July grand jury.

After a day spent in listening to the statements of contractors and property owners in connection with the tying up of work on buildings for extortion purposes, Assistant State's Attorney Victor Arnold declared "It is simply another Skinny Madden case.

Mr. Arnold's investigations have thus far led him into the affairs of the plumbers' and steamfitters' unions, for which "Moss" Enright was business agent. He has also looked into various troubles which involved the carpenters, but he declined to say how far the system of extortion had been revealed.

ELOPEMENT ENDS IN DIVORCE

Andrew H. Brown, Son of Chicago Attorney, Granted Decree.

SHE WOULDN'T LEAVE "MA."

Ran Away with Washington Girl While Both Were in School.

Visions of happy domesticity faded from the schoolday romance of Andrew H. Brown and Miss Eva E. Alger soon after they were married in Baltimore three years ago, and yesterday Judge Ball of the Superior court gave Brown a decree of divorce. The young man is a son of Attorney George N. Brown of Chicago, now in Washington as counsel for the interstate commerce commission, and the young woman is a daughter of Mrs. Minnie L. Alger of Washington, D. C.

Eloped While in School.

The marriage was a runaway affair. The couple eloped in September, 1908, from Washington, where both were attending school, when the vacation days were near an end. The bridegroom was then 18 and his bride 17 years old.

Brown told Judge Ball that his wife refused to live with him after they had returned to Washington, and that they had never lived together as man and wife. Depositions of Mrs. Alger and Attorney Brown, telling the circumstances of the elopement, were presented to the court.

Wouldn't Leave Mother.

"On the spur of the moment we went to Baltimore and were married," was the young man's explanation to Judge Ball. "After we returned to Washington she concluded that she did not care to leave her folks and live with me, so we did not live together at all."

Brown has been a student at the University of Michigan since his marriage and subsequent separation from his wife.

Screen Saves Boy in Fall.

A 4 year old boy, Arthur Peterson, 1211 Otto street, suffered a fractured jaw last night when he fell from a third story window at his home, but was saved from death by a window screen, which checked his fall.

DEATHS.

Our Agencies Dot the Earth

Schlitz was brewed first in a hut over sixty years ago. Now our output exceeds a million barrels a year. Our agencies dot the earth.

More and more people every year are demanding Schlitz—Schlitz in Brown Bottles.

In our brewery we spend more on purity—in time—in skill—in money—than on any other cost in our brewing.

We scald every tub, keg and barrel—every pipe and pump—every time we use it. We wash every bottle four times by machinery. Even the air, in which the beer is cooled, is filtered.

OLD COUNCIL TREE BOND

Lithographing and printing houses which deal extensively in letter-heads can take a short and direct route to popularity by a consistent use of OLD COUNCIL TREE BOND.

Merchants are beginning to recognize that the letter-head is a long-ignored advertising power. These lithographing and printing houses can take anticipatory advantage of the fact by using OLD COUNCIL TREE BOND now, for as sure as the sun rises in the east it will soon be the most extensively specified letter-head bond in existence.

THE BOSS SMOKES "VELVET"

A Paris shop-keeper wrote to one of his customers as follows:

"I am able to offer you cloth like the enclosed sample at nine francs a metre. In case I do not hear from you I will conclude that you wish to pay only eight francs. In order to lose no time I accept the offer."

There are two kinds of bargains. There is the kind of advertising which can be bought cheap, and there is the kind of advertising which delivers the goods. It is a bargain to be able to buy space in a medium like Farm and Fireside to reach so many thoughtful, prosperous and approachable farm homes, but it is a bargain that is open to every manufacturer at the same price. It is an universal bargain. No manufacturer is able to get this service for less than any other manufacturer. The bargain lies in what Farm and Fireside does; not in what you pay.

Miss Ethel Herrick Weds Thomas J. Prindiville.

AN out of town wedding of yesterday that was of particular interest to Chicago society was that of Miss Ethel Herrick, daughter of Mrs. Frederick C. Herrick of Boston and New York, to Thomas J. Prindiville, 1204 North State street. The ceremony was read at high noon in the lady chapel of St. Patrick's cathedral, New York City.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Frank G. Curtiss of New York, was the bride's only attendant and James Prindiville served his brother as best man. The ushers included Frank G. Curtiss, Morris Metcalf, Paul Prentiss, Alden E. Swift, Frank Warren, and Henry W. Lowe. A wedding breakfast at Sherry's followed the ceremony.

Mr. Prindiville is the son of the late Capt. John Prindiville, one of Chicago's pioneer residents. He met his bride when traveling in Europe two years ago, where she was living in Paris with her mother while studying with Jean de Rezske. Last winter she visited here and chose the apartment in North State street, where they will reside after a summer at Lake Forest.

The marriage of Miss Rachel Elting Cable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fayette Shepherd Cabl of Hinsdale, to Jay Lyman Hench took place last evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Congregational church of Hinsdale, the Rev. Clarence T. Brown reading the service.

Mrs. Thomas Lewis Powell served her sister as matron of honor and Miss Gladys Cable as maid of honor. The bridemaids were Miss Miriam Cable, Miss Dorothy Cable, and Miss Helen Hench. Horace Bebb Hench was best man and the ushers were Ralph Hench, Charles Edward Pynchon, Charles Dennison, Thomas Powell, Webster Lewis, and Frank Van Inwagen.

The bride wore a gown of white charmeuse satin. Her tulle veil was fastened with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The matron of honor wore her own wedding gown of white satin and carried an arm bouquet of pearl roses. The maid of honor wore yellow marquisette and carried an arm bouquet of marguerites.

Following the ceremony there was a small reception for the relatives and near friends at the family residence of the bride.

At Wheaton yesterday the wedding of Miss Lois Goldsmith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Goldsmith, to John Anson Ford was celebrated in Wheaton College church, the Rev. James T. Ford of Arlington Heights, father of the bridegroom, officiating. Miss Ada Goldsmith served her sister as maid of honor and James R. Ford, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

A chorus of twelve young women, fellow members with the bride of the Theta Phi Gamma sorority, preceded the bride to the altar singing the bridal chorus. They wore gowns of white lingerie and carried white daisy chains. The ushers were Henry Arnold of Milwaukee, Prof. B. W. Brown of Fargo, N. D.; F. F. Von der Sump of Beloit, and J. B. Ely of Chicago, all former classmates of the bridegroom at Beloit college, where he was graduated. The bride is also a graduate of Beloit and a member of Mr. Ford's class.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, 418 Washington street, Wheaton. Mr. and Mrs. Ford will be at home at Glen Ellyn after July 20.

Lake Forest will be represented at the Fête Champetre to be given at Ravinia June 29, 30, and July 1 for the benefit of Arden Shore by a "polo dance," of which Mrs. Walter Brewster is to be chairman. Those to take part include the Misses Olive Farwell, Helen Brown, Dorothy Leslie, Catherine Jones, Sarah Granger Farwell, Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor, Katherine Farwell, and Anna Dunham. The men will be Francis Butler, Kenneth Hall, Paul Simme, Donald Butler, Edwin Larned, Stanley Keith, Kent Clow, and Goddard Cheney. Special dances will be done by Miss Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor, Miss Dorothy Leslie, Miss Catherine Jones, Kenneth Hall, and Donald Butler.

Evanston will have a dance called "The Dream of the Lotus Flower," of which Mrs. Charles A. Graves is chairman. Miss Gladys Bigelow will be the "Lotus Sprite" and the lotus flowers will be represented by the Misses Elizabeth Dwight, Mary Glenn, Carrol Dwight, Virginia Howland, Cherrill McHill, Marguerite Wells, Adrienne Tracy, Katherine Bigelow, Janet Willoughby, Ruth Allen, Helen Glen, and Lillian Johnson.

Miss Helen Deshler of Columbus, O., who visited her sister, Mrs. Rensselaer Cox, 1539 Astor street, during the spring, is now in London and will remain abroad all summer.

Highland Park is to have an oriental booth where fortunes will be told and Lake Forest young women will stroll about the grounds selling flowers from trays. There is to be a voting contest for the most popular dance.

Miss Margaret Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Walker, 5222 Lexington avenue, has returned from the Misses Shipley's school at Bryn Mawr after visiting in New York and at Lake Placid. Her roommate, Miss Helen Shipley of Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, is her house guest.

Miss Cordelia L. Watson, 823 Crescent place, Buena Park, will give a luncheon and bridge party tomorrow afternoon for Miss Margaret Call of New York City, who is visiting Mrs. Furman Willingham of Woodlawn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Sturtevant, 1502 Wilson avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Faith Barrows, to Charles Frederick Dutch of Boston on Tuesday, June 20. Mr. and Mrs. Dutch will be at home after Sept. 1 in Winchester, Mass.

Mrs. R. L. Greenlee of 855 Buena avenue yesterday announced the engagement of her sister, Mrs. Mary Davis, to Stephen Gardner. The date of the wedding has not been definitely fixed, but it will occur some time the latter part of August. After a honeymoon tour through the east they will make their home on the north side.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Keebler of Forest avenue will open their summer home, Chula Vista, at Green Lake, Wis., the early part of next week, where they expect to spend the entire summer season. Mrs. Keebler and her son, Gilbert Keebler, will leave for Green Lake next Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lytton, 2719 Prairie avenue, have a cottage at Bristol, R. I., for the summer.

A dinner and dance at the Chicago Yacht club Tuesday evening, June 27, will be substituted for the last of the Red Star inn subscription dances. These dances have been managed by a group of prominent north side men of the younger set and have been popular affairs. It is hoped to repeat them next year.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jenkins of Rogers Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred Anne, to Jackson McCoy Prentiss, son of Judge Prentiss. The wedding will take place in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley J. Henderson, 7450 Rogers avenue, will give a reception this evening in honor of their silver wedding. Four children with their families will be among the guests and the grounds are to be illuminated.

MISS HELEN BRIGHT

Miss Helen Bright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville T. Bright, 6515 Harvard avenue, arrived in the city from Munich and London on Wednesday, where she has been studying music with Mme. Orgeni and Henschel. Her marriage to Frederic H. Bengel will take place early in September.

Miss Bright will leave next week with her parents for the White mountains to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Abrams, 1220 South Forty-first court, announce the betrothal of their daughter, Lillie, to William Siegmann. At home Sunday, June 25, 2 to 5, 7 to 10.

Charity Ball Game Success.

Pleasant weather and lively competition made the benefit baseball game yesterday between the American Giants and the West Ends at Comiskey park an unqualified social and financial success for the Children's Day association, under whose auspices the affair was held.

The game, a well played contest which was won by the Giants by the score of 4 to 1, was arranged for the benefit of dependent mothers and children in the care of the association. According to Mrs. Hugo Du Brock, chairman of the ways and means committee, the paid attendance of the 2,000 patrons represents only a small part of the money actually netted.

Business Women in League.

Members of the Business Women's League of America, which is an innovation in women's clubs, met last night at the Masonic Temple. The object of the league is to encourage cooperation among business women along intellectual lines and especially among the young business women of America. The policy for the summer months was outlined by Mrs. Katherine Abbott. The program includes talks and lectures on questions of music, drama, and literature.

Public Schools Exercises.

Last night marked the opening of commencement exercises in the public schools of Chicago and hundreds of graduates received diplomas and certificates of graduation.

Ninian H. Welch, former assistant to the judge of the Probate court, spoke to the graduates of the Farragut High school on the subject of "Mental Conservation."

At the Medill High school Attorneys Fred Sass and Jacob Kaplan spoke, the latter as a representative of the alumni association of the school.

The last graduating class of Morgan Park Village High school received diplomas at the Baptist church last night. On July 1 the Chicago board of education takes possession of the village high school and it becomes affiliated with the school system of Chicago.

The exercises last night marked the eighth annual commencement and the largest class in the history of the institution.

The members of the class were Ruth Lawdabl, Juanita Skinner, Allen Price, Grace Johnson, Olive Erickson, Elisabeth Jergstrom, Alice Huber, Winifred Alling, Isabel Heriott, Margaret Allen, Charles Knoerzer, Randall Derby, and George Wedekind. The commencement oration was delivered by Dr. William Bishop Owen of the Chicago Teachers' college.

Graduating exercises for the Evanston Township High school were held yesterday afternoon in the First Congregational church in Evanston. Fifty-five graduates were given their diplomas. Prof. Nathaniel Butler of the University of Chicago gave an address on "The Uses of Literature."

One hundred and thirty-eight students were graduated at Lewis institute academy last night. One hundred and twenty-one of the number were candidates for the academy certificate and seventeen for the apprentices' certificate. The Rev. Frank G. Smith delivered the address of the evening, taking as his subject "The Battle of Life and How to Win It."

Judge Charles S. Cutting told the 122 members of the graduating class of Hyde Park High school at the commencement exercises in Mandel hall last night that good as their training had been it was deficient in one particular. He declared that the city high school has not yet developed any satisfactory substitute for the chores that boys and girls of an earlier generation did.

High school life for twenty-two seniors of the Proviso Township High school of Maywood closed last evening when they were presented with diplomas at the closing exercises held in the new high school building at West Madison street and First avenue. This building will not be completed for a month.

Following are the Cadet Practice school graduates:

German Music Festival Attended by Thousands.

BY GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 22.—[Special.]—Three thousand four hundred German singers representing 129 cities and 183 societies assembled today in Milwaukee for the opening of the thirty-third festival of the Nord Amerikanischen Saengerbundes. The city was given over to the celebration of this triennial event, the most important of the calendar to the many Americans who testify to the pride in German descent by their nationwide organization devoted to the perpetuation of German customs and German song.

Chicago sent 800 singers and fully 500 visitors to the convention. This imposing delegation represented eighteen different maennerchors. None of the visiting choruses had a share in the opening program, however. This was intrusted to the united male and mixed choruses of Milwaukee and enlisted further the services of Albert S. Kramer, Max Zach, and Hermann A. Zeitz as conductors; Ludwig Hess, tenor, of Berlin; and Rudolph Schmidt, baritone, of Milwaukee, as soloists, and a festival orchestra, recruited chiefly from the ranks of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra, but reinforced by musicians from Milwaukee and Chicago.

Wagner's "Huldigungdmarsch" made an imposing preface to the festivities. It was read with fine authority and massive effect by Mr. Zach and the orchestra.

Then followed the beautiful ceremonies connected with the transferring of the societies banner from the officials of the Indianapolis choruses to those of the United Singing Societies of Milwaukee, to whose care it is intrusted for the next three years. This was accomplished with great display of eloquence, both German and English, in which President Charles G. Schmidt, Z. P. Frenzel, Leo Schmidt, Mayor Seidel, and Gov. McGovern participated.

After the speechmaking, in which Mayor Seidel was easily the favorite both with the visitors and the public, the United Male Singing societies of Milwaukee presented the compositions of Frank Renard and Dr. Karl Fochler, which were awarded prizes in the thirty-third competition of the Saengerbundes. The Renard composition was somewhat more pretentious in form than its rather mediocre melodic content warranted. It required the services of maennerchor, orchestra, and baritone soloist.

The event of the evening, in the eyes of the musical world at large was the first appearance of the distinguished German tenor, Ludwig Hess. The acoustics of the Milwaukee Auditorium are not the most favorable for the vocalist, though they lend themselves well to massive choral and orchestral effects. Therefore such judgment as is here recorded as to Mr. Hess' gifts and attainments is by no means final. In the difficult "Tannhaeuser Pilgerfahrt" he showed himself to be a representative of the declamatory school of song which at present rules the fatherland.

It is a school radically at variance with the ideals of vocal art cultivated in America, since it places the slightest possible value on pure beauty of tone and esteems most highly the emphasis of dramatic declamation. One is therefore somewhat embarrassed as to just what standards should be employed in estimating the art of Mr. Hess. He ignores all precepts of voice placing. No two tones were sung with the same timbre, nor did he seem to desire any sensuous charm of vocal quality. But he read the lines with splendid emphasis of their dramatic import.

It was a kind of staccato declamation so remotely related to the art of song that one is perhaps wisest to regard it as a new art and accept it merely as another phase of dramatic expression such as Wuellner set forth to the satisfaction of his many admirers two seasons ago.

At least one may so accept Mr. Hess' singing when he confines himself to German dramatic music. His one excursion into Italian operatic literature, which was represented by an excerpt from Donnizetta's forgotten work, "Maria di Rohan," was not at all satisfying. This music demands pure vocalism. Hugo Wolf's "Der Battenfaenger von Hameln" proved better suited to his methods and won him an ovation from his hearers.

The second half of the program, and musically by far the most important portion, was devoted to the presentation of the Berlioz "Requiem," which was performed in memory of a former bundes president, J. Hanns Dellas. Under the direction of Albert Kramer, this masterpiece of choral literature was given with imposing effect. The great chorus, "Rex Tremandæ," which was given with an orchestra enlarged by thirty-two brass instruments and as many kettle drums, made an impression of tonal splendor and massiveness that will long be recalled by all who were fortunate enough to hear it.

The Milwaukee chorus proved to be an exceptionally efficient body of singers. Like all American choruses, it was most brilliant in the soprano section. The contraltos developed a tone of rare beauty and smoothness, but somewhat lacking in power. The basses were of splendid sonority and power and the tenors dependable. The interpretation was remarkable not only for the broader effects but for the refinement of dynamic contrast employed throughout. There was an ever-shifting play of light and shade, an instant responsiveness, a vigor of rhythmical impulse, and a solidity of attack that bordered on choral virtuosity.

The audience was large, though it did not completely fill the vast spaces of the Auditorium. The visiting singers occupied places on the immense tribunal erected in front of the proscenium arch, where they sat in costless comfort.

Growth of Sunday Schools.

San Francisco, Cal., June 22.—There are now 14,946,504 Sunday school pupils in this country, according to the report of General Secretary Marion Lawrence, read today in the international Sunday school convention here. This means a gain of 1,431,006 pupils since the last convention three years ago. There are 76,172 more teachers and the number of Sunday schools growing from 161,750 to 173,459.

A gain of 60 per cent is shown by 27,870 "cradle rolls," with 687,626 babies in them. Altogether a total Sunday school enrollment of 16,617,350 is reported for North America, showing a net gain of 1,507,178.

Hall for Women to Be Built.

St. Paul, Minn., June 22.—A large hall for women at St. Olaf college at Northfield, Minn., for which the cornerstone has just been laid, will be erected this summer. This decision was reached at today's session of the national convention of the United Norwegian Lutheran Church of America. About $5,000 is still lacking for the hall.

The convention approved the work done on the building at the Deaconesses' home in Chicago. The trustees were authorized this morning to investigate conditions at Spokane college, Spokane, Wash., and Columbia college, Everett, Wash., and given full authority to take any action they deem advisable.

Women Dig for Church Basement.

Hutchinson, Kas., June 22.—Fifty Hutchinson women yesterday began the digging of the excavation for the South Hutchinson Methodist church. The congregation of the church since its organization has held its meetings in the town hall. The women of the church raised money enough to pay for the actual construction work, but not enough to pay laborers to dig the basement, so they formed a pick and shovel brigade.

Fund for Seminary in Russia.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 22.—At today's session of the Baptist World alliance a campaign to raise $100,000 for the establishment of a Baptist seminary in St. Petersburg, Russia, was begun, and in an hour $70,000 was subscribed.

Twenty-five foreign delegates, most of them Russians, were presented to the vast audience by the Rev. J. H. Shakespeare of London, one of the founders of the alliance.

Several of the delegates from Russia told of the sufferings they had endured in the cause of the faith. They recounted how they had been imprisoned, compelled to eat "black bread," and the difficulty they had encountered in leaving their country to attend the sessions of the alliance.

Love's Hotels.

[Copyright: 1911 By Laura Jean Libbey.]

What sort of life, I would like to know,
Will any man lead that does not love?
The frozen ground is cold below
And the freezing stars are bright above;
But let him lie under the frozen mold!
For his heart, and the stars, and the earth are cold!

THE world holds many women, but there is only one among them all who appeals to one particular man's heart with true love. He cannot define this magnetism, this charm which she holds over him influencing his every thought, act, and hope. When a man loves truly he would barter the world for the love of the girl of his heart. No matter what cynics may say to the contrary, love rules the entire world; it is the great vital power, but one step lower than the will of the Almighty.

He who lives through youth to old age is a marvel if he has not known this sentiment. It is not given to all men to love wisely. With some men "love hath its seat in reason and is judicious"; with others it is like a mighty cataract which sweeps all barriers aside which stand in its way, rushing madly on to destruction.

These are the men whose hearts are hotels for love's transitory abode, their motto being: "Hail the arriving and speed the departing guest." It is the greatest joy a woman can know, to be the queen of the heart of the man she loves.

Her happiness has reached its highest earthly pinnacle when their mutual love is welded inseparably together by the marriage bond. To doubt that she is the one love of his heart is the keenest woe to a woman who has loyally vowed at the altar, by his side, to take him "for better or for worse."

Some one has somewhere said: "Were men constant they were earth angels." This thought must not clog the wheels of judgment.

Despite the twin belief, "To err is but human," I would not have the world of women believe the hearts of all men are love hotels. Indeed, it may be said such are few and far between.

The world is full of good and noble men who have selected one love, wedded her, and have devoted their lives to good and noble deeds, chief of which was to give her reason to bless the hour when they first met, the hour which gave her love and him for a husband.

When a man is satisfied with the love he has won his heart does not stray from the object of his affection. Some men find a moderate diet of affection satisfying; others are gourmands of the fruit. Men of great minds are usually absorbed in noble plans for the world's betterment; their joys ascend to a higher plane than those who allow love to dominate their lives.

As we have seen, the world's heroes have been lovers, and when wedded their helpmeets have brought out the greatest good in their natures—stimulated brain, hand, eye, and heart, helping to give the world men of greatest achievements.

As the girl of his heart prompts the lover to make a name and fame for himself, the wife of his bosom clasps his hand, cheers, and stimulates him to reach the heights.

The world holds many bachelors who have given the world a good account of themselves, but usually the married men have been more persistent in reaching the goal for which they aimed, for they had a faithful heart to please—one whose every throb beat in unison with their own.

Every young girl hugs to her bosom the hope of one day being the delight of some good young man's heart.

It would seem that a man's business in love's world should be entitled to grave scrutiny and careful consideration, all being passed upon favorably save that of a love innkeeper. In the outside world mine host is a dignified and notable figure; in love's world conditions are generally reversed. Those who are averse to meeting transient guests should not lodge in a love's hotel themselves.

Difference in Ages.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am 30 years of age and deeply in love with a young man of 21. Now, people that we both know have passed remarks and think we are foolish and have gone as far as to say I will be accused of 'robbing the cradle.' Now, Miss Libbey, will you please tell me if you think our ages will make and difference? ANXIOUS."

I have known marriages with such a difference in ages to result happily. It is usually wiser to have the man the older.

* *

"Simply a Cold Storage."

"Dear Miss Libbey: I know you will think me quite foolish, but I must ask your advice, as I am so despondent—so sad and troubled at heart. I am a married woman, 34 years old. I have been married since I was 15 years old. Am not in love with my husband. Married the choice of my youth. I have two beautiful children, a boy of 11 years and a girl of 17. I am so devoted to them. I have a beautiful home, beautifully furnished, and husband provides for me, but he is so cross and so overbearing. It seems impossible for me to stand him much longer. He is not at all affectionate, never kisses me or speaks a kind word to me. He is simply a cold storage. He never wants to go anywhere or buy me any clothes, and I have to work to clothe myself. Miss Libbey, into my life has come the man I love and love with all my heart. He is married, but says he loves me. He is a man of exceptionally good qualities. He has no bad habits and is a good Christian, conscientious man. He lives up to his Christian faith. He often speaks of us marrying if Providence ever removes the obstacles out of his way, but he would not leave his wife. He believes something would happen to us if we should separate ourselves, so I must wait until death paves the way before we can be as one. O, please advise me what to do. Is it worth while to wait? We both work at the same place and see each other every night, and it seems as though he is a part of my life. We both are devoted to each other. Kindly tell me what to do. D."

The man can't be much of a Christian and tell you, a married woman, of his love for you. You can be just as sure as there is a sun in the heavens that the fellow would treat you like he is treating his own wife. Give up your work and do not see this fellow again. A married woman who has an able bodied husband has no business downtown working, anyway. Don't sympathize with yourself so much. Cultivate judgment instead.

From a Wife.

"Dear Miss Libbey: Like every one else, I have my troubles and hope you will be able to help me. I am married and love my husband better than anything in this world. When we were married, on Aug. 16, 1910, he had a failure in business, but I stuck to him and at times I hardly knew what to do next. The last year has been successful for him and now he is doing fine. But in the last six months he seems different. He never takes me any place and doesn't come home to his dinners. When I ask him what keeps him so late, and sometimes all night, he says he is working. He says he was at the Palmer house Thursday and Friday nights with a friend. On Saturday I packed my trunk ready to move, and when he thought I was going he made several promises, but still he stays out until 11:30 and 12. We have two lovely rooms and a kitchen; I am a good cook, also a good housekeeper. When he was down in business I started to work and have been working ever since. I get up every morning, cook his breakfast, clean house, and work all day. Then, if he comes home, I cook his dinner. But I can't stand this very long. I am 30 years old and considered good looking, but am getting very thin just from worrying over him. I have a fine position and always make friends wherever I go. Now, if you can suggest anything to make him come home and pay attention to me it will make me one of the happiest women in this world. I am living for him only. L. E. S."

I would advise you to give up your position as long as your husband is now reëstablished in business. No wife can do justice to her home and herself if she is employed downtown. Unless it is absolutely imperative, no married woman with an able bodied husband has any business working downtown. She not only subjects her husband to criticism but she takes the bread out of the mouths of girls who must work for their living. Almost invariably, too, she spells out unhappiness for herself. Give up your job and take more interest in your home and your personal appearance.

"But, Alas!"

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am 22 and up to a month ago I have been going with one of the dearest little girls in all the world. But, alas, as it is with all young people deeply in love, our course of divine happiness was beset with petty differences and disagreements. Latterly we have endeavored to forget the past and begin all over again. Now, what I want to know is this, dear Miss Libbey, how can I arrange matters so that we may be as close friends as ever and when may we be said 'to be going with each other'? If you will answer both of these questions for me I will be greatly cheered and helped, for I am deeply perplexed and sick of heart. GRATEFUL."

The only way you can arrange matters to your liking is by the route of courtesy and attention. Don't make a door mat of yourself, but show the girl by little courtesies dear to a woman's heart that you are interested in her. Call her up some evening and invite her to accompany you to some place of amusement, or ask her permission to call.

Her Husband Flirts.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am 19 and have been married three months. My husband is 20. He is a musician in a theater, and constantly flirts with girls in the audience, and has made several dates after show hours. If his actions are such now what would you advise me to do for the future? DISCOURAGED."

Your husband is acting in a most disgraceful manner. There is only one of two things to do, either ignore his foolishness or have a frank talk with him and insist that he return home immediately after the performance. I would strongly advise the latter course.

No Matrimonial Prize.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am 19 and have been going with two young men for the last two years. A, who is two years my senior, earns $20 a week. When we go out he shows me the finest times. On the other hand B, who earns $30 a week, is so different. When we go out together he is so afraid to spend his money, and when he spends a quarter he keeps reminding me of it all the time. Now, B is a jolly fellow and a great entertainer, while A is so conceited and isn't a bit jolly. Both have asked me to marry them, but I do not know what to do, as I care more for B, although he is so stingy. B said that after our marriage I could keep on working, as we could save so much more. To this I object, although I love him dearly. Now, Miss Libbey, kindly advise me what to do, as I am greatly perplexed. PERPLEXED."

Neither one of the fellows strike me as being a matrimonial prize. The first one apparently does not know the value of money and the second one overestimates it. The fact that he suggests you continuing working after marrying him shows the kind of fellow he is. Let them both go. Try to find a man who more nearly strikes the happy medium in matters of money.

The Flying Dishes.

FLYING DISHES is the name a famous French culinary artiste gives to hors d'œuvres—dishes to fly around the table between courses—appetizers.

These are autocratic definitions of hors d'œuvres. A radish or two, an olive, a new onion, a fish paste on little square of bread—this is the hors d'œuvres of a certain kind of public dining place; and perhaps this combination comes nearest to being the general idea for the dish, but the great cook who invented the term "flying dishes" made those which he served with a puff paste for a foundation—not raw vegetables, but a cooked dish.

A variation on these two ideas is the canape, a piece of toast or a cracker which serves as a resting place for a meat or fish paste or some dainty spiced morsel. As it serves the same purpose as the hors d'œuvres, it is a flying dish. A salad served from a platter belongs in the same category, as do the garnishing jellies served on pieces of toast.

The Pastes.—None of the flying dishes have any great substance, but those of meat or fish pastes, home-made or from cans, have most of this semblance. Served on slender slices of crustless bread, or on long crackers, these are, in time and place, very gratifying. At picnics such combinations will be flying dishes indeed, for they will disappear as though winged. As they are not very filling, a large supply will vanish as a cloud melts, leaving not a rack behind—hunger is not stayed, the appetite not appeased. The meat grinder cannot be turned to a more legitimate use than that of making these pastes. As to the spicing of the meat, that is a matter of taste and judgment. One of the older manufacturers claims for his unique product that it is flavored with forty-two spices, all ground up fine and not fighting each other. Few home cooks would use more than half a dozen. The business of flavoring is almost a natural gift.

Pineapple.—A quarter or a half of a thin slice of pineapple, without sugar, crisp and pinked, makes an attractive and delicious appetizer, unexcelled for its help in digestion as well as in stimulation. It may be served with a very thin slice of bread and butter, rolled and fastened with a little skewer. Pineapple sandwiches are rarely good. The bread, a thin slice, is best toasted quickly and not dried at all. The sandwich is all the more pleasing if cut in ornamental shapes.

Watercress.—Watercress is very well for tea in an arbor, claims a famous good liver, but too rank for a salad. It is also too fragile, though so often used to garnish heavy meats. Those who really care for cress like it best with nothing but salt. A handsome mound of it is an acceptable flying dish on some tables. It should never be bruised and matted by mixing it with pieces of ice. Keep it cool before serving, and then put a saucer over a piece of ice in the middle of the plate on which it is served.

Miscellaneous Recipes.

Corn Chowder.—Boil one cup of potato cut in cubes in one cup of water, add half a can of corn, two cups of milk, half cup of broken crackers, two tablespoons of butter, salt and pepper to taste. Lastly try out one slice of salt pork cut in cubes with one slice of onion. Pour in chowder and cook ten minutes.—Mrs. B. F. Hazzard, 104 North Glenwood avenue.

Hungarian Stew.—One and a half pints of sliced raw potatoes, one and a half pounds of round steak cut thin, four onions sliced, one-half can of tomatoes, one cup rich sweet milk. Put in layers in pan, season as you go, cover all with milk, and bake slowly three hours.—Mrs. W. Butterfield, Antigo, Wis.

Round About Chicago.

When On a Honeymoon.

BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE.

CHICAGO, June 23rd, 1921.—A review of the old files of Chicago papers back in 1911 reveals how much progress has been made in the last ten years in the matter of giving the bride and groom a proper sendoff after a wedding. In 1911, according to the newspapers, the methods in use on wedding occasions were bright and original but crude. At that far off day bridemaids, ushers, groomsmen, loving friends, and relatives confined themselves to merely hurling rice in the bride's face and ears, stealing trunks, or passing the "We are just married" cards around on the train on which the newly wedded pair had started on their honeymoon trip.

These simple tricks seem to us very amateurish. To be sure, the rice sometimes put the bride's eyes out or broke her ear drums so that she really would always remember her wedding day without too much of an effort, and sometimes a well aimed old shoe stuffed with lead pipe would stretch a bridegroom senseless—but not always.

Still it should be recalled that the great advance made in the matter of giving a proper sendoff to brides and grooms really began in these primitive if somewhat childish pranks of 1911. Our progress in this matter may be best observed by taking a number of clippings from newspapers of today and comparing them with the accounts of weddings in 1911.

For instance, on yesterday afternoon, Miss Vera Simpul was wedded to Mr. I. R. Harried at the bride's home on Sheridan road. After the ceremony the new Mrs. Harried was carried to the lake by her bridemaids and ducked ten times. It was an extremely laughable event. Mr. Harried made a frenzied attempt to rescue his wife, but was seized by his jolly groomsmen and, after being tied with a rope to the back of an automobile, was compelled to run all the way to Waukegan. Mr. and Mrs. Harried have given up their plans for the bridal trip. Mrs. Harried will spend her honeymoon in the well known Neurasthenia sanitarium and Mr. Harried will be at home to his friends in the Rogers Park hospital.

Other accounts clipped at random showing how much progress has been made in the matter of giving the bride and groom a pretty sendoff are as follows:

"Rollo, Ill., June 22, 1921.—A very pretty wedding took place in Rollo yesterday afternoon, Miss Lulu Nicer being wedded to Mr. Percival Dubb, the son of Mayor Dubb of Rollo. After the ceremony, which took place on the wide, sweeping lawn of the Nicer residence, the happy young couple went in an automobile to the railroad station to begin their journey to Niagara Falls. Mrs. Dubb was seized by her bridemaids and a beautiful bird in three colors was tattooed on her forehead. Mr. Dubb was seized by his friends and relatives and, after being tarred and feathered, was ridden out of town on a rail behind the justly famous Rollo Silver Cornet band. The event was one of the most amusing and delightful weddings that ever took place in our little village."

"Blahaville, Ind.—Miss Truly Lovely was married here today to Mr. John de Smythers of Chicago, the well known young portrait painter. While the wedding was announced to take place at high noon, it was not until evening that the bans uniting this splendid young couple were finally pronounced owing to the unusual cleverness of the bridal attendants. Some of the fun loving relatives of the bride set fire to the First Methodist church just as the contracting parties were walking down the aisle to the inspiring strains of the wedding march from 'Lohengrin,' which was beautifully rendered on the organ by Miss Ima Wonder. Mr. de Smythers rescued his bride from the flames with some difficulty and then repaired to the home of the bride and attempted to have the ceremony on the veranda. The groom's best man, however, exploded a charge of dynamite under the veranda just as the bride was about to say 'I will' and the ceremony was naturally interrupted.

"The groom finally played a neat trick on his friends by escaping with Miss Lovely to the county jail, where the two were locked by the sheriff in a cell and the marriage ceremony performed by Justice of the Peace Soakem, who fortunately was doing ten days in jail on the charge of disorderly conduct. Mr. G. Washington Jackson, our well known colored whitewasher and calciminer, who has been in jail since February for stealing chickens, and Mr. Jip Yegg, who is awaiting trial for safe blowing, acted as witnesses. The relatives and friends of the happy couple attempted to mob the jail and broke in the steel doors with sledge hammers, but arrived too late. However, they turned a clever trick at the last by stealing the key to the cell in which the bridal couple had taken refuge, and the two will probably have to spend their honeymoon in jail. It was truly a most delightful occasion."

"Chicago—The wedding of Miss Ina Minit to Mr. Clarence Sweetleigh took place at the bride's palatial home in Hyde Park yesterday. The social prominence of the happy couple drew a large crowd and the event was solemnized in an unusually impressive manner. The relatives of the newlyweds played a clever prank on the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Sweetleigh had escaped in disguise from the bridal party and taken a train for the west, intending to spend the honeymoon at the groom's ranch in Colorado. Detectives hired to follow the young couple, however, wired the relatives the train on which they had located the bride and groom. Dispatches were promptly sent ahead to a brace of well known train bandits and the train was derailed at Chuckee Junction and sent into the ditch. Outside of a broken arm and a few minor cuts the bride was unhurt and the groom escaped with nothing worse than two or three contusions and a dislocated shoulder. The casualties attending other passengers on the train will be found in the full account of the wreck in another column.

"As Mr. and Mrs. Sweetleigh were carried to the hospital they received a telegram from their relatives and friends which said: 'Ha! ha! Now will you be good? Best wishes for a happy married life. From father, mother, and wedding party.'"

"Limpid Lake, Wis.—The departure of Mr. Samuel Scads and his bride, who was Miss Daisy Daffodil, for Chicago this afternoon was one of the most successful events of a similar nature that ever occurred at this well known summer capital of fashion. Mr. Scads, being of a peculiarly eccentric disposition, had provided himself with armed guards from a detective agency, who had surrounded the couple at the altar and then marched with them to the train. It seemed as though the bridal couple were going to go away without even the customary shower of rice, but the ingenious minds of some of the close relatives of both the bride and groom prevented such a calamity. Just as the bridal couple were stepping on the train a half dozen of the ushers and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Scads bobbed up on the roof of the depot with shotguns loaded to the muzzle with rice. They opened fire on the bride and groom and filled them with enough rice to insure the happiest kind of a married life—in case they survive. The throwing of rice at young couples about to go on a wedding trip is one of our most ancient as well as most beautiful customs, and Mr. and Mrs. Scads should be congratulated, if they are still alive, that they had such loving relatives and friends who would not permit them to go away without being followed by the little harbingers of a long and joyous married life."

SAYS U.S. JUSTICES WERE GIVEN JOLT

OIL DECISION 'IN WRONG.'

People of Country Said to Have Misunderstood Admonition of Highest Federal Court.

"The justices of the Supreme court of the United States were the most surprised body of men on earth when they found the single word "unreasonable" taken out of their decision in the Standard Oil case and snapped at by the whole of the people.'

This was the statement made by former United States Attorney General Bonaparte at the Hotel Blackstone yesterday on his way from Baltimore to address the Illinois State Bar association at Urbana today.

"I read in that decision," said Mr. Bonaparte, "merely a caution to the bench and bar to utilise a reasonable interpretation of the Sherman law. I have no doubt that this is the impression the learned judges of the United States Supreme court sought to give.

"They were astounded upon the morning following their famous decision when they found that the whole thing had been practically cast aside and only the word 'unreasonable' remained. This was, I believe, the reason why the decision in the tobacco trust case was withheld and why finally in that decision two or more pages are devoted to an explanation of the meaning of the word 'unreasonable' which was accorded only one word in the Standard Oil case.

Work Started Years Ago.

"The Supreme court decisions in the various trust cases is the result of work which was started many years ago—even before my connection with the department of justice. It has taken many years to collect this evidence, and the papers have been on the desks of several attorneys general and solicitors general of the United States.

"If it had not been for the fact that we were able to point out to many of the men involved in these trust cases the fact that we would proceed against them criminally, if we could not civilly, the majority of these cases would still be sleeping in pigeon holes in Washington for lack of evidence upon which to proceed."

"You mean that the immunity bath has been a good thing?" was suggested.

"That is exactly what I mean," replied the former attorney general. "Without it we could have done nothing. With it we have accomplished, I think, a great deal.'

Trust Men Fear Prosecution.

"These men of the trusts are all afraid of individual prosecutioon under the criminal sections of the statute. Using that as a club we were able to obtain a great deal of evidence. Without that, I do not see how we could have obtained the facts we wanted."

Mr. Bonaparte said that he had heard of the criticism of Attorney General Wickersham, Senator Root, and others, on the ground of their previous connection as attorneys for companies now the objects of governmental action and he was asked if he considered such changing of front ethical in the legal profession.

"I should say," he replied, "that if I were placed in such a position, I would turn the case over to some one else and take a long vacation. However, I do not believe that any of the men mentioned have been so involved that they will be called upon to prosecute a former client.

"There is a difference between having something to do with corporation law and being actually involved as general counsel in the formation of a trust which the department of justice of the United States considers as a violator of the Sherman act.

Root Was Not Interferer.

"As far as Senator Root is concerned, I have never known him to interfere with a law case during my experience with him in the cabinet. The only time I have ever known of him as a lawyer in the cabinet was at the time when Judge Gary and Mr. Frick came to Washington to consult with President Roosevelt concerning the Tennessee Coal and Iron company purchase. Then the president sent for him to ask his advice."

Concerning the Lorimer case, Mr. Bonaparte said:

"The conditions surrounding the election of Senator Lorimer and other conditions of course will hinder us in the next general election, as similar conditions would naturally hinder any political party. I have been an 'independent' in politics at times, but I come nearer being a Republican than anything else. I do not fear the ultimate result regarding the head of the ticket, but local conditions may affect the results in the various states."

Asked concerning the reciprocity treaty with Canada, Mr. Bonaparte said:

"The negotiations appear to have blundered into a snarl. To my mind, the question of annexation is being forced into the proposition by its opponents, and this of course weakens it. Canada will not stand for this talk of annexation, but it will stand for reciprocity."

SWAT THE FLY! IT'S A DEADLY PERIL.

THE TRIBUNE is daily in receipt of letters from inventors of fly traps and other devices for catching the insects. These genluses ask THE TRIBUNE to give publicity to their schemes so that fortunes may be reaped by them. This THE TRIBUNE cannot do. If they have invented fly exterminators THE TRIBUNE wishes them well and hopes the devices may be put on the market and that they will prove huge successes, but they cannot be aided by this department.

Some of these devices have been sent to this office and they have proved to be efficient "swatters." This is all very well after the flies get into the house, but the thing to do is to prevent them from getting in. Where there are children and the doors are opened many times in a day this is difficult, even when the doors are screened, but a morning rubbing of the outside of the screen doors and window frames with a rag saturated with kerosene or a weak solution of formaldehyde will make it unpleasant for the flies. They avoid things with kerosene on them, and they will keep away from screen doors so treated.

The fly season is just beginning, and there is no time to lose if you intend to fortify your house against the invasion.

Remember that cleanliness is next to flylessness. Keep the house clean in all its parts. Keep after the flies all summer. A few minutes' work each day will free your house from such as get in, and if you rigidly destroy the eggs, or give the flies no chance to hatch, not many will get in.

No better example of the danger from flies can be found than the story of the origin of several cases of typhoid brought back from the south by a number of Chicago and other winter tourists at a hotel there. After what was almost an epidemic of the disease the hotel manager sent for a number of bacteriologists. The water was found good, so was the milk supply. Wells in the neighborhood were tested and proved harmless. Then it was recollected that during a shortage in cream the hotel had bought that, and ice cream also, of a dealer in another town.

His dairy was visited and discovered to be neat and clean to all appearances, but it was not screened. Near by was a negro family, the man of which had been ill with typhoid for several months. The unscreened dairy, the neglected patient, and an open vault in the back yard formed a chain of evidence. The typhoid epidemic several miles away where the cream was used was the result. Happily, the Chicago victims recovered.

But can you ask for a better example of the disease carrying abilities of the fly?

ICE CREAM COMPANIES LOSE POINT IN FEDERAL COURT.

Judge Landis Overrules Demurrer Filed by Indicted Concerns Attacking Constitutionality of Pure Food Law.

Judge Landis in the United State District court yesterday overruled the demurrer filed by indicted ice cream companies of Chicago, in which the constitutionality of the pure food act was attacked. The companies are alleged to have shipped ice cream alleged to have contained impurities and foreign matter.

McBridge Bros. & Knobbe, the Thompson Reid Ice Cream company, and Ross A. Woodhull, and Addis E. Woodhull, the latter operating the Woodhull Brothers Ice Cream company, are affected by the court's ruling.

Samples of the cream taken by government agents and which have been analyzed show the presence of foreign and filthy substances in the product, according to government information. The defendants are under indictment in the Federal courts and will be placed on trial in the fall.

ILLINOIS SUFFRAGETS NOT DISCOURAGED BY DEFEAT.

Association Calls Killing of Equal Suffrage Bill by Legislature as "Delay" —Wants Murderess Pardoned.

The woman suffrage advocates of Illinois decline to accept the failure of the state legislature to pass an equal suffrage bill as a defeat. They call it a "delay" and yesterday afternoon they met to re-form and rally their forces at a luncheon held at the Great Northern hotel.

There was only one man present—not counting the newspaper reporters—and nearly a hundred women. The lone man was Bishop Samuel Fallows, who spoke a few words of what the women called "encouragement."

Miss Anna E. Nicholes was chairman and after a few words from her Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulloch was introduced. Mrs. McCulloch gave a summary of the history of the fight for equal suffrage, especially as it applies to the Illinois Equal Suffrage association.

Resolutions were adopted protesting against the execution of Mrs. Angelino Napolitano, scheduled for Aug. 9, in Canada, for the murder of her husband, who tried to force her to support him by entering a life of shame. The association will forward a petition to Gov. Gen. Grey of Canada, asking that the woman be pardoned.

RIVAL POLITICAL CLANS CALL TRUCE

INQUEST WILL MEAN WAR

Patrolman, Protege of "Hot Stove Jimmy," Slated for Promotion.

Renewal of the war between the James A. Quinn and John F. O'Malley factions in the Twenty-first ward was postponed yesterday when the inquest on the body of John Costa, "Jack the Ripper," who was shot and killed by George Hudson about two weeks ago, was continued until July 25.

Hudson is still at the Passavant hospital, but neither of the two bullet wounds which he received is now considered serious.

There will be a test of strength between the two clans of political feudists at the inquest, with the probability that the losing side will appeal from the decision by deeds of violence.

Police Not Feared.

The factions have little fear that the police will subject them to any undue interference. O'Malley still stands high with Inspector Revere, who is nominally supreme. But the nominal power of the inspector has been quite overshadowed since Harrison was elected by the intensely real power of Lieut. "Sandy" Hanley.

It is rumored through the "district" that as soon as the Hudson-Costa matter has blown over Officer Loftis, who told one story at the time Arthur Quinn shot Cunningham and another one at the inquest, is due to receive a sergeancy.

"Trimmed" a Farmer.

Hall had "trimmed" a Michigan farmer, was caught, and released on bonds signed by "Hot Stove Jimmy" Quinn. The case was called before Justice Hoglund. Hall failed to appear. The justice forfeited his bond, and the farmer heard a heavy bridewell sentence imposed. He left at once for his Michigan home.

As soon as he was gone Hall and Quinn appeared at court, secured the setting aside of the forfeiture, and the setting of another day for a rehearing of the case. The farmer refused to return to the city and the case was dismissed for want of prosecution.

RECIPROCITY VOTE DEFERRED AGAIN

TRADE TREATY IN PERIL.

Fear Expressed That It Will Be Amended So as to Meet Disapproval of Taft.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—Treading gingerly over ground made dangerous by adverse reports of the senate committee on finance, on the Democratic farmers' free list and the wool revision bills, and startled by the threat that these measures, together with bills to revise the cotton, sugar, lead, and steel schedules, would be offered as amendments to the reciprocity bill, the senate concluded today without reaching the expected vote on the Canadian measure.

The finance committee reported adversely on the wool bill by a vote of 9 to 4, and on the farmers' free list bill by a vote of 8 to 5. When these reports were presented to the senate every chance of an agreement for a vote on the reciprocity bill to be followed by early adjournment of the extra session vanished. The senate realized that it was confronted with a general tariff revision fight for which the regular Republicans were opposed and for which both Democrats and insurgent Republicans sought credit.

That the senate had entered upon the most difficult stage of its progress toward action on the reciprocity measure was conceded on every hand. It was admitted that the measure was threatened with death or amendment that might make it inacceptable to President Taft or obnoxious to Canada.

Outcome Difficult to Predict.

The question now uppermost is whether the president would accept any amendments to the reciprocity bill. The Democrats who hesitate to defeat reciprocity by amending it are many, but if there is a prospect of forcing the president to accept any amendments in the way of further tariff revision the amendments will have a majority of the senate behind them.

Small conferences were held in the Democratic ranks all day. The suggestion already had been made in some quarters that the wool bill and the free list bill be passed ahead of the reciprocity bill, so that the latter can be used to induce the president to sign the others. Democratic leaders and insurgents confess, however, that they have determined upon no line of future action and do not know what turn the complicated situation will take within the next few days.

The debate over the finance committee's action was short. From that the senate ran into a discussion of the reciprocity bill, Senator Cummins attacking the Root amendment on the ground that it would indefinitely delay the relief which American paper consumers seek from the grip of the so-called paper trust. The vote on the amendment was again deferred.

Control of Paper Prices.

Senator Cummins declared he believed the manufacturers of print paper in the United States effectually control prices and dictate the mills from which purchasers may buy. He expressed the belief tha the prices at which paper is sold in the United States are not determined by the ordinary rules and forces of trade and commerce.

Senator Nelson declared the reciprocity bill could affect only paper and pulp from privately owned lands. He said its effect would be to benefit American owners of Canadian timber and that such benefit would accrue to certain American paper manufacturers on their own Canadian lands.

Explaining in the senate the sudden action of the finance committee on the two bills, Chairman Penrose declared the committee did not believe proper hearings could be held within the twenty days allowed by the Gore resolution. For that reason, he said, the committee had determined to report both bills at once with the recommendation that they do not pass.

"There is no explanation or report with the bills," observed Senator Cummins.

"Only the adverse recommendation of the committee," said Chairman Penrose. "Members of the committee have the privilege of filing independent views, but I have not been advised that any will be filed."

Senator Gore declared the Democrats would take no step toward delaying the passage of the reciprocity bill.

Votes on Report Explained.

Senator La Follette's vote to report the Democratic woolen bill adversely is explained by the fact that he has a bill of his own for a revision of schedule "K," which he expects to present in the senate within a few days. He desired that the finance committee delay action until such time as he could complete his bill, but the committee declined to accede to his request.

Senator Smoot, as ranking member of the finance committee, said he had voted to report the wool bill back at once because he thought the whole problem ought to be settled as quickly as possible. The time allowed by the Gore resolution for hearings on the wool bill was too short, he said.

Questioned by Senator Bacon as to the high rate on woolen blankets, Senator Smoot said it shut out the shoddy, cotton-mixed blankets of Europe. The average value of imported blankets is only 30 centimes [6 cents] a pound, he said, while the value of pure wool in its unmanufactured state is 60 cents a pound.

"I don't care if the duty averages 165 per cent, if it will prevent our people from being imposed on with cheap, shoddy blankets made from the chopped up rags of the people of Europe," he said.

SUGAR INQUIRY ON MORMON TRAIL

C. B. Warren Asserts Taft Made No Tariff Pledge Before His Election.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—Inquiry into the relationship between the Mormon church and the American Sugar Refining company begun today before the house committee of inquiry into the sugar trust disclosed that Henry O. Havemeyer's first dealings in the beet sugar industry were with the Utah Sugar company, in which the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was interested.

Thomas R. Cutler of Salt Lake, vice president and general manager of the Utah-Idaho Sugar Refining company and former bishop of the Mormon church, appeared before the committee as a witness.

He disclosed that, of the approximately $9,500,000 paid up stock of the Utah-Idaho company, the American Sugar Refining company controls $4,650,050, or 465,050 shares; Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, as trustee for the church, 49,815 shares; the estate of Henry O. Havemeyer, 23,174 shares, and the remainder is owned by 1,493 individual stockholders.

Mr. Smith, who has been summoned as a witness, sent word that he was on his way to Washington and would arrive on Monday, to supplement the testimony given by Mr. Cutler, who will continue before the committee tomorrow.

Goes Back Into Early History.

Mr. Cutler related to the committee the early history of the beet sugar industry in Utah, dating back many years up to the time of the organization of the Utah Sugar company in 1889 and the Idaho company in 1906. The Mormon church became interested first by indorsing notes of the original company and purchasing bonds and later was induced to buy stock, he said. Representative Garrett of Tennessee, who conducted the examination of Mr. Cutler, asked about the first entrance of Mr. Havemeyer into the affairs of the company.

"In 1902," said the witness, "I first met Henry O. Havemeyer. I had been hunting capital for the sugar industry in which we were interested and had been in the east many times. He sent an agent to Utah to see me. I went to New York and met Mr. Havemeyer. He said to me: 'We have decided to go into the beet sugar business. We have heard of your success in the west. We sent for you to see if you couldn't help us in establishing beet sugar plants in any good locations in the United States.'

After the witness made six trips between New York and Utah the deal was closed with Mr. Havemeyer.

Taft and Sugar Tariff.

Regarding negotiations as to the Philippine tariff, Representative Fordney explained that he and others in congress had conferred with Mr. Taft before the latter's inauguration. He said the compromise limiting the importation of Philippine sugar free of duty to 300,000 tons in the Payne-Aldrich law was consented to by the beet sugar people of his and other sections of the country.

"Mr. Taft agreed to it and was anxious for such a compromise," he said.

Mr. Warren was closely questioned regarding the sugar tariff conferences with the president.

"Was there any understanding that in the event of Mr. Taft's election to the presidency the tariff on sugar would not be disturbed?" he was asked.

"No, there was not," said Mr. Warren. "There was no conversation except about Philippine concessions."

MRS. EDDY'S WILL PROBATED

Admitted in Massachusetts, but Attorney General Appeals.

FIGHTS FOR STATE TAX.

Second Proceeding Relating to Estate of Scientist.

Boston, Mass., June 22.—The will of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science church, was admitted to probate in the Suffolk county Probate court today.

Attorney General James M. Swift of Massachusetts immediately took an appeal to the Supreme court on the question of domicile.

The carrying of the case to the Supreme court brings the will alongside another proceeding relating to property left by Mrs. Eddy. Both actions involve substantially the same questions regarding domicile of the testatrix, and it is the desire of the attorney general to have both cases tried at the same time.

Authenticated Copy Filed.

At the probate hearing today no objections were made to the allowance of the will, a copy of which was offered by Charles F. Choat. The copy was authenticated, showing the record of the proceedings at Concord, N. H., where the original is on file.

It is the claim of the attorney general that Mrs. Eddy was domiciled in Massachusetts at the time of her death, and that this state is entitled to the tax levy, the amount of which is said to be comparatively small.

Conveyances Are Contested.

The action now pending in the Supreme court involves the conveyance of two parcels of real estate from trustees of Mrs. Eddy's property to the directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of this city.

The statute limiting bequests to churches to an amount yielding not more than $2,000 also is involved in this latter case.

OBITUARY.

MRS. SOPHIA ELLEN STEVENSON, widow of the late Matthew Asbury Stevenson, one of the first daguerreotypists in the United States, died yesterday at her residence, 5900 South Park avenue. She was born in Geneseo, N. Y., on April 3, 1837. Following the death of her husband in 1895 Mrs. Stevenson removed to Chicago. Nine children survive. The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon to Oakwoods cemetery, where the remains will be cremated.

MRS. NETTIE BAKER THEARLE, a resident of Englewood since 1872, died at the Hinsdale sanitarium yesterday after a long illness. She is survived by her husband, Fred G. Thearle, and a daughter, Mrs. Henry D. Sulcer. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with services at the family residence, 428 West Sixty-eighth street. Interment will be at Mount Greenwood.

MRS. ELIZA A. SHANNON, a resident of Chicago for half a century and widow of P. H. Shannon, died Wednesday morning at her home, 343 North Waller street, Austin, aged 80 years. Mrs. Shannon was a native of New Brunswick, Can. Funeral services will be held this morning at St. Catherine's church, Austin. The interment will be at Calvary.

MRS. CHARITY HINSDALE died yesterday at her home, 700 East Forty-fourth street. She was 97 years old. Old age was the cause of death. The body will be taken to New Haven, Conn., for burial. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Foster and Mrs. W. D. Schmitz, and a son, Cornelius Hinsdale.

MISS KATHERINE GRANT, after a long illness, died Thursday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. S. Hyde, 4204 Oakenwald avenue. The body will be taken to Dixon, Ill., the old family home, and the funeral will be held at the residence of Mrs. Eustace Shaw.

SMYTH DISMISSES 37 DRAINAGE MEN

Usurps Power Vested in Committee on Finance and Objection May Follow.

SEE TRICKERY IN ORDER.

Trustees Fear Places Will Be Filled by Political Workers Who Are Unfit.

Ostensibly in the interest of the economy and efficiency of the service, President Thomas A. Smyth of the sanitary district board yesterday informed the trustees of his intention to discharge thirty-seven men now in the employ of the district.

Several of the men on Mr. Smyth's discharge list have records of the highest efficiency. Among these are: F. R. Williamson, H. B. Kirkpatrick, T. W. Schmidt, H. F. Burkett, J. F. O'Connor, and Normal E. S. Eavert.

In a communication to the trustees, Mr. Smyth says that the order of dismissal is to take effect July 1, 1911. It has been pointed out, however, that the power to discharge employés of the sanitary district lies, not with the president, but with the finance committee.

Calls Act "Political Subterfuge."

A member of the board of trustees declared yesterday that the action of the president was a political subterfuge. He said that it has been known for several weeks that men now employed by the sanitary district who did not enjoy political patronage were in danger of losing their positions.

The action of the president is said to have grown out of the refusal of the board of trustees to fill the positions in the sanitary district service with henchmen of political leaders. Several of the men now slated by Mr. Smyth for dismissal are college men with a thorough technical training, who were secured from leading universities. These men were not expected to be active politically, though others, lacking the technical training, would be better assets for the politician.

Considers It "His Duty."

Mr. Smyth in his communication to the board of trustees says:

"The saving to the sanitary district through my action in discharging the thirty-seven employés will amount to approximately $45,000 a year, and as there seems to be no question that the board can dispense with these services, without any injury to its work, I consider it my duty to take this action at this time, in order to save a large amount of money to the taxpayers of the sanitary district."

Members of the board of trustees declare that any reduction of the working force of the district will seriously impair its efficiency. A demoralization of the whole régime, it is declared, would be the result if the wholesale discharge of employés is effected, and it would be soon realized that the sanitary district had been seriously handicapped by the reduction of the force. Then the opportunity, which it is said the politicians are looking for, would be open, and unfit men would fill important positions.

The insurance of the automobiles used by the sanitary district and the bonding of its employés has up to the present time been given to the insurance company to which John U. Smyth, son of the president of the district, is connected. At the next meeting of the board a motion for a readjustment of this insurance will be made and for competitive bids from insurance companies.

"Yale Descendant" in Police Court.

Charged with operating a confidence game, Elizur Yale Smith, who says he is a descendant of the founder of Yale college, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Maxwell at the Harrison street police court yesterday. The case was continued until June 29. He was arrested on the complaint of the management of the Blackstone hotel.

Perhaps the most significant thing about this letter is that it not only shows that the wide-awake, efficient farmers who read that leading farm weekly of the Northwest are ready buyers, but that New England manufacturers—whom everyone knows are exceedingly shrewd, as well as conservative—are awakening to

The Value of the American Northwest as a Market

Some of the shrewdest, most conservative New England manufacturers have picked the NORTHWEST FARMSTEAD for quick returns—and they have not been disappointed. We will show you their letters if you will ask for them.

The value of the 600,000 farms in these eight states has trebled in ten years. Their farm lands and buildings and farm implements and machinery are now worth (according to U. S. Census) a total of $4,894,896,120. You can get some of these sales through NORTHWEST FARMSTEAD, that virile, splendidly successful farm paper having for its goal the development of the American Northwest, subscribed for by the most wide-awake, money-making and spending farmers in those eight prosperous states

With 100,000 Circulation Weekly

Edited by men who know their Northwest, its possibilities, the needs of its farmers. Their writings are so live, practical and suggestive that it "gets under the skin" and spurs our readers on to better farming and living, more efficient management, the employment of more labor-saving methods. It is this vitality of the editorial columns of the NORTHWEST FARMSTEAD that makes it such a purchasing force.

Our force of 16 advertising men are fact-bringers, proof demonstrators. They know the talking arguments and selling points that appeal to our readers. They know when certain kinds of copy can be profitably increased from small space to full pages, and it is not guesswork on their part, either. They know the circulation, rates and distribution of every farm paper published. They know the 1910 state census figures, the leading crops, climatic and market conditions in the various localities. They have helped many advertisers make money and saved a lot from loss. Our advertising department always works in close co-operation with our advertisers and their advertising agents. Over 200 prominent advertisers are now using NORTHWEST FARMSTEAD and getting results, because of the intimate, practical and timely knowledge our advertising men have given them. BY I. E. SANBORN.

Some criminally careless operator reversed the film yesterday at the third performance of Cubs and Pirates on the west side arena and ground out a defeat for our boys as overwhelming and in many respects strongly resembling the rout of the invading crew the day before. The score was 12 to 3 against us, but the ex-Cubs came valiantly to the rescue by trimming New York, thereby maintaining Chicago's tenuous lead.

Lefty Leifield proved an insurmountable obstacle in the path of the same men who had swatted four Pirate pitchers all over this part of creation only the day before. He wound his sinuous sou'paw sirens around the bats of the Cubs with persistent regularity as long as there was any question how the picture was going to look at the finish. Toward the end a couple of solid shot fired by Zimmerman and Tinker, the latter a clean home run into the stand, accounted for the three runs that stood between us and a worse beating. Hofman did not mind Leifield's pitching at all. In fact he liked it to the extent of a single, double, and triple in three times at bat. The other time up he walked right ahead of Zim's three bagger in the seventh.

Drive Brown from Mound.

It was Brown's lot to hook up with Leifield when Lefty was right with a capital G and to add to his tough luck his support was not of the best in spots. In spite of that he held the Pirates within chasing distance with the help of some swell work by Hofman until the fifth inning. Then the Pirates took to Brownie's curves with such ferocity and determination that Manager Chance sent Fred Toney out with a relief expedition. Toney fared well for the rest of that session and the next, but in the seventh the visitors punished him severely and his backers deserted under fire, the whole mess netting Pittsburg four runs and an absolute cinch.

Then it was Manager Chance's turn to try out a collegian and he accepted it by letting Ernie Ovitz, the former University of Illinois star, work the last two innings. The graduate of George Huff's school of pitching has been such a stranger to the slab for months that the plate wabbled a lot and in consequence he passed three men in two innings. The visitors combed three hits off him and the combination gave them two tallies.

Pirate Support Faultless.

The Pirates gave Leifield faultless support. Byrne in particular was a fiend at chewing up base hits. He annexed five assists during the day and twice in the early rounds stabbed ordinarily safe hits and retired the side on them with runners waiting to score. Manager Clarke once went almost to the grand stand in deep left and pulled down a smash by Graham which would have dented a plank if it had not been intercepted. Leifield helped himself with three hits off the pitching combination opposed to him. Clarke and Byrne also hit for safeties, Byrne's trio totaling six bases.

Brown started in auspiciously by striking out Carey. It proved the hoodoo Griffith always said it was. Clarke followed with a double and reached third on a passed ball. Doyle grabbed Byrne's bounder and nailed the enemy's manager at the pan. Tinker made a bobble on Wagner's grounder, but Archer caught him napping and no damage was done. In the Cub first with two out Hofman started his slugging career with a triple to left center. Zimmy slashed viciously to Byrne, who knocked the ball down and retired Heine at first.

Brown struck out Miller and McKechnie in the second and let Wilson down with a grounder. It looked like plain sailing for the veteran the way he was going. In the local half Good was hit and stole second, but was retired trying to make third when Byrne smothered Archer's hard hit.

Carey Scores First Run.

Leifield led the enemy to its first run in the third inning with a single after one was out. Carey was robbed of a hit by a great stop by Hofman, who wheeled and shot the ball to second in time to force Leifield. Clarke poked a single on a line to center and Good fumbled it just enough to let Carey sprint all the way from first to the plate. Clarke reached second, but was stranded there on Byrne's grounder to Tinker.

In the fourth the Pirates grabbed two more runs, one of them a gift. Wagner soused a three bagger along the left foul line to start the thing. Miller flied to Sheckard, whose line shot to the plate held Wagner on third, but only for a minute. McKechnie sent a single into center, scoring Honus. Mac then stole second and kept right on going to the plate. Archer's low throw to stop him went through Tinker to center and Good returned it high over Doyle's head to the stand. They got the next two batters and the side out.

Once more in the fifth Leifield rapped out a single and this time it opened proceedings. Carey bunted toward first, but Hofman by great hustling got the ball in time to force Leifield at second. It was a long time before any one else went out. Clare walked, Byrne doubled to left, and Wagner singled to right. Three runs went home and there was an enemy on first with only one out. Manager Chance sent Toney into the thick of the fight to stop the attack. The Kentucky Giant let Miller down with a pop fly, then caught Hans Wagner napping off first.

Toney Good at Start.

Toney got out of it with only one hit off him in the sixth, but met disaster in the seventh. Carey started it by beating a slow hit. Clarke popped a foul to Doyle, then the trouble started. Byrne smashed out a triple, scoring Carey. Wagner hit to Zimmy, who threw low to the plate to get Byrne, and everybody was safe. Miller singled, putting Hans on third, and he went home on McKechnie's rap to Tinker, who threw low to the plate and lost the out. Wilson walked, filling the bases. Gibson forced Wilson at second, letting Miller count, and Leifield grounded the side out.

Up to this time the Cubs had made only two hits off Leifield. In the last of the seventh he passed Hofman, and Zimmy followed with a ringing three bagger to center, scoring Artie. Doyle plugged a single over second and it looked like a promising rally, but Leifield was only stalling and stopped Tinker, Good, and Graham easily.

Ovitz began the eighth by walking Carey, but it took a sacrifice, a single, another pass, and a force-out to score the run. Zimmerman closed that inning by a good stop and throw off McKechnie's grass cutter. In the ninth, with two out, Leifield ripped off his third single. A pass to Carey and a safety by Clarke scored him. Joe Tinker made it hurt a little less by walloping a healthy home run over the screen back of right field in the ninth. But no one could follow suit.

COIN FOR CHILDREN'S BENEFIT.

Big Crowd Pays Way Into Comiskey Park and Sees American Giants Defeat West Ends, 4 to 1.

A big crowd was out yesterday at Comiskey park, and as a result the Children's Day association is several hundred dollars richer this morning. Youthful program sellers and popcorn venders reaped an additional harvest of coin for charity during the game. The program offered was a ball game between the West Ends and the American Giants, the latter winning 4 to 1.

The contest was a spirited affair, although a trifle one sided, the white players saving a shutout in the last inning. Dougherty pitched a clever game, Ernie Johnson being the only one to hit him safely more than once. Pete Hill was the slugger of the Giants, getting a single, double, and triple in four times up. ## CUB SYDELIGHTS.

Same teams in Pittsburg today and tomorrow.

Cubs and Pirates will be back here on Sunday for the final round of their present scrap.

Manager Chance took seventeen players to the Smoky City last night with a determination to hold on to the lead if fighting will do it.

Reulbach, Cole, and Richie are the pitchers on whom the brunt of the slab work will fall for the next two days.

Schulte had the hardest time with Leifield's siren delivery. He struck out three times in succession, but managed to pop up a foul the fourth time he faced the sou'paw.

Hofman opened the fourth with a single. Zimmerman smashed a warm one at Byrne, who whipped the ball to second in time for a double play that took the starch all out of that attack.

Tinker was the busiest guy in the bunch. He had fifteen chances during the day and accepted thirteen of them. His two slips cost one run between them. Byrne was proportionately as busy as Tinker. He had eight chances and accepted all of them.

After Sheckard had turned Wagner back to third by a swell throw in the fourth inning the visitors tried a squeeze play with McKechnie doing the squeezing. He proved a lemon and merely fouled the ball off. Then he singled and Wagner scored anyway.

Wagner gave the Cubs a great chase when Toney caught him napping off first in the fifth inning. Hofman raced with Hans almost to second, then tossed the ball to Tinker. Wagner started back, then doubled and twisted like a rabbit trying to slip past the actor man. But Joe Faversham tagged him, and finished with a demonstration of how he could play football by making a diving tackle that held Hans by the ankles.

Games Today.

Chicago at St. Louis. Philadelphia at Boston.
Washington at N. York. Cleveland at Detroit.

BY SAM WELLER.

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—[Special.]—Those trailing Browns played ball today as if they expected the American league to blow up before next pay day, and consequently the courageous White Sox robbed them of another game—one they didn't deserve at all—making a record of four straight in this sweltering town. The Browns had six splendid chances to score runs and managed to get one man over the plate. The Sox had only two chances to get near the home slab, and in one of those chances got two men over, winning the contest by a score of 2 to 1.

All this was done in the presence of about 700 patrons who still persist in attending the games. It's so quiet at Mr. Hedges' enormous concrete plant that from the grandstand you hear the fans in the bleachers talking to each other. The things they say about the players of the St. Louis club are not fit to print.

Lange Wild as Usual.

"Iron Man" Lange slabbed for the Sox, and it mattered not if he was not in form. The Browns made seven hits off him besides getting five free passes. But when they got on the bases they didn't know what to do, and three of them were cut off at the home plate and a couple of spectacular double plays killed them in two other instances.

Their one lone tally resulted from a double following a base on balls, the first man having the presence of mind to race home when the second man hit the ball to the left field fence.

Jock Powell, moroe enormous than ever, was on the slab for the Browns and should have won his game by a 1 to 0 count, but his support cracked in one critical period, letting two undeserving runs get home. Powell allowed only four base hits and passed only three men. It happened that one of those base hits was a double and came in the same inning with one of the singles and an error. That gave the two runs and Bill Lange, getting perfect support from his teammates, made those two runs win the game.

Running Tires Jack Powell.

Possibly if big Powell hadn't tried so hard to win his own game in the last half of the fifth inning, he wouldn't have allowed the Sox to win in the first half of the sixth. Jack was first batter in the Brown's half and happened to swing his hefty bat against one of Lange's fast ones, the result being a line drive to the right field wall. McIntyre made an effort to catch the ball, but couldn't quite reach it and it went to the fence. Jack wiggled his enormous hulk all the way to third base, just making good with a tumble at Harry Lord's feet as the latter received the relayed throw. It would have been a jogging home run for Ty Cobb.

That sprint was the most running Powell has done since he joined the Browns, in 1904, according to the old inhabitants who were present at the game. It took several minutes for him to regain his breath so he could stand erect and he stood there on the third bag then while the next three batters went out. The first one died on a fly ball to right field, but it takes more than a fly ball to bring Jack and his bulky person home from third base. Perhaps he hadn't regained all his wasted strength when he went in to pitch against the Sox again after his sprint and the double and single resulted.

Up to that time he had been practically invincible. For five rounds he had set the Sox sluggers down without a semblance of a base hit. In that time only three men had reached first base. There was no chance to get them around, for Jack was heaving the ball over with his old time speed and the Sox batters were popping it into the air or hitting easy ones to the infield. Two of them walked to first and one man reached the bag on an error.

McIntyre Starts Trouble.

It began to look as if the big veteran would shut out Chicago without a hit. His fifth inning sprint must have sapped his strength, for when the sixth started, Matty McIntyre, with one man out, slapped a sharp double to left field. Lord shot a single to left so hard that it bounced into the left fielder's hands on one bound and Matty had to stop at third. Then Callahan hit a terrific liner right into Powell's stomach, but Jack got his hands in front of it, knocked it down and recovered in time to run McIntyre down between third and home, Lord reaching third and Callahan second on the play. That made two out. Bodie was next, and he smashed one to Hallinan in deep short. The ball was picked up cleanly, but Hallinan made a wide throw to first base, pulling Rowan off the bag. Bodie was safe, and before Rowan could get his balance and throw home, both Lord and Callahan had crossed the plate. Dougherty's pop fly closed the inning, the only one in which the Sox made a rally.

On the other hand, the Browns should have won the game in the first inning. They had two runs cut off at the plate, one man coming in straight up when he would surely have scored had he only hit the dirt. In the second inning, they had a man on third and one on second with only one out when Jack Powell hit a line drive to Callahan in center field. Hogan, who was on third, tried to score after the catch, and he, too, came in running straight up, and Payne got Cal's throw just in time to block him off the plate.

In the next inning Lange passed Shotten, the first man up. Austin sacrificed and Shotten tried to go from first to third when the bunt went to Captain Lord. Lord yelled at Lange to cover third, anticipating the play, and Collins shot the ball to him in plenty of time to tag the man.

Browns Finally Get Run.

In the fifth Powell's three bagger failed to get a run, but in the sixth, after the Sox had made their pair, the Browns managed to get one man around. One was out when Hogan was passed. "Nig" Clarke followed with a low line drive over Tannehill's head and because Pat Dougherty didn't catch sight of the ball until it hit the grass he was unable to stop it. It went to the fence for a double, Hogan scoring from first. Lange got the next two men and prevented further trouble, and in the last three innings only one Brownie got as far as first base. Score:

SAM WELLERISMS.

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—[Special.]—One more game here and then the Sox return to the home lot for a series of three against the Tigers.

If the weather had been cooler the Sox would have been well rested for the Tiger games while exhibiting against the hopeless Browns.

The Sox will catch a 9 o'clock train for Chicago tomorrow night, arriving early Saturday morning.

Manager Duffy is hoping one of his regular infielders will have recovered from his injuries and be able to go on duty for the Saturday game against Detroit.

Ping Bodie hasn't busted any fences here yet. He didn't even get a hit today, though he did draw a base on balls once. St. Louis fans are wondering why all this fence busting talk was started.

The only chance for the St. Louis rooters to cheer today was when the score of the Cardinals-Reds game was posted. It's considered kind of Mr. Hedges to give his patrons that feature each day anyway.

Fred Olmstead is named as the twirler for the closing game tomorrow. He beat the trailers in the first game of the Tuesday double header and is eager for another whack at them before leaving. It's a good town for a pitcher to help his record.

Doc White, "Bill" Lange, and Billy Sullivan went to Chicago tonight to practice a few curves to hand Detroit Saturday as well as to get a good night's sleep at home. Getting such a thing here under present climatic conditions is out of the question.

Harry Lord got caught off second base in the eighth innning in such a manner as to make the fans think he had beaten out a bunt after two were out and then stole second. The call on Callahan was one and one, and Lord flashed a signal for a hit run, but it was missed by Cal. He didn't swing at the ball and when Lord saw that he stopped stone still midway between the bases, and was then run down.

HOT WAVE STRIKES ST. LOUIS.

Hedges' Friends Hear of Transfer of Detroit to Mound City and Give the Browns Berth in Pittsburg.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—[Special.]—That there is a big shakeup being quietly planned by the magnates of the American league is the weird rumor given credence by close friends of Owner R. L. Hedges of the Browns. The fact that Hedges has been missing for the last two days, reported as being in Chicago and Detroit, is cited in support of their belief.

The scheme is said to be to transfer the Detroit club to St. Louis, drop Detroit from the American league, and to take in one of the American association cities as the eighth member of the organization. Another rumor is that the American league magnates are trying to deal with the National league to put the eighth club in Pittsburg.

Men close to Hedges claim the scheme last winter was to drive him out, then lend a helping hand to the Browns, but the deal for the Browns fell through and Hedges' friends claim he is refused help from the other magnates.

PICKS TEAM FOR PITTSBURG ME[ET]

JUNIOR TITLE THE PRI[ZE]

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Eighteen sterling athletes—runners and jumpers, who have won everything of importance in this section of the country in the last year—will represent the Chicago Athletic association in the National A. A. U. track and field championships on Forbes field in Pittsburg on June 30 and July 1.

The final selection was made yesterday by Martin Delaney, coach of the Cherry Circle squad, after two weeks of deliberation, during which time he has tried to secure the services of a number of western college athletes who have performed well in the different conference meets.

Because of the large number of clubs represented and the ability of the athletes entered, Delaney does not have much hope of winning the senior championship, but with thirteen of the eighteen athletes available for the junior title, the Cherry Circle mentor believes his team stands a good chance of scoring the most points.

Delaney Musters Good Team.

Although unable to secure the services of some of the athletes who competed on the University of Missouri team which won the western intercollegiate, and some of the University of Michigan stars, Delaney believes he has mustered a strong band of performers, who are certain to make their opponents extend themselves to win points.

According to Delaney, these athletes already have started training, and he is coaching them by correspondence. The team will gather in Chicago about four days before the Pittsburg dates, and Delaney will put all his men through trials to find out their condition. The team and a number of clubmen will leave for the Smoky City two days before the contests, in order to allow the athletes a day's work to familiarize themselves with the track and runways.

The following athletes will take part in the senior championships: Roy Conrad and Harvey Blair, 100 and 220 yard dashes; F. Lindberg, H. H. Otto, and Max Bockelman, 440 yard run; C. Yates, 880 yard run; H. L. Miller, 120 and 220 yard hurdles; George W. Shaw, pole vault and 220 yard low hurdles; E. R. Palmer and F. Degenhardt, running high jump; F. C. Irons, running broad jump; E. Schobinger, pole vault; Joe Loomis, running hop, step, and jump; A. Brundage, A. K. Mucks, and Leslie Byrd, discus and javelin throw.

Stars in Junior Events.

The team which will compete in the junior championships is as follows: Earl Conrad and Harvey Blair, 100 and 220 yard dashes; H. H. Otto and Max Bockelman, 220 yard dash and 440 yard run; C. Yates, 880 yard run; E. Schobinger, pole vault and 120 yard high hurdles; George Shaw, pole vault and 220 yard low hurdles; H. L. Miller, 120 and 220 yard hurdles; Joe Loomis, running hop, step and jump; Leslie Byrd, shot put, throwing six pound weight and javelin throw; A. K. Mucks, discus, shot, sixty pound weight, and javelin; Jack Peabody, hammer throw, and F. Degenhardt, running high jump.

DECIDES AGAINST PITTSBURG

Lynch Holds That the Pirates Had No Right to Protest Recent Game Won by the Rustlers.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 22.—Announcement was made today that President Lynch has decided against the Pittsburg baseball club in the protest of the game won by Boston here on June 8, 8 to 7. The local club claimed a decision made by the field umpire should have been made by the umpire behind the bat. The protest was based on section 3 of rule 61 of the playing rules which provides that in the case of a runner being caught between third and home with more than one base occupied the umpire in chief shall make the decision on the runner nearest home. Lynch says the umpire in chief is only called upon to decide a play under this rule when a man is run down between third and home; in other words, a see-saw play.

GOLF STARS PLAY FOR TITLE TODAY

COURSE IN FINE SHAPE.

Best Professional Talent and Crack Amateurs Will Compete on Chicago Club Links.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Seventy-nine players, fourteen of them amateurs, are billed to start play in he seventeenth annual open championship of the United States Golf association at the Chicago Golf club this morning. Among the belated entries are those of Albert Seckel of Riverside, the Princeton champion, and four professionals, G. Cummings of Toronto, J. A. Rossman and John Burke of Des Moines, and Jack Morton of Peoria.

The field is representative of the best professional talent in this country both imported and home bred, and while the leading eastern amateurs are not entered, in H. Chandler Egan, Mason Phelps, D. E. Sawyer, R. A. Gardner, and Albert Seckel the west has five of its best amateurs.

Prospects for a brilliant tournament never were brighter, as the course is lightning fast and the putting greens as near perfection as it is possible to get them. Through the five days of preparatory play there has been plenty of fast scoring, and while practice marks made under no pressure have no particular bearing on individual championship scores, they indicate what may be looked for from the leaders who are "on their game."

Hard to Pick Winner.

Picking a winner is merely a matter of fancy, and while the veteran campaigners naturally are the favorites, there are from ten to fifteen players who may be considered almost equal favorites. When it comes to picking the men who will land in the nine prize winning positions the range is much greater.

With the course in its present condition, and provided there is no shift or great increase in the force of the wind, it is predicted generally that the winning score will be between 296 and 300, or round about an average of 74.

Among the players who previously have won the title are Jim Foulis, Alec Ross, Fred McLeod, George Sargent, and Alec Smith, the present champion. Those who have been runners up are Tom McNamara, J. J. McDermott, and Gilbert Nichols, twice.

The lowest total recorded is 290, by Sargent at Englewood in 1909, and the next best 295, by Alec Smith at Onwentsia in 1906. The Chicago course is harder than both of these, but is in such good shape that unusually low scoring is looked for. However, a turn in the weather may upset all calculations.

Good Playing by Sargent.

George Sargent, playing with G. Cumming, C. Nelson, and Lee Nelson, yesterday afternoon turned in a card of 38-36—74. Champion Alec Smith, playing with K. L. Ames of Glen View, got a 76, the pair defeating Jack Sellers and Jim Donaldson, the Glen View professional, 4 and 3. Donaldson also made 76, getting fourteen fours and four fives. In a strictly amateur foursome, H. Chandler Egan and Mason Phelps defeated Albert Seckel and C. B. Devol, the Riverside pair, 1 up. Seckel got 76, Egan 77, and Phelps 88. C. Rowe and Jack Dingwall, both English professionals, defeated Tom Vardon and Robert McWatt, 2 and 1.

Connors and Brady, the Boston pair, defeated Alec Ross and Jack Jolly, 3 and 2. Jack Croke, the Westward Ho expert, got a 74 in the afternoon, Harry Turpie counting 77 and Walter Fovargue 79. Among the good scores in the morning were seventy sixes by Jolly, G. Simpson, and J. Simpson. Frank Adams, the former Wheaton player, had 77, and Jack Morton got a similar count.

Secretary R. C. Watson and David Foulis went over the course yesterday afternoon and marked the location for the holes. The course will approximate 6,600 yards in length, the distances being as follows:

The championship carries with it a gold medal and a purse of $300, second prize being $150, and the other seven running from $80 down to $20.

Mixed Foursome at Skokie.

Miss B. King and Van Pope, aided by an allowance of 17, won the mixed foursome handicap at Skokie yesterday, with a net score of 77. Mrs. Harvey Pound and N. Landon Hoyt had low gross of 89. Leading scores:

| | Gr. | H. | Net. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Miss B. King—Van Pope | 94 | 17 | 77 |
| Mrs. Fuller—R. Fuller | 98 | 18 | 80 |
| Miss M. Sibley—S. K. Bennett | 99 | 18 | 81 |
| Miss Darcy—M. B. Orde | 108 | 20 | 88 |
| Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Morse | 116 | 26 | 90 |

Mrs. A. F. Heaning defeated Mrs. A. L. Burke by 5 up and 4 to play in the final for the class A prize in the women's three day tournament at the Windsor Golf club, which concluded yesterday. The class B prize went to Mrs. Herbert Judd, who defeated Mrs. Milton Johnson, 3 and 2.

Charles E. Yerkes has been chosen to captain the Evanston team and H. R. Hixon to lead the Chicago team in the match for the Ben Adams trophy at Glen View tomorrow.

W. J. TRAVIS LEADS QUALIFIERS.

Garden City Golfer Tops List in the Apawamis Club Tournament, Turning in Card of 148.

Rye, N. Y., June 22.—Walter J. Travis of Garden City easily led the field in the thirty-six hole medal play qualifying round of the annual invitation tournament of the Apawamis club today. He supplemented his early 75 with a 73 for a total of 148. This was eight strokes better than Oswald Kirkby of Englewood, the next man. Others in the first sixteen were: F. S. Wheeler, Apawamis, 158; J. H. T. McMurtrie, Apawamis, 160; C. H. Seely, Apawamis, 162; Robert E. Hunter, Chicago, 163; W. F. Morgan Jr., Baltusrol, 163; S. J. Graham, Greenwich, 164; S. D. Bowers, Brooklawn, 166; L. P. Gwyer, Siwanoy, 166; D. W. Houston Jr., Princeton, 166; Gardiner W. White, Oakland, 166; John M. Ward, Garden City, 167; F. H. McAdoo, Ardsley, 168; G. L. Conley, Siwanoy, 168; C. P. Eddy, Ridgewood, 168.

SETS MARK FOR GOLF COURSE.

Curtiss Beats Stanley in Second Round for Ohio Title, Doing Round in 73, Seven Less than Bogey.

Cincinnati, O., June 22.—Playing the best amateur golf ever seen here, Kenneth W. Curtiss of Columbus today defeated Charles H. Stanley of Cleveland in the second round of the Ohio Golf association championship and in so doing established a new record for the Cincinnati Golf club course. Curtiss negotiated the eighteen holes in 73, seven less than bogey and two less than has been previously made by any amateur. As a rule the golfing was good. Both the second and third rounds were completed.

WOMEN TO PROMOTE BASEBALL

Hubbies Will Aid Better Halves Tomorrow in Raising Funds for Rogers Park Club Building.

A ball game will be played at the Rogers Park Club's grounds tomorrow under the auspices of the Rogers Park Woman's club for the benefit of its building fund. The members of the club will not participate in the actual doings on the diamond, but the husbands of many will. For weeks many business men have been devoting spare time to limbering up dead wings and long unused muscles. Physicians, the Red Cross and an ambulance corps will be in attendance to furnish first aid to the winded, as it is anticipated great difficulty will be experienced in negotiating the route around the bases. The advance sale of boxes and tickets is evidence that Rogers Park will be out in force to assist the Woman's club in its worthy object, and at the same time to get full measure of money's worth watching their next door "has beens" and "never wases" trying to field hot liners, pick up sizzling grounders, pull flies out of the sky, and in turn try to knock the cover off the offerings of the opposing pitcher.

ILLINOIS ATHLETIC CLUB SETS DATE FOR ANNUAL RIVER SWIM.

Marathon Scheduled for July 29—Entry Blanks Will Be Issued Soon for One of Biggest Aquatic Events of Year.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Illinois Athletic club that the annual Chicago river "Marathon swim" will be held July 29, application for that date having been made to the harbor master through Mayor Harrison. The entry blanks are in the hands of the printer and probably will be sent out tomorrow.

The entry list will remain open until July 25 and entries be received by Dr. E. W. White or Dr. H. W. Hayes of the club. Already there have been inquiries from a number of swimmers outside Chicago, and it has been practically assured that several St. Louis athletes will compete.

The route will be the same as in past years, starting at the life saving station and ending at the Jackson boulevard bridge. The course will be patrolled by boats all the way as in the past, to care for any swimmers who may tire. All the contestants will be submitted to a medical examination before they are allowed to enter the water.

This year's race will be the second for the $1,000 cup presented by William Hale Thompson. The name and time of the winner will be engraved on the cup, in addition to which he will be given a miniature of the trophy.

South to Take Part in A. A. U. Games.

New Orleans, La., June 22.—Four southern athletes will compete in the national track and field championships in Pittsburg, June 30 and July 1. They are E. H. Schroth, pole vaulter; R. A. Barker, weights; Dave Johnstone, half mile run, all of the Young Men's gymnastic club, and Oss Smythe, five mile run, Broadway A. C. Semmes Walmsley will represent Tulane university in the 220 yard dash and quarter mile.

GARY STAGES FIGHT TONIGHT

OSHKOSH BOY CONFIDENT.

Police of East Chicago Knock Town Off Pugilistic Map.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Eddie McGoorty, the Oshkosh middleweight, who will meet "Young" Mahoney of Racine in a ten round bout before the Gary A. C. tonight, passed through the city last night on his way to the Hoosier town. McGoorty was accompanied by his manager, Patsy Callahan, who said he never saw Eddie in better condition.

The manner in which McGoorty and his manger spoke showed they have a lot of respect for Mahoney's ability. They do not consider him a clever fighter, but figure him as one of the mauling type who will be wading in all the time.

McGoorty is confident he will win the decision by a wide margin, but does not expect to stop the Racine battler. Callahan said Eddie is well under the stipulated weight, 160 pounds at 2 o'clock today.

"Young" Mahoney, accompanied by Manager Charley Lavigne, will leave for Gary this morning. Mahoney finished his training yesterday at O'Connell's. His work consisted of bag punching, rope skipping, and shadow boxing. At the end of the workout the fighter weighed 158 pounds. Eddie Santry will act as third man in the ring. A special train will leave the Grand Central depot for Gary at 7 o'clock.

Another fight center was wiped off the pugilistic map yesterday when the chief of police of East Chicago said there will be no more fighting in the Indiana town as long as he holds office. As a result the ten round bout between Phil Schlossberg and Eddie McGoorty scheduled for next Wednesday night has been called off. In all probability the bout will be staged before another club later on. Schlossberg's manager thinks the differences with the authorities can be patched up, but if they cannot he is willing that Schlossberg fight before some other club.

The matching of Ad Wolgast and Freddie Welsh created a lot of gossip on the pugilistic rialto yesterday. The general opinion was that Wolgast is lucky to secure the match with Welsh, who is willing to wager $5,000 on his chances. Local fighters and managers do not believe Welsh has a chance with the champion and many are of the opinion he will be defeated by Matty Baldwin.

"Cyclone Johnny" Thompson has started training for his ten round bout with George (Knockout) Brown at Gary on July 4. Following his usual custom, Johnny will do all his training in Sycamore and when he begins to box he will do it in the open air. When Thompson was training for his fight with Hugo Kelly he did all his boxing at night so as to get accustomed to the lights.

"PUG" DRAWS HEAVY SENTENCE

"Sandy" Ferguson Ordered to Jail for Six Months for Beating Wife—Appeals His Case.

Boston, Mass., June 22.—[Special.]—"Sandy" Ferguson, challenger of Jack Johnson, was arraigned before Judge Dimick in the East Boston Municipal court today on a charge of beating his wife, Alice. He was sentenced to six months and appealed. He was then held in $400 for the Superior court, but he does not believe there is that much money in the universe. Just before he was sentenced "Sandy" addressed the learned judge in this wise: "The idea, she paid the rent over my head, that's what she did, an' after I hired th' tenement, too. She's too lazy to do th' housework. Who wouldn't get roiled when his supper is not ready?" Mrs. Ferguson testified that her husband frequented barrooms from morning until night and never worked. Sandy said he would not attempt to contradict a lady.

SMITH SURPRISES CLABBY.

Holds Milwaukee Boy to Ten Round Draw at New York, Notwithstanding Jimmy's Cleverness.

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Jeff Smith, the Bayonne welterweight, surprised everybody at the National Sporting club tonight by fighting ten rounds to a draw with Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee. Clabby was a better boxer than Smith, but the latter knew more about real fighting, and was the more rugged when it came to taking punishment. Smith was the harder hitter, but missed many blows because of Clabby's clever defensive tactics.

PHYSICAL TEST FOR FIGHTERS.

Connecticut Legislators Pass Bill Requiring Boxers to Pass Health Quiz Before Bouts.

Hartford, Conn., June 22.—Hereafter all contestants in boxing bouts and wrestling matches in the state will have to undergo a physical examination. A bill passed by the senate provides that such matches may be held throughout the state on sanction being given by the local authorities, but that a physical examination under the direction of the police must first be satisfactorily passed by the contestants.

Landers and Allen Fight Off.

Winnipeg, Man., June 22.—The referee declared the scheduled fight between Billy Allen of Ottawa and Billy Landers of Detroit off tonight. Allen was overweight, and after considerable wrangling Landers' seconds declined the encounter.

Keokuk Player Strikes Umpire.

Keokuk, Ia., June 22.—Player Hilly of the Keokuk team assaulted Umpire Mapel today and was ejected from the grounds. Hilly was hit on the hand by a pitched ball, but Mapel failed to see it and did not allow the batter to go to first. Angered at the decision, the player struck the umpire in the face twice before players interfered. Kewanee won, 6 to 0.

DIXON BIG GUN IN GRAND AMERICAN

QUARTET TIE FOR SECOND

Graham of Long Lake Among Four Who Score 98; Previous Winners Below Form.

Columbus, O., June 22.—[Special.]—Another amateur has won the Grand American handicap. In the annual competition today Harvey Dixon of Oronogo, Mo., shooting from the 20 yard mark, broke 99 birds. Only for his miss while nearing the 80 mark his score would have been perfect. Most of the high men had their troubles about the same time. The weather was admirable and there was little wind to annoy the participants.

A substantial number turned in scores above 90. Four had 98, nine had 97 and 96 scores were credited to thirteen. T. E. Graham of Long Lake, Ill.; A. J. Hill of Dawson, Ga.; O. H. Nutt of Beaver, O.; and C. C. Irwin of Pittsburg lost only two birds each. Dixon shot from 20 yards, Graham and Nutt from 18, Hill from 17, and Irwin from 16.

Large Crowd Sees Shoot.

The 8,000 spectators thought until the last squad came up H. D. Kilgore of Washington Courthouse, O., would tie the leader, but Kilgore, who had missed between the sixtieth and eightieth, lost two in the final twenty, while Dixon shot them straight. Out of 418 entries twenty-five defaulted. The winner, however, secured a $1,000 purse besides a handsome trophy given by the interstate association.

Dixon, who is an experienced shooter, displayed splendid nerve, especially near the end, when several competitors fell down after maintaining a score equal to his own to that point. Fred Shattuck of Columbus, winner two years ago, had a score of 96. He was highest today of the previous victors. Mrs. Ad Topperwein of San Antonio, Tex., had a score of 91, shooting from 19 yards, and George W. Maxwell of Hastings, Neb., the one armed marksman, shooting from 21 yards, broke 90. The "scratch" men shot from 22 yards.

Scores of 97 were made by B. Lewis, Auburn, Ill.; D. D. Hickey, Milvale, Pa.; J. F. Wulf, Milwaukee; W. H. Jones [no address shown]; H. D. Kilgore, Washington C. H., O.; J. S. Parks, Brooke, Ind.; C. D. Hunt Jr., Columbus, Ga.; W. M. Shattuck Coal Grove, O.; Sam Leever, Goshen, O.

Scores of 96 were made by W. R. Crosby, O'Fallon, Ill.; C. G. Spencer, St. Louis, Mo.; Fred Harlow, Newark, O.; Allen Heil, Allenstown Pa.; L. B. Worden Harrisburg, Pa.; J. J. Richardson, Nicholsville, Ky; E. R. Alexander, Tuskogee, Ill.; C. D. Henline, Bradford, Pa.; John Martin, Brooklyn, N. Y.; C. E. Orr, East Alton, Ill.; H. H. Stevens, Russell Park, N. J.; C. E. Goodrich, Belvidere, Ill.; J. K. Nolder, Portsmouth, O.

DATE FOR MOTOR CLUB RUN TO ST. JOE SET FOR JULY 20-21.

Two Teams, One in Charge of Van Sicklen and the Other Under Beecroft, to Compete in Event.

BY JOHN G. DE LONG.

The proposed reliability match between two teams from the Chicago Motor club was made an assured thing yesterday at the weekly meeting of the contest committee. The event will be patterned along the lines of the annual Chicago Athletic association-Chicago Automobile club match and will take place on July 20 and 21, with the Edgewater club near St. Joe, Mich., as the overnight stop. Members identified with the automobile trade and those who have no trade affiliations will compete against each other.

President David Beecroft was chosen captain of the "amateur" team, while Charles F. Van Sicklen was selected to lead the tradesmen. The two captains immediately got busy and after the meeting a number of members were signed up for the run on each side. It was decided to allow all members of the club to become eligible for the contest, whether they own cars or not, the only stipulation being that the entrant drive the car himself.

Those competing in the run will be given an opportunity to demonstrate their skill at various sports, for a card of field day contests will be put on following the arrival of the motorists in St. Joe. Rules for the run as well as other details were placed in the hands of a committee composed of Capts. Beecroft and Van Sicklen and C. G. Sinsabaugh.

The C. M. C. contest board has the Elgin national road races of Aug. 25 and 26 well in hand and indications are all details of the big event will be completed much earlier than last summer. Various phases of the races were discussed at yesterday's meeting and Chairman Charles E. Gregory stirred several of his committees into activity. General Executive Frank Wood returned from Elgin with the news that the Elgin people are making rapid progress in the work of widening and otherwise improving the eight mile circuit.

GAELS PLAN FOR HUGE MEET.

Date for Event Set for July 23—World's Champion Athletes Have Entered Names for Contests.

Plans for a monster track meet, which is to be held on July 23 at Gaelic park under the auspices of the Illinois State Gaelic Athletic association, are being pushed rapidly by the officers of the association. Announcement was made at the weekly meeting of officers last evening that Dan Ahern of New York, holder of the world's record for the running hop, step, and jump; James Fahey of Chicago, who holds the world's record for the three standing jumps and the standing hop, step, and jump, and many other eastern and middle western stars have already entered their names for the big contest.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS.

BY HEK.

AND ALFRED AUSTIN ALSO RAN.

LONDON, June 22.—[Special, possibly messed a bit in transmission.]—
I'm not so bally keen for poetry. Quite so.

There's quite a lot to write about, grandiloquent or drear—
What you might call embarrassment of richness, so to speak—

As for our little coterie about the Haunch and Skewer
We might consider it a bore—in fact, I'm rather sure
We do not like this mucking crowd and all this jam and mess—

We are, indeed, quite fond of him—we love the empire, too—
To boast about our empire is the proper thing to do.
On it we never hesitate our praises to bestow,
But then, my word! There's such a beastly lot of it, you know.

But there you are! I fancy you will think this quite enough.
As I explained, I'm not so keen at weeding of this stuff.
God bless his royal consort, too, and all that sort of thing.
T. HELLYER SEIGH.

What's the matter with Chicago as a summer resort? (At least, that's the way to look at it when you have pulled your annual vacation in February.)

The high school athletic authorities might have started out with the knowledge that their scheme for conducting a prep school baseball championship tournament was elementarily impracticable. It occurs to them now when the season is over and the whole thing has been thrown into a ridiculous mess. Only one of the eight clubs is found to have been eligible under the conditions, which in the first place were so restrictive that it was necessary for some schools to subvert them knowingly to put teams in the field at all.

Bang! There goes another one on a perfectly safe dirt track. This happened in "full view of the audience" and nobody was cheated of his thrill. But, sh! Soft pedal. Why isn't it possible for the newspapers to submerge these "incidentals" in the skeletonized summary? Meaning thus: Legs, 4; arms, 5; skulls, 2; collar bones, 3; lives, 1.

The law case involving the Bresna Hens and Mrs. Helen Hathaway Robison Britton's ownership and administration thereof has no baseball significance. Mr. Harry Troll, the "public administrator" of St. Louis, who has started the proceedings, simply regards the orphaned ball club as a part of his legitimate graft and wants his. That is all.

Ed Corrigan will sell the tailings of his racing stable in the paddock at Latonia tomorrow, and there and then the "green with white sash" will fade forever from the turf. The old man has been heard to declare that he has "thrown a saddle on a racehorse for the last time." This time it rings true—also pathetic. But of this more anon. It's a prolific subject.

E. J. S., Racine, rises to remark that "there can't be much to the 'sport' when by the simple process of renaming they can convert a perfectly good trotting track into an equally bad 'motordrome.'" Just so.

Whom erst we knew as Mary Mannering—some actress, you said it—but who has been absorbed in a millionaire matrimonial merger and loves her Detroit as Margaret Illington loves her Tacoma, is a game 'un, no spoof. She flouted superstition by taking her first aeroplane flight with a bird named Coffin. Incidentally Miss Mannering—we didn't quite get friend husband's name—thinks flying is perfectly elegant.

Pipe the names near the top of the golf scores at Wheaton—Brady, McDermott, and McNamara. Even at the Scotch game yez can't stop 'em, be jabers! Divil a stop.

If Wolgast and Welch are going to fight for checks, why not make it for a million instead of a paltry ten thousand? Let's not be pikers.

Now that the governor of Oklahoma has mortally stung (or mortally has stung) the Carl Morris-Jim Flynn turnup, which was to have been "staged" in his commonwealth, there may be an opportunity to draw Morris out into the light, where we can get a peek at his hole card.

ALREADY ON THE JOB.

Freeport, June 22.—Dear Hek: Speaking of "those Detroit fans"—you did, or some one did for you—they won't wait until the Athletics pass the Tigers before starting the anvil chorus. But let me do it this way—please:
Do they holler in Detroit? Can't you hear the fans a-knocking?
There, ever so much obliged. R. C. J.

The schooner yacht Sallie, formerly owned by Mr. Savidge, now flies the burgee of Mr. Quaille. Quick shift from troubled seas to placidity, as it were—or don't you quite get it?

That's a good one they cracked in Saint Louis, and right in the midst of summer, too—that one about transferring the Detroit franchise to the Mound City and the Saint Louis (American league) franchise to Pittsburg. Calculated to make Detroit feel so perfectly at ease.

Malachy Hogan writes from Denver to Bill Dorgan: "Will be in Chicago in September to see my mother and the big wrestling match."

Once more we'll hear that stirring cry: "Is HOGAN in the house?"

Will you ever forget it? Neither will we.

Quigley to Take Umpire's Role.

BADGER FRESHIES DEFEAT VARSITY

BOTH SHOW BETTER FORM

Shells Run on an Even Keel and More Drive Is Noticeable in Strokes of Eights.

BY W. D. RICHARDSON.
[Wisconsin Coxswain, 1909-'10.]

Highland, N. Y., June 22.—[Special.]—Harry Vail's enterprising freshmen today succeeded in doing something they have been aching to accomplish since they struck Hudson, and that was to administer to the astonished varsity a thorough trouncing in the last half of a four miler, the first brush the Badgers have had in which Coach Vail held the watch.

At the finish Vail would not give out the time, but his happiness over the showing of the freshies was taken as an indication that they had done something worth while. He was by no means dissatisfied with the work of the varsity eight, but said that it did not compare with that of the youngsters. As a result of the trial, which was made in the face of a slight wind and fairly strong tide, the Badger colony, which has been downcast since embarkation, is feeling happy. The "Jinx" which has persisted in forcing itself on the hospitality of the westerners was buried with appropriate ceremonies after dinner tonight, and now it is thought things will go smoothly until after the race.

Penn had just passed the quarters on a time row when Vail called out the Badgers. He instructed the freshmen to await the varsity at the two mile point and pace them from there to the finish, saying that they could go as fast as they wished. The varsity rowed easily to start, and after a breathing spell swung around and headed downstream. They were off at an easy 28 stroke. At the mile mark Stroke Hare raised the stroke to 30, and the boat showed more life than it has in previous rows. Getting a poor start, Tasker, the freshman pacemaker, hit it up, and the yearlings soon had a length over the varsity. The freshies were rowing 33 and the boat was traveling on an even keel for the first time this year. At the bridge Samp, No. 5 in the varsity boat, caught a crab and the crew lost a length, but they were soon at it. Try as they might, the seniors could not catch the flying freshmen, who crossed the finish line with three lengths of open water. The men had plenty of reserve for the last quarter. Both crews rowed in excellent form, the freshmen having a little the better of it in the matter of driving, both at the beginning and finish of a stroke. Their boat did not quiver and the men rowed with clocklike precision. Coach Vail said he was agreeably surprised with the work of both crews, and that if the freshmen did as well in the big race he would be satisfied.

SEVEN AVIATORS AT UTRECHT; GIBERT REACHES SCENE FIRST.

Stage of Journey from Liege to the Holland City Successfully Made—Renaud Meets Accident.

UTRECHT, Holland, June 22.—Gibert was the first of the aviators to arrive here, completing the Liege-to-Utrecht stage of the European circuit race. He was followed by Vidart, Garros, Beaumont, Weyman, Kimmerling, and Train in the order named. Today's flight covered 120 miles.

All the aviators were bothered by a wind and several met with accidents. Amerigo's machine capsized as he was ascending at Liege. He was thrown out and seriously, thought not fatally injured.

Renaud and Le Lasseur fell, the latter being injured about the arms. Renaud was not hurt. Vedrine has damaged two aeroplanes and has engaged a third machine. In one accident a cylinder burst and he was obliged to descend near Maastricht. Duval descended near Venlo.

Barra's machine broke down near Randwyk, province of Gelderland, while he was flying toward this city from Liege. The aviator sent to Venlo for a mechanician to aid him in repairing his aeroplane.

AMERICAN YACHT TAKES RACE.

Bibelot, Owned by Harry Payne Whitney, Scores Victory in Third of Series at Kiel, Germany.

KIEL, Germany, June 22.—The American yacht Bibelot easily won the third of the series of international yacht races for sonderclasse boats today. The American Beaver was second and the German Seehund III. finished third. The American Cima and the German Tilly XIV. finished in the order named. The German Wandsee broke a gaff and did not start. Bibelot is owned by Harry Payne Whitney of the New York Yacht club and R. W. Emmons of the Eastern Yacht club. Each of the American yachts has won a race.

TAFT INDORSES ALDRICH PLAN

POINTS NEED OF ACTION.

National Reserve Association Is Republican in Form, He Tells New Yorkers.

New York, June 22.—Speaking tonight at the banquet of the New York State Bankers' association at Manhattan beach, President Taft discussed currency problems with especial attention to the national monetary commission reform plans.

The president first reviewed the disturbances to which the country has been subjected owing to frequent agitations over the currency system, and outlined the defects of the present banking plan at length.

The need of drastic reform was emphasized and the speaker continued:

"The necessity in any satisfactory system to be adopted by us, for some agency like that of a central bank, has generally been acquiesced in by all who have given careful, candid, and intelligent consideration to the currency system of other countries.

"After our last money panic in 1907 legislation was adopted, known as the Aldrich-Vreeland bill, which offers an instrument for temporary relief against actual cash stringency due to hoarding and to panic, but of a clumsy and unsatisfactory character. It was adopted as the best thing that could be devised under the circumstances.

"A monetary commission was appointed, of which Senator Aldrich was made chairman. It was a nonpartisan commission. I dwell with great emphasis on the fact that it was nonpartisan, because if we are to work out this problem scientifically the hope lies in our securing support for it from both political parties.

Central Bank Impossible in U. S.

"Chairman Aldrich has correctly stated that a central bank in this country would be impossible for political and economic reasons. The people of the country would be unwilling to trust to any private banking organization such enormous control as must be vested in an agency which is to decide as to the concentration of cash reserves and which is to decide upon and provide for the necessary increase and decrease of bank note currency as well as to regulate the liquidation of commercial paper by fixing a uniform discount throughout the country.

"He has said that such an agency must be made by such constituents that it shall be impossible for money kings in Wall street to control it, on the one hand, or for political influence by governmental appointment to direct its operations from Washington; and, in order to evolve an agency free from the control of either of these influences, he proposes in his tentative suggestions what he calls a national reserve association.

"It may roughly describe what this association is to say that it is the establishment of a government of the 7,000 national banks of this country on a representative republican basis.

Personnel of Association.

"The National Reserve association shall consist of forty-five directors, six of whom are to be ex-officio members—namely: the governor of the reserve association, who shall be chairman of the board; two deputy governors, the secretary of the treasury, the secretary of commerce and labor, and the controller of the currency.

"The second group shall consist of fifteen directors, to be elected by the board of directors of each branch of the reserve association, each member of the branch board having one vote. The third group shall consist of twelve directors, to be elected by voting representatives of the banks embraced in the district, each representative casting votes proportioned to the capital of the banks.

"The three groups thus constituted are to select twelve additional members, who shall fairly represent the industrial, commercial, agricultural, and other interests of the country and who shall not be officers of banks. The governor and the two deputy governors shall be selected by the president of the United States from a list submitted by the board of directors, and each branch is to have a manager and a deputy manager appointed by the governor of the reserve association with the approval of the executive committee.

Every Bank Has Voice.

"A careful examination of the constitution of the controlling board of this National Reserve association shows, first, that every bank, both as a unit and also in proportion to its capital, has a voice in the selection of the governing board of directors of the National Reserve association, as it has a similar voice in the board of directors of the branch of the National Reserve association in one of the fifteen geographical divisions.

"It is a careful and well drawn plan to avoid the concentration of controlling influence either in Wall street or in Washington. Some critics whose comments on the plan I have seen have said: 'Ah, there is still in this plan a central bank; you call it a national reserve association, but it is nevertheless a central bank.'

Republican in Form.

"It is true that the National Reserve association is a central bank in a certain sense. Under its plan it will do and is empowered to do a kind of a banking business.

"But it will be seen that this National Reserve association is in a sense a bank made up of all the banks of the country controlled by no one and no one set of banks. It is republican in form of government and under the control of banking representatives from fifteen geographical divisions of the country.

"The directors of the bank have no motive in excessive profit to promote unfairly the earnings of the bank, because all earnings beyond 5 per cent will go into the treasury of the United States.

"I am not a banker, and I do not claim to be a student of finance or of systems of banking and currency, but after such attention as I have been able to give to the plan and to a discussion of it by men who do understand banking, it seems to me that the general features of this plan ought to commend themselves to the whole business community of the country."

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Continued urgency of demand for good to choice beef cattle was the feature of the live stock trade at Chicago yesterday. Choice corn fed steers at $6.25 and better were largely 10c higher for the day, while a drove of Texas cake fed offerings cleared at $6.00, the best price of the year for that class. Common, light grass fed cattle were exceedingly hard to sell, however, and many traders quoted poor stock cows and heifers as much as $1.00 lower than a week ago.

Hogs rallied to Wednesday's best figures and sold on that basis, althouguh the market closed easy for common, rough kinds. The average price for the day was advanced 3c to $6.44, while the extreme top was unchanged at $6.60. Sheep and lambs of good quality sold on a steady basis, while the inferior kinds had no regular market value. The top for spring lambs was $7.00.

BANKER GETS LEASE IN LOOP

WILL ERECT A BUILDING.

Agreement Runs Until 1988, with Option to Extend to 2038.

The property at 114-120 South Clark street, new number, adjoining the Fort Dearborn building on the south, has been leased by Frederick H. and Elizabeth I. Meadowcroft of Guilford, Conn., to Benjamin I. Greenebaum. The lease runs for a term of seventy-seven years from May 1, 1911, with an option of fifty additional years. The average annual rent for the first term of seventy-seven years is $16,065, which, capitalized on a 4 per cent basis, gives a leasing value of $401,625, which is equivalent to $10,040 a front foot and $111.55 a square foot for the 40x90 feet of ground.

The lessees are to erect a fireproof building within twenty-five years to cost not less than $100,000.

Inasmuch as Mr. Greenebaum is one of the principal owners of the Fort Dearborn building it is thought probable that eventually it will be improved with an addition to that building, but for the time being it is his purpose to carry the property in its present condition.

Will Keep Light for Bank.

One reason for this is that it insures a continuance of light for the south windows of the Fort Dearborn building, and the acquirement of the property was of special value to the latter, as it prevented the construction of a building which would shut off this light.

One of the most interesting features of the transaction is the fact that Dr. Ingalls, Mrs. Meadowcroft's father, was exceeding anxious to lease the property nine years ago for $8,000 a year, less than half the rent provided for in the preasent lease. It is striking evidence of the great advance in values along this street during the period indicated.

Rounds & Wetten were the brokers representing the lessors, while Wilson, Moore & McIlvane were the attorneys for the lessors and Jacob Newman for the lessee.

South Side Values Increase.

Evidence of the advancing tendency of values around Halsted and Seventy-ninth streets is shown in a transaction just closed involving the property at the northwest corner of the two streets. It fronts 106 feet on Halsted street by 94½ on Seventy-ninth street, with old frame improvements, and was sold by George E. Anderson, who conducts a department store at 6860 Halsted street, to Milton F. Goodman for a reported consideration of $53,000.

The seller acquired the property two years ago for $26,000 and ten days ago was offered and refused $52,500 for it. Four years ago the property sold for $8,000. Mr. Goodman is said to plan to improve with a store and office building.

The property on Milwaukee avenue, 44 feet southeast of Wood street, 48x100 feet, northeast front, improved with three story and basement business building occupied by Iverson's department store, has been sold by Ernst Schroder to Jacob and Charles Fiene for $62,500, with incumbrance of $30,000. The purchasers conduct a furniture store at Milwaukee avenue and Augusta street. J. Bartminski represented both parties to the transaction.

Hannah & Hogg Make Deal.

Alexander D. Hannah and David Hogg have sold to Mrs. Emma Schmidt, wife of Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, the premises, 155 Randolph street, old number, twenty feet east of the northeast corner of La Salle street, and have taken back a ninety-nine year lease of the same. The terms of the lease and sale are withheld.

The lot fronts twenty feet with a depth of seventy and three-fourths feet and is improved with a four story brick building. Hannah & Hogg recently leased the twenty feet at the corner from Mrs. Schmidt for ninty-nine years at an average annual rental of about $7,000. On the forty feet held by them they will erect a building which must cost at least $150,000 under the terms of the lease, but will cost more. Lee J. Lesser & Co. represented both parties to the transaction.

Simon Straus has purchased from Lemuel J. Barber of Henrietta, Tex., the premises at 180 South Canal street, eighty-eight feet north of Adams street, opposite the Pennsylvania station. The lot is 21x80 feet, improved with a three story and basement building, and while a nominal consideration is given it is understood to have been $32,500, which is at the rate of $1,550 a front foot and $19.00 a square foot.

The property is in the block which has been talked of from time to time as a possible site for the new Pennsylvania station. Mark Levy & Bro. represented both parties and William Friedman represented Mr. Straus in a legal way and W. [illegible] Nelson of Knight, Barbour & Adams, Mr. Barbour.

Other Property Sold.

The store and flat property in North Clark street, 138 feet south of Chicago avenue, 20x100 feet, west front, has been purchased by Robert M. Schrayer for $19,100, the purchaser recuring $18,000 by a trust deed for five years at 5 per cent. The property was first quitclaimed by the heirs of John F. Johnson to the City National bank of Logansport, Ind., and by the bank to Mr. Schrayer.

The old Danish Lutheran church at the northwest corner of Chicago avenue and Noble street, 105x100 feet, has been sold by John Grek and others to the Evangelical Lutheran Slavonic St. Trinity congregation of Chicago for $23,000.

H. O. Stone & Co. have leased to A. J. Unger, proprietor of Wells Clothes Shops, the west half of the store floor in the new [illegible] building at Jackson boulevard and Plymouth place. The space rented is 46x65 feet and the term rent is approximately $250,000. Stone & Co. report that all the stores but one in the building are now rented. M. A. Howell and J. R. Magill of Stone & Co. negotiated the lease.

Evanston Woman Makes Trade.

Ina B. Brown of Evanston represented by R. G. Ingersoll of E. Orris Hart & Co., has made an exchange of her six apartment building at 864-866 Graceland avenue, valued at $20,000, and a residence located at 1638 Wesley avenue, Evanston, valued at $8,000, for the residence owned by Dr. W. C. McDowell at 2115 North Clark street, valued at $6,500, represented by J. H. McMinn of H. G. & A. L. Howard, the residence being exchanged by Mrs. Brown as part payment for the twelve apartment building located at the northeast corner of Sixty-first and Peoria streets, owned by John J. Melhem, valued at $30,000, represented by B. B. Clover & Bros., Dr. McDowell taking title to the six apartment building at 864-866 Graceland avenue.

EASTERN BERRIES A FAILURE; CANNERS SHORT; PRICES RISE.

Old Potatoes Show Easier, Still 400 Per Cent Above Last Year—Poultry Holds Steady.

A slight easing off of prices was reported in the market for old potatoes at Chicago yesterday, but with quotations still more than 400 per cent higher than a year ago at this time, the weakness was scarcely noticeable. New potatoes continued on a firm basis and crop advices from nearby producing centers gave little promise of any material change in the near future. A Monmouth (Ill.) farmer said that potato growers in his section were pulling out their potatoes and planting late vegetables in the patches. He added that there would be no potatoes from that section out of the early crop.

Strawberries sold at firmer prices, with canners caught short in their orders on account of the failure of the eastern crop, making strenuous efforts to get enough berries to meet the requirements of their canned goods trade. Other berries and cherries were in ample supply at steady prices. Market for poultry continued easy, but no further reductions were made in prices.

DOCK SCHEME GETS IMPETUS

Councilmanic Subcommittee to Plan Municipal Wharf System.

TO HOLD PUBLIC HEARINGS.

Asserts Chicago Is Vested With Power to Prosecute Project.

Study of the municipal harbor bill recently passed by the legislature led to a declaration by the harbor subcommittee of the council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges to declare yesterday that Chicago now is vested with all the powers necessary to proceed with the construction of a municipal dock system.

Thereupon the seven aldermen agreed to proceed as rapidly as possible with the preliminaries toward actual construction and voted to begin in the near future a series of public hearings at which the question of the harbor site will be taken up. No date for the first of these meetings was set and it will depend upon the action of the committee on city hall today in acting on the request for permanent quarters for the harbor builders.

Will Invite Mayor.

Mayor Harrison will be invited to attend these hearings, and invitations also will be sent to the city engineer, the commissioner of public works, and the corporation counsel. Among the organizations already listed for hearings are the Association of Commerce, the Commercial club, the Industrial club, and the City club.

Maclay Hoyne, first assistant corporation counsel, attended the meeting of the subcommittee and joined in the discussion of the harbor bill, but the explanation of its provisions was made by Ald. Theodore K. Long, chairman of the subcommittee. His review of the new law was the first one presented to members of the council, and it was based on a thorough legal study of its language.

Ald. Long Outlines Powers.

The general powers conferred upon every city in Illinois by its first section he outlined as follows:

"To acquire, own, construct, maintain, and operate anywhere within the limits or jurisdiction of the city, or in, over, or upon any public waters bordering thereon, harbors, canals, wharves, docks, piers, slips, levees, and all other appropriate harbor facilities and improvements, and in connection therewith to acquire, own, construct, maintain, and operate such elevators, vaults, and warehouses (including cold storage warehouses) as may be a necessary adjunct or incidental to transportation, railroad tracks and railroad terminals and all other necessary and appropriate terminal facilities."

WEATHER BUREAU REPLIES TO WORTHLESSNESS CHARGE

Chief Moore Files Documents Tending to Show That Its Information Has Saved $2,500,000 to Orchardists.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—Chief Moore of the weather bureau has filed with the house committee on expenditures in the department of agriculture commendations of the weather service sent to him by fruit growers. A statement had been given out through Chairman Moss of the house committee that western fruit growers had filed with the committee charges that the service was of no value.

Moore sent copies of resolutions adopted by the Grand Junction, West Slope, and Palisade Fruit Growers' associations, representing all the orchardists of the middle Rocky mountain slope, declaring that the growers have been benefited by information given by the weather bureau.

About $2,500,000 was saved last spring by orchardists taking advantage of a single government warning.

Two Exclusive Magazine Sections

Beginning next Sunday, June 25th, and on the fourth Sunday of each month thereafter, the Family Magazine Section will be a regular part of The Chicago Sunday Tribune.

This is in addition to the Monthly Magazine Section which has delighted its hundreds of thousands of Tribune readers on the second Sunday of each month for more than a year.

By the addition of these two high class magazine sections to its regular Sunday issues without change in price The Tribune again fills to overflowing the generous measure its subscribers have learned to expect of the world's greatest newspaper. It is a point of pride with The Tribune that it has unfailingly exceeded its readers' greatest expectations, and this latest achievement in the journalistic world bears witness to the sincerity of this desire.

The high mark set by this latest addition to the magazine field may be judged by the opening number itself. Richard Harding Davis heads the list of contributors with "The Lost House," an amateur detective story which has been recognized, in advance of its publication, as the strongest and most fascinating of his writings since the days of "Van Bibber" and "Soldiers of Fortune."

The pick of the world's best writers and illustrators is represented in these two magazine sections. Next Sunday's issue inaugurates, in addition to the fiction and general articles, several special departments with unique and distinct appeal to every member of the family.

HEAVY REALIZING CAUSES SETBACK

NEW WHEAT PRICE DROP.

Trade in All Pits Nervous as a Result of Weather and Crop Conditions.

Profit taking in all grains caused a sharp reaction in all pits yesterday. Prices for wheat, corn, and oats were all higher right after the opening, but the buying power appeared to slacken at least temporarily, and holders were disposed to change some of their big paper profits into cold cash. This process developed the fact that the markets were a little overbought, and longs found it less easy to sell at the advanced quotations than they expected. Wheat closed ¼c lower to ⅛c higher, the July going to ½c discount under the September. Corn was ⅛@⅜c to ½c lower and oats ⅜c up, although about 1c below the high point of the day.

The possibility of rains developing soon was the big factor in all pits, and there was a general impression that the advance had been too rapid. Coarse grains especially have been forced to high levels recently, and the buying was a little overdone.

Northwest Reports Bullish.

While there were reports from the northwest that the conditions were becoming serious in other sections outside of South Dakota, and that rain was badly needed, the predictions for cooler weather with showers for that section, did a great deal towards allaying anxiety. There were late reports of a few showers in North Dakota, but what the crop needs is a good, thorough soaking. South Dakota reports were as bad as ever.

Aside from the northwestern crop news there was nothing especially encouraging to the wheat holders. The cash situation is anything but strong and farmers are selling freely at relatively lower prices. Yesterday new wheat sold at ⅝@¾c under July. Milling demand shows no improvement.

Harvest returns from the winter wheat belt are favorable as a rule. Receipts here were 18 cars, with 10 cars for today. Receipts in the west, 397,000 bu, against 382,000 bu a year ago. Northwestern arrivals were 218 cars, against 184 cars a year ago. Minneapolis stocks decreased 125,000 bu for the day.

Foreign Outlook Favorable.

Foreign news was bearish as a rule, but most of the continental markets were a little higher. Liverpool was closed and will be today also. Paris was ¼@2¼c higher; Antwerp, ⅝c higher; Berlin, ⅛c lower, and Budapest, ¼c higher. Argentine shipments were 1,600,000 bu estimated against 1,120,000 bu a year ago. Russian reports were favorable, and in general advices from western Europe were favorable.

Barrell was the leading buyer of wheat, taking a big line early and again buying on the break. Armour bought early and was a seller later, and there was selling of July by Chapin, Clement-Curtis, and Colvin, and of September by Logan-Bryan, Barrett, Bartlett-Frazier, Nye-Jenks, and Brosseau. Shearson-Hammill was a good buyer on the late decline. Late reports from North Dakota said there were showers at a number of points, and also in southern Missouri.

Shorts Cover in Corn.

A general rush on the part of shorts to buy corn during the first hour caused a big bulge in that cereal. Later offerings increased materially, and there was a heavy load of long corn put on the market which was not digested at the close. Cudahy, Bartlett-Frazier, Pringle, Kimball, and local longs in general sold and there was an indifferent demand after the first hour. The weather over the belt was still dry and hot, but predictions for cooler weather with reports of scattered showers in the southwest helped out the bears.

The cash market was weak, although there were sales of 290,000 bu, and prices were ¼@⅜c higher. No. 2 yellow sold at ½c discount under the July, and cash houses are not trying to buy and corn in the country. Country reports indicate corn still in fair shape, but in no condition to withstand any prolonged period of drought. Receipts here, 354 cars; for today, 358. Primary receipts were 637,000 bu, against 404,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Bulls Sell Out.

Oats made new high points for the movement, and buying was heavy at the start, but as in corn and wheat, there was strong desire to take profits. From the top there was a big decline, the reaction being the most pronounced in several days. Barrell and Bartlett-Frazier were fair sellers. The cash demand was moderate. Sample prices were 1@1½c higher than the sales of the previous day. Sales were 140,000 bu. Country offerings were moderate. Receipts here were 126 cars, with 165 cars the estimate for today. The Price Current said conditions had improved a little the last week, but indication was for a short crop. Primary receipts were 597,000 bu, against 304,000 bu a year ago. Commission houses were fair buyers on the decline.

Easier Tone in Product.

Provisions were firm at the start, easing off later on increased offerings from the packers, and being influenced by the setback in the grain list. Receipts here were moderate at 19,000, with 17,000 expected today. Hogs at the yards were a little firmer. Western receipts, 89,400, against 91,300 a year ago. There was a fair demand for cash stuff. Receipts of product here were 24 cars and shipments were 73 cars.

Duluth flax was unchanged to 6c higher; July, $2.25; September, $2.05; October, $1.93. Receipts, none. Minneapolis unchanged: cash on track, $2.24. Receipts were 13 cars.

Timothy Seed Is Scarce.

Timothy seed was unchanged to 40c higher; August, $10.00 bid; September, $9.35; October, December, year, and March, $9.25 bid. Clover seed strong; October, $15.00 nominal.

Rye had an easier undertone, owing to increased offerings. No. 2 was quoted 91@92c, No. 3 85@89c, and No. 4 73@85c. Receipts were estimated at 3 cars.

Barley had an advance of 2@5c, owing to continued light receipts. Malting was quoted at 95c@$1.12, feed 60@75c, and screenings 35@58c. Receipts were estimated at 8 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

Conditions over the corn belt in the big central states are not particularly bullish at the present time, but June precipitation has been only about one-third of normal, and as corn is coming into tassel in many sections a continuance of the warm weather without rains, it is believed, would cause quick deterioration. In western Illinois and northern Missouri the effects of the dry weather are beginning to shown now, and well posted grain men believe that a few more days of excessive heat would make a big difference in prospects. Damage to the crop is likely to come after the corn has tasseled. Farmers are not complaining much so far, and reports indicate the corn has been well cultivated and is cleaner than usual over the greater part of the belt. In most sections the color still indicates ample moisture, and with rains within the next few days the outlook would be favorable.

Lyle wired Chapin & Co. from Aberdeen, S. D.: "I find wheat in South Dakota badly hurt by the heat and lack of moisture. Today is windy; temperature is 102, and damage is increasing. I rode forty-five miles this afternoon in this vicinity and saw the best wheat yet. Some in partial head will make a good crop if rain comes soon. The best fields are short and sunburned, with the ear in the boot or undeveloped. All is at a standstill; much will die if rains are delayed. Some is pretty near gone now. The blades are dead, but the stalks are alive, so the situation is not entirely hopeless. The situation which was good two weeks ago has grown rapidly bad. The plant is too tender for the protracted heat. My guess, dependent on good rain this week, is twenty-five million bushels for state. Estimates here run less."

Grain traders generally did not pay much attention to the fact that the opening of the whole tariff question in the senate may be inimical to the passage of the reciprocity bill. Press dispatches from Washington indicated that the passage of the reciprocity measure was made uncertain as a result of recent developments. As the security of the bears in wheat has been greatly added to by the possibility of the free admission to this country of Canadian grains, the possible defeat of the measure would be a big factor in the grain trade, especially as there is so much uncertainty in regard to the spring wheat crop. Grain men generally have been basing their calculations largely on Canada having a big surplus of both wheat and oats available for consumption in this country.

Decatur report to Bartlett-Frazier: "So far as our territory is concerned, our wheat is being harvested in fine shape and the crop really promises better than we anticipated 10 days ago. The quality is fine and the yield is going to be well over the average, although not equal to last year. Our acreage is considerably larger, consequently we anticipate we will handle from 15 to 25 per cent more wheat than last year. As to oats, the early oats are short and are not going to make a heavy crop, but our late oats promise a fair average crop but not equal to last year, which was a bumper. A good rain this week should undoubtedly benefit the oats, but without rain we figure that we will have close to an average crop, or, say, about three-fourths what we had last year."

The cash situation in corn is about as weak as in wheat, and No. 2 yellow corn sold at ½c under the July yesterday. Prices for sample corn were ¼@⅜c higher than the sales of the previous day, but there were fair offerings, and receipts continue liberal. Sales were 290,000 bu. Oats were offered for July-August shipment from the new crop, and sales were 25,000 bu from an Indiana point. Cash prices were 1@1½c higher, with sales of 140,000 bu. One shipper reported the east offering oats for resale at 1c under shipping prices, and Peoria sales recently, it was said, have been at about 1c lower than Chicago basis.

Cincinnati Price Current: "Winter wheat harvest making rapid progress. Yields generally up to expectations. Spring wheat generally favorable. Oats will be short crop. Corn doing well, but needs rain soon. Hog packing for the week estimated at 665,000, against 490,000 a year ago."

A letter from a leading Duluth elevator concern to B. A. Eckhart took a bearish view of the situation, saying that, with the exception of South Dakota, which is conceded to have poor prospects, conditions throughout the northwest are excellent.

The increase in acreage, it stated, was enormous, especially in Montana, where it is the general opinion there has been over 1,000,000 acres seeded to spring wheat. With ordinary conditions from now on it was estimated that the spring wheat crop would be large enough to offset the losses not only in South Dakota but in Kansas and Nebraska.

Sentiment in regard to wheat prices was considerably mixed after the close yesterday. The course of prices will pivot on weather conditions in the spring wheat country. Scattered showers with lower temperatures were officially predicted, but reports to Lake from Minneapolis said yesterday was the worst day so far, high temperatures prevailing, with hot winds doing further damage. The greater part of the spring wheat country is still in fair shape, and with no further mishaps to the crop the increased acreage will more than offset the damage to the South Dakota crop.

Late reports from the northwest indicated scattered showers. The government stations in the northwest are so far apart that they do not accurately register the rainfall, as there are hundreds of miles between some of the reporting points. Minot had a fair rain and it was reported cloudy and cooler at a number of points. Kansas City reported predictions for local showers there and there were reports of showers at several points in Oklahoma. A late message from Kansas City stated that it had cleared off and did not look like rain.

The weak cash situation in wheat is indicated by the new wheat going to a discount of ⅝@¾c under the July, and July going to a discount of ½c under the September. There is practically no demand for cash wheat here or at other markets, and new wheat is being offered freely. For the first time in years the July delivery at Minneapolis is selling about even with the September, and has been at a small discount the last day or so. The flour trade is poor and millers are not buying until they can sell the flour.

The following came from Des Moines, Ia.: "Private reports from South Dakota claim an almost total failure. Conservative farmers say Iowa oats are going back daily. The condition is serious. Corn looks fine and is not suffering to any extent as yet, but no moisture in the subsoil and the precipitation deficiency stands five inches from normal since March 1. The crop must have timely rains."

Bids on the call for wheat to arrive were ⅛c higher to ½c lower; corn, unchanged to ¼c lower; oats, unchanged to 1c higher; and rye, 1c lower. Sales were 2,000 bu No. 3 white oats or better, 10 days' shipments, 38¼c track Chicago.

Barrell & Co.: "We are receiving bad reports from the Red River valley from various correspondents, extending from Lidgerwood to Castleton. It looks as though hot weather is hurting the grain."

Reports to Lamson from his own branch offices, covering wide territory in central states, showed temperatures at 12:30 of 85 to 101, only two points reporting anything but clear and hot.

Jacksonville, Ill., message to Bennett: "Corn is in worse condition than at any time this season. A few more such days will mean a calamity in this section. The temperature is 100."

Argentine shipments of wheat were estimated at 1,600,000 bu, against 1,120,000 bu a year ago. Argentine acreage estimated considerably larger than a year ago.

St. Louis wire to Shreiner reads: "There is every indication of rain, which is working up from the gulf. There is a heavy long interest here in everything."

GAS LETTER HERE; COUNCIL IN DARK

DENIES HOLDOUT CHARGE

Says Hagenah's Papers Were Returned; Calls Further Hearings "Unnecessary."

Final formal denial of all the city administration's requests on behalf of E. W. Bemis, the super-expert employed as a supplemental adviser in the gas rate investigation, was received in Chicago yesterday from the directorate of the People's Gas Light and Coke company. It came in the form of a letter to Ald. Charles Twigg, chairman of the council committee on gas, oil, and electric light, written by the secretary of the corporation "by order of the directors."

The letter conveyed a flat refusal to the latest requests made in letters written for Ald. Twigg by Maclay Hoyne, first assistant corporation counsel. It stated that the company holds that the facts furnished by W. J. Hagenah "should be kept confidential" and advises the committee to proceed with the "totals" placed before it in the Hagenah report.

It was stated, in reply to the request for certain bundles of papers marked with Mr. Hagenah's name and left in the custody of employés of the company, that a package answering this description had been returned to the expert. In reply to a request that Mr. Bemis be allowed to investigate four specified questions, it was asserted that sufficient data for a study of these is contained in the Hagenah report.

Call Hearing "Unnecessary."

The board of directors also refused to estimate, as was requested in the third Twigg letter, how long the hearings before the "G. O. L." committee will continue or what information the company might be willing to produce at these hearings. They declared the hearings "not only unnecessary but impracticable."

Mr. Hagenah, when told of the contents of the letter, said that the papers returned to him were those which he had designated as desirable for his personal files and declared that the city had no particle of title in them. Assistant Corporation Counsel Hoyne declared that these papers were not the ones requested by the committee, and that the company had evaded answering the request.

Text of Company's Letter.

The company's letter, written by L. A. Wiley, secretary of the corporation, in part follows:

"Some time ago Prof. Hagenah gave to E. G. Cowdery, for safe keeping until called for by him, a single sealed package. Subsequently this package, unopened, and in precisely the condition it was when received from him, was returned by Mr. Cowdery to Prof. Hagenah, on the latter's request. The package of papers has not since then been in possession of any officer or employé of this company.

Says, "Use Only Totals."

"In this connection the board begs to call attention to the specific agreement made with this company by Ald. Pringle and Prof. Hagenah, representing the city, that the facts disclosed by the books, papers, and data turned over to the city's representatives should be confidential and only totals used in the report made by Prof. Hagenah.

"In your communication you specifically request that we afford Prof. Bemis the opportunity to investigate the questions of 'going concern value,' what returns should the company receive on its investment, what is the proper allowance for operating expenses, and what is the income of the company.

Say Hagenah Reported Income.

"The income of the company is given on page 15 of Mr. Hagenah's report, for each and every year from 1898 to 1910. This account also gives the operating expenses for each of the years named and would seem to cover your third specific request.

Rate of Return Not on Books.

"The rate of return this company should receive on its investment will not be found in its books. That question is to be determined primarily by the cost to reproduce the plant and property of this company and by the conditions prevailing in this community as to what is the usual fair rate of return to investors.

"The item of 'going concern value' can readily be determined from the figures contained in Prof. Hagenah's report.

Hold City Has All Data.

"The board of directors believe that the items, as to which you say you want specific information, are covered.

"The board again begs respectfully to suggest that all data to enable the city council to speedily reach a conclusion as to the rates to be charged for gas is contained in Prof. Hagenah's report. I therefore believe that the suggestion of trial of all these questions before the gas, oil, and electric light committee is not only unnecessary, but impracticable, and, if followed, would only result in great delay."

LATE WALL STREET GOSSIP.

NEW YORK, June 22.—[Special.]—The National City bank, the largest bank in the United States and one of the largest privately owned banks in the world, is going to organize a security company to hold some of its securities. The bank did the same thing several years ago, when it handed over some of its holdings to the especially organized First Security company. The new security company will have a capital of something like $10,000,000, which probably will be made up by the declaration of a 40 per cent dividend on the National City bank's $25,000,000 capital stock. It will be owned by the same people who control the bank.

The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad company has sold to the Guaranty Trust company $10,000,000 of twenty year 4½ per cent debenture bonds. The trust company is offering the bonds at 97½ and interest, to yield 4.7 per cent. The proceeds will be used partly to reimburse the railroad company's treasury for money advanced to pay off $5,000,000 in notes which matured on June 1. The rest will go for terminal improvements. The bonds are dated Jan. 1, 1911.

GIVE BANK MERGER TERMS

CALL MEETING FOR AUG. 1.

Union Will Give Total Capital $26,000,000; Surplus $10,573,761.

The board of directors of the Continental and Commercial National bank yesterday issued a formal call for a stockholders' meeting on Aug. 1 at noon to take formal action on the plan to merge the institution and the Hibernian Banking association. The call sets forth the financial conditions of both banks, the details of the merger plan, and a statement of capital and resources which the consolidation will affect.

"The board of directors and the owners of a large part of the capital stock of the Continental and Commercial National bank, after careful consideration, have approved a proposition, plan, and arrangement to effect a unity of the interests of the stockholders of the Continental and Commercial National bank of Chicago and of the stockholders of the Hibernian Banking association of Chicago.

States Advantages of Merger.

"The proposed plan and arrangement, when consummated, will, it is believed, greatly benefit the respective stockholders and patrons of both banks. The total resources of the Continental and Commercial National bank, the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank, and the Hibernian Banking association exceed $268,000,000. The book value of the shares of the capital stock of the Continental and Commercial National bank and of the Hibernian Banking association is substantially the same.

"When the proposed plan is effected the banks will have a total capital stock of $26,000,000 and $10,573,761 surplus and undivided profits, or a total of $36,573,761 capital, surplus, and undivided profits.

Details of Financial Plan.

"The capital stock of the Continental and Commercial National bank is to be increased form $20,000,000 to $21,500,000. The bank is to declare and pay a dividend of 7½ per cent out of its surplus and undivided profits. The dividend so declared is to be applied towards the payment in full, at the rate of $100 per share, for said increase of 15,000 shares of its capital stock. These shares are to be issued to a committee which will exchange them, share for share, with the owners of the 15,000 shares of stock of the Hibernian Banking association, so that the latter will become owners of an equal amount of stock of the Continental and Commercial National bank."

Report of Banks' Conditions.

GREAT WESTERN SELLS TWO MILLS

STILL HAS THREE PLANTS

President Joy Morton Says Future Policy for Enterprise Is Left with Stockholders.

The Quaker Oats company of Chicago has bought from the Great Western Cereal company its mills at Fort Dodge, Ia., and Joliet, Ill., together with trade rights to "Mothers'" brand.

Statement by Joy Morton.

"The Great Western Cereal company has had no working capital for several years; its business has not been profitable.

"On the showing made during the last year a continuance of the credit it has heretofore enjoyed is unwarranted.

Was Advisable to Sell.

"Under the circumstances, it has been considered advisable to dispose of a part of its property. This has now been accomplished in a manner which safeguards to the utmost extent the interest of the Great Western Cereal company.

"Just what its future operations are to be will depend upon the action of its stockholders."

Does Not Mean Consolidation.

Mr. Douglas said there was nothing in the nature of a consolidation between the Quaker Oats company and the Great Western Cereal company involved in the purchase of the mills.

"I do not know exactly how to put it," said Mr. Douglas. "They seemed to need the money and we needed the mills. We agreed upon a price and that is all there is to it. We shall use the mills for our own purposes and there will be no change so far as we are concerned."

NACHACO VALLEY

Offers many special inducements to farmers. The new Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will soon provide excellent transportation facilities, insuring a rapid settling of the whole valley. Land is level, soil rich and open, climate mild and altitude lower than country roundabout. Dr. G. M. Dawson of British Columbia Government highly commends this valley for its unusual fertility. No irrigation necessary. The summers are hot, with very long days. Wheat, oats, barley, clover, potatoes, turnips, cabbages, apples, pears and other small fruits can easily be grown here. Fish and game abound.

Now $30 Per Acre (Next Summer $75) $25 Down, $10 Monthly

CRESTON FRUIT TRACTS

British Columbia fruit is delicious in flavor, exquisite in color and very hardy. Some of the very best of it comes from the region roundabout these tracts. At the lower end of Kootney Lake, in the favored land of the East and West Kootneys, the Creston Five-Acre Fruit Tracts lie nestled. The land at an altitude of from 1,800 to 2,000 feet is blessed with dry, clear air, a little snowfall in winter, and strong, steady, ripening sun in summer. The prime, vital essentials in successful fruit culture are contained in the soil of the Creston Tracts. Only ¾ mile from railway.

'L' ISSUES ACTIVE; GET TOP PRICES

Deposits of South Side Reach 59 Per Cent; Other Lines 75 Per Cent Each.

See Stockholders Awakening; Expect 70 Per Cent of All Stocks by Tomorrow.

Deposits of South Side Elevated stock amounted yesterday to slightly better than 59 per cent. The stocks of the other roads are now approximately 75 per cent each. The average for all three of the roads is 65 per cent.

Just before the close of the market there was activity in several of the elevated issues. The prices closed at the top. The exchange had a story that $1,000,000 of additional stock had been deposited in the course of the day. Altogether an additional $2,200,000 was in transit or promised instead of the first amount named. The buying of the different shares broadened.

The bankers and Henry Blair insist they want around 90 per cent of the different stocks. All plans, however, are subject to some modification and the stock began coming in so well yesterday that by the end of the week it is expected there will be deposited over 70 per cent of the total amount outstanding. The advance in the shares seemed to indicate some kind of an awakening to the situation. All the money necessary to carry out the deal is in hand.

Value of New Stocks.

It is too early to figure on market prices for the new stock which will be issued to shareholders under the part cash and part securities plan. But it is exact to say that, should the new 6 per cent cumulative preferred have a market value of but 50 and the new common a market value of 12½, then the 70 per cent in cash of the purchase price and 30 per cent in securities would be equal in value to the full cash purchase price. Anything above 90 for the preferred or 12½ for the common will be in the nature of a premium over the full cash purchase price.

All of the $16,000,000 preferred stock has been underwritten at par, and the common, which, according to the price, will have between 1 and 2 per cent applicable to it, should ordinarily be worth considerably more than 12½. The series 2 participation certificates of the Chicago Railways company, which have nothing applicable to them, are selling around 20.

National City Bank Plans.

It is announced that the National City bank of New York has some important plans under way which have not fully matured. It is believed the institution is contemplating the organization of a security company as an adjunct to its regular banking business. It is pointed out that an institution of such size as the National City bank and with such ramifications is likely to have interests which could be cared for better by a separate organization than by the bank itself.

Dividends Declared.

The American Coal Products company has declared regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent payable July 1 to stock of record June 23.

Wells-Fargo company declared the usual semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent on its stock payable July 15. Books close July 5 and reopen July 17.

The Norfolk and Western railway company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on its preferred stock payable Aug. 18 to stock of record July 31.

The Distillers' Securities corporation has declared the regular quarterly dividend of ½ of 1 per cent on the capital stock, payable July 31 to stockholders of record July 10.

The Continental Paper Bag company has declared the regular quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent on the preferred and common stocks, payable June 28 to stockholders of record June 24.

General Financial News.

The syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., which underwrote $43,686,000 Atchison convertible 4s of 1960, is being closed out.

The May report of the Kings County Electric Light and Power company showed a decrease in the surplus available for dividends. This is the first time in months that the figures have been unfavorable.

Earnings of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company are expected to show a fair surplus for the half year ended June 30. The directors will meet in a few days and declare the usual quarterly dividend.

The Utah Copper company's output for May was 8,891,679 pounds of copper, compared with 8,169,248 pounds in April. The Nevada Consolidated Copper company output for May was 5,277,355 pounds, against 5,298,652 pounds in April.

It is announced that a western syndicate is negotiating for control of the American District Telegraph company of Brooklyn and that if the deal is successful the syndicate plans to use the company's franchise for starting a rival telephone service in New York City.

Chicago Securities.

Aside from the activity in several of the "L" stocks a feature of trading on the local exchange was in Sears-Roebuck common. The stock was fairly steady, closing at 141 after touching 141½.

Illinois Brick was openly manipulated and the price wabbled between 59⅞ and 60¼. McCrum-Howell common was firm at 50½, while the preferred was weak at 95½. There was some trading in the Booth issues at 38½ for the common and 62 for the preferred.

Quaker Oats common made a new high record at 190. There was little stock offering.

SUMMER WEATHER CUTS DOWN SEASON STOCKS; TRADE GOOD.

John V. Farwell Co.'s Weekly Review Points Healthy Business Conditions —Winter Orders Satisfactory.

The John V. Farwell company's weekly review of the dry goods trade says:

"Ideal summer weather is depleting stocks of light seasonable merchandise fast and future orders for fall and winter goods have been satisfactory. Liberal lace curtain orders for early fall delivery have been received during the last week, with Nottingham and fish nets by the yard selling well.

"The large demand for hollywood art scrim continues and the indications are that this fabric will be even more popular the coming season than ever before. The new design and color combinations shown for fall are attractive.

"Embroidered flouncing bands and galoons are in good demand, and venise allovers and bands lead the selling in laces. The parasol business this season has been large; there is still a good demand, and stocks are low."

INSURANCE COMPANIES IN COURT

Commercial Life Stockholders Sue to Regain Funds Deposited with the State Superintendent.

In a "friendly suit" started in the Circuit court yesterday, seven stockholders of the Commercial Life Insurance company seek to compel Fred W. Potter, state insurance superintendent, to turn over $104,800 to the Old Colony Commercial Life Insurance company. The companies were consolidated last February. The money was deposited with Mr. Potter when the Commercial Life Insurance company was organized in 1906. There is no provision in the statutes giving him authority to return the money without a court order.

DEER PARK, Md., June 22.—The Maryland Bankers' association today indorsed the Aldrich central reserve association plan, as amended by the currency committee of the American Bankers' association, calling upon congress for speedy action on the measure.

NEW YORK STOCKS SEE-SAW TO LOSS

CONGRESS BOTHERS MART

[NEW YORK TIMES FINANCIAL LEADER.]

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—A selling movement, which carried the principal active stocks a point or more below Wednesday's close, was accompanied today by trading which was more than double the previous day's total.

A recovery, with Norfolk and Western assuming the position of greatest strength, was followed by a later reaction which left a great majority of the stocks a fraction down on the day's trading, with some losses well in excess of a point. Norfolk and Western, with its gain of 1⅜ points, was the chief exception to the general downward tendency.

Causes of Reaction.

Several matters were in the minds of Wall street traders, each of which played a varying part in the shaping of sentiment which found its reflection in the reaction, although some elements in the situation of decidedly satisfactory import caused general attention.

The new turn of affairs in congress caused more thought to be given to the matter of possible tariff revision, and this was much talked of. Of more general influence, however, was the crop situation which necessarily occupies a position of continuing importance.

With a continuance the last two or three days of the unfavorable conditions which first led to the reports of damage to the spring wheat crop, particularly in South Dakota, the condition of wheat in that state is now described, even in some reports from highly conservative sources, as having suffered great impairment. Reports received by one of the northwestern railroads estimated that the crop was not likely to be more than half of that harvested in South Dakota last year, while others received were to the effect that no serious damages had been reported.

Yield Will Fall Short.

This conflict of information left the situation in considerable doubt, although it is now pretty well established that the South Dakota wheat yield will fall considerably below earlier expectations.

Last year North Dakota, which in 1909 raised about 90,000,000 bu of wheat, harvested only 36,000,000 bu. Conditions in this state are still satisfactory and an approximation of the 1909 yield would much more than make up for such decline as has taken place in the South Dakota prospects, for that state's normal wheat yield is under 50,000,000 bu. Last year South Dakota raised 47,000,000 bu and the year before 48,000,000 bu.

When the further fact is borne in mind that reports indicate that Minnesota has suffered little, if at all, it will be seen that the deterioration in South Dakota, even granting the worst that has yet been predicted, will not necessarily prevent a satisfactory spring wheat yield. So far as the grain markets can be regarded as indicating the current crop prospects, the movement was favorable for both here and at Chicago prices were fractionally lower. The cotton market also reacted.

Steel Business Better.

Reports in circulation that some of the independent steel mills were receiving little or no business and that some of them were face to face with the necessity of closing part of their plants in the near future unless increased orders came to hand, found no verification. On the contrary, inquiries brought to light the fact that some of the independents are experiencing in full the improvement in the steel trade situation, which is reflected in the increased operation of the mills of the United States Steel corporation.

The Republic Iron and Steel company, which took the lead in reducing prices, has received a large amount of new business and the percentage of its capacity in active operation has been largely increased. Its new mill, with an annual capacity of 360,000 tons, has been put in operation and is now running at about 50 per cent of its capacity, which is being gradually increased. The percentage of the total capacity of the company in operation is much in excess of this. The present position of the company bears out fully the expectation entertained at the time of the recent price reduction that this step would lead to a substantial increase in orders.

Money on call, steady, 2¼@2½ per cent; ruling rate, 2⅜; closing bid, 2⅜; offered at 2½. Time loans, steady; 60 days, 2½ per cent; 90 days, 2¾@2⅞; six months, 3¼@3½. Prime mercantile paper, 4 to 4½ per cent. Sterling exchange, steady with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.8410 for 60 day bills and at 4.86 for demand. Commercial bills, 4.83½. Bar silver, 52⅝. Mexican dollars, 45. Government bonds, steady. Railroad bonds, heavy.

IN THE BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., June 22.—[Special.]—A sharp decline in the New York market led to the selling of coppers today, and as a result the recent favorites on the local board lost from a small fraction to 1½ points, the latter in Copper Range. New Haven fell off 1½, bringing it down to 140, the lowest since panic times. Call money, 2½@3 per cent; time loans, short dates, 3¼@3½ per cent; time loans, six months, 3½@4 per cent; time loans, year, 4@4½ per cent.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

BERLIN, June 22.—Prices were stronger on the boerse today. The strength was mainly due to Chairman Gary's statement about steel trade conditions in the United States.

PARIS, June 22.—Trading was dull, but prices were steady on the bourse today.

| | Francs. |

COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 22.—COTTON—Prices fell in the end today. Beneficial rains in the central and eastern belt, private reports of good rains in Texas, general liquidation, and southern selling were the principal factors in the decline. On the other hand, prices for a time were higher. Spinners and spot interests bought new crop months. Local traders also bought these options on the early forecast for generally fair weather in the western belt. There was considerable buying of the nearby positions owing largely to the relatively high quotations for spot cotton at the south. Moreover, it seems that there is a good export inquiry for the better grades of local stock. Spot quiet, 10 points lower; middling uplands, 15.20c; middling gulf, 15.45c. Sales, 227 bales. Futures declined 7@11 points, rallied, then eased off again, and closed barely steady at 3@11 points net decline. Prices:

$1,000 OR $10,000 FOR JULY INVESTMENT?

For twenty-nine years we have been investment Bankers to thousands of people—some with $100, some with $100,000 to invest—and during all this time not one of our clients has ever lost one single dollar of principal or interest on any investment purchased of us. Three generations in many families have bought securities of us since the House of Straus was founded.

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE CONTINENTAL AND COMMERCIAL NATIONAL BANK OF CHICAGO

Pursuant to law and the Articles of Association of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago, and the order of the Board of Directors of said Bank, a special meeting of the shareholders of said Bank is hereby called, to be held at 12 o'clock noon on August 1, 1911, at the office of said Bank, Northeast corner of Clark and Adams Streets, Chicago, Illinois, to consider and act upon the following:

1. To increase the capital stock of said Bank from $20,000,000 (200,000 shares of the par value of $100 each) to $21,500,000 (215,000 shares, of the par value of $100 each).

2. To issue and allot said 15,000 shares of said increase of stock, pro rata, to George M. Reynolds, Edward S. Lacey, J. Ogden Armour, William V. Kelley, Joy Morton, Ralph Van Vechten, and Alex Robertson, as a Committee of the shareholders of said Bank, of record at 12 o'clock noon on July 20, 1911; said 15,000 shares of stock shall be paid for, at the rate of $100 per share, by the declaration by said Bank, out of its surplus and undivided profits, of a cash dividend of 7½ per cent; to authorize and direct said Committee to exchange said 15,000 shares of said increase of stock of said Bank, share for share, with the owners of the 15,000 shares of the capital stock of The Hibernian Banking Association.

3. To do anything and everything deemed by said shareholders' meeting proper or desirable to carry into effect any and all of the terms, provisions and objects specified in the circular letter dated June 15, 1911, addressed by the president, secretary and directors of said Continental and Commercial National Bank to its shareholders.

4. To take action upon any and all other matters and things that may come before said shareholders' meeting, or any adjournment or adjournments thereof.

5. To authorize, empower and direct the officers and Board of Directors of said Continental and Commercial National Bank to carry into effect the action of said shareholders' meeting, and of every adjournment or adjournments thereof.

The stock transfer books of the Continental and Commercial National Bank will be closed at 12 o'clock noon, on July 20, 1911.

By order of the Board of Directors.

We carry at all times a large variety of first mortgage bonds secured by Railroads, Timber, Iron Ore Land, Coal, Water Power, Chicago Real Estate and the plants of well-known Industrial Corporations.

These bonds are in $500 and $1,000 denominations, and in almost every case are issued under our plan of serial payments whereby the margin of security rapidly increases.

Among our present offerings are a number of bonds of issues where the original amount of the principal has been considerably reduced through these serial payments.

RAIL BODIES SEEK SEPARATE 'HOME

Want a Building in Which Fifteen Associations Will Have General Offices.

SEE BETTER FACILITIES.

Name Committee to Study Problem; Burlington to Cut Chicago-Denver Schedule.

A movement has been started to combine all of the offices of the railway associations making their headquarters in Chicago in one building. This will bring together nearly fifteen freight and passenger associations, representing more than 100 railroads. It is the object of the associations to secure a company that will construct an office building for them which will resemble in character the present Railway Exchange building.

The associations believe that by assembling the offices of the various organizations in one building there will be several advantages. It will be handier for the officials, who of necessity must transact a great deal of interchangeable business. It has also been found that the rent for a number of floors which will be used exclusively by the railway associations in one building will be less than the present rent which is paid in several downtown buildings.

Committee to Study Problem.

A committee has been appointed, representing both the freight and passenger organizations, to study the question further, obtain proposals for bids for the new building, and prepare a report, which will later be taken up by the associations as a whole.

At present the association headquarters are scattered through various sections of the downtown district. The four office buildings in which the offices of the railway associations are located are the Tribune building, the Railway Exchange building, the Great Northern building, and the Rookery. It is expected that bids for the new headquarters building will be received soon.

Associations in New Move.

Those which will take advantage of the new project — The associations which will be included in the project are the Central Freight association, the Central Passenger association, the Chicago and Ohio River committee, the Chicago Freight committee, the Illinois Freight committee, the Mississippi Valley Freight association, the Transcontinental Passenger association, the Western Classification committee, the Western Passenger association, the Western Railway Inspection bureau, the Railway Weighing association, and the Western Trunk line committee.

Beginning July 2 the Burlington road will cut down its time between Chicago and Denver, and will make the run in twenty-seven ad one-half hours. The Denver limited, which will leave Chicago as usual at 5 p. m., will reach Denver at 7:20 p. m., cutting down the run by 25 minutes. The "twin train" will leave Denver at 4:15 p. m. instead of at 3:45 p. m., and will arrive in Chicago at the same time, 8:45 p. m., thus cutting 30 minutes from the schedule.

Deny Preliminary Rate Hearing.

The official classification committee which governs the classification of freight on the railroads between the Mississippi and the Atlantic has notified the shippers of the west that there will be no preliminary hearing in Chicago before the regular hearing in New York next Tuesday. Previous to all similar hearings in the past there has been a preliminary meeting in Chicago of a subcommittee made up of a majority of the general committee and questions concerning western shippers alone were discussed. This meant a great saving of time and expense to Chicago shippers and other shippers of the west, who will now have to attend the single meeting in New York.

It is expected that between thirty and forty shippers from Chicago will attend the hearing. There will be no concerted action on the part of the shippers, but those who are individually affected by the proposed changes will go to New York to oppose the changes.

Justifies Cheaper "Long Haul" Rates.

Special Examiner Henry Thurtell for the interstate commerce commission yesterday heard further testimony from the railroads who are endeavoring to justify the maintaining of the long and short haul rates, wherein the long hauls are given a lower rate. S. G. Lutz, traffic manager for the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad, declared that it is necessary to maintain the cheaper long haul rate in order to meet water competition at Chicago and shipments of grain from Duluth.

Reparation of $13,137 was demanded in a complaint filed yesterday with the interstate commerce commission at Washington, D. C., by the Crescent Coal and Mining company of Chicago against the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad and other carriers in the middle west. The rates on coal are alleged to be excessive and discriminatory between Indiana coal fields and points in Illinois.

BARTZEN BAN ON TERM "POGY."

Head of Commissioners Notifies Oak Forest Infirmary Official to "Fire" Employes Using Word.

President Peter Bartzen of the board of county commissioners took a flier in nomenclature yesterday. He sent word to Supt. E. N. Stein of the Oak Forest infirmary that immediate dismissal from the service would follow use by infirmary employés of the terms "pogy" or "pauper" when referring to inmates. The term "pogy" is said to have been coined by infirmary employés to describe inmates who "poke around in a lazy manner." The president also issued an order for all policemen at county institutions to wear uniforms.

ELECT NEW CHIEF JUSTICE

Judge Pinckney Chosen by Circuit Jurists and Reassignment to Juvenile Court Given.

Judge Merritt W. Pinckney was elected chief justice yesterday at the annual meeting of the judges of the Circuit court of Cook county. Judge Pinckney was reassigned to the Juvenile court, where he has been sitting for the last year. Judge Thomas Windes was elected secretary, to succeed Judge Jesse A. Baldwin. Judges Walker, Scanlan, and Gibbons were appointed chancellor judges for the coming year, and Judges Honoré and Kersten were assigned to the Criminal court.

DISBAR F. M. BARRIOS, LAWYER.

Judge Landis Punishes Attorney Who Assaulted Girl—Cannot Practice in Federal or Illinois Courts.

Having been disbarred by the Supreme court of Illinois, Frederico M. Barrios, an attorney, who says he is a Spaniard, was yesterday disbarred from practicing in the United States courts by Judge Landis. A rule of the federal courts provides that attorneys debarred from practicing by a state Supreme court will also be barred from the federal courts. Barrios prayed an appeal. He was disbarred by the Supreme court for an assault on a girl in his office.

TO NAME EFFICIENCY BUREAU.

County Board Adopts Plan for Carrying Out Civil Service Law Requirements.

The plan of creating an efficiency bureau to carry out the requirements of the civil service law was adopted by the county board yesterday. Provision was also made for the employment of the following to perform the business of the department: One record expert, one chief head of bureau, four assistant officers, one assistant secretary and chief examiner, one chief clerk, one investigator, one stenographer, and one messenger.

$500 in Prizes

Sherlock Holmes was a great detective, but there are a thousand men and women in Chicago today who have had experiences that would rival those of this famous hero of Conan Doyle's writings.

If you have had an experience, or if you have personal knowledge of the solution of a knotty problem such as Sherlock Holmes himself loved to study, write the story and submit it in The Tribune's Prize Contest of "Adventures of Amateur Detectives."

SALARY LOANS.

SALARY LOANS—
Every person in Chicago getting a salary, kindly call at our office and get all the money you want on your OWN NAME, without security; a written guaranty will be given you not to enforce payment through your firm.
WE MUST GET OUR MONEY OUT,
so everybody come and get it; our rates are the lowest in the city. You can pay us back in easy weekly and monthly payments at your own convenience.
NO ONE REFUSED MONEY.
Whether you borrow or not, come and get our rates first; honorable, fair, and just treatment accorded to all.
Present this ad.; it's good for money. You get the money the day you call; all we ask is to investigate our special rates first.
BANKERS TO SALARIED PEOPLE,
105 W. MONROE-ST., ROOM 502.

I APPRECIATE ACCOUNTS OF HONORABLE people [men employed or in business, ladies with allowances from their husbands or income from other sources], who, while not in a position to borrow money from a bank, realize that exorbitant interest charged by professional money lenders is high and extortionate. I am connected with the Indiana Loan Credit and Trust Company of Chicago, co-partners, 4303 Grand-blvd., and having private means of my own, I am willing to loan money with or without security and at a consideration but a trifle above bank rates, and never more than the interest legalized by the states of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the precise rate being determined by the amount loaned and risk assumed. My location [15 minutes from loop district via South Side elevated] assures a privacy not possible to those who deal with brokers in downtown office buildings, where lenders congregate. Always best to telephone Drexel 54 for private appointment. Ask for MR. S.

MONEY FOR SALARIED PEOPLE — IF YOU hold a permanent salaried position we will loan you any reasonable sum from $10 upward WITHOUT security or knowledge of employer or friends. Our rates are LOW, payments easy. REBATE IF paid before due. QUICK SERVICE; long time if desired; no red tape; no extra charge; nothing taken out of loan in advance. Office hours 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Will receive courteous treatment whether you borrow or not.
